"LIKE TEACHER, LIKE STUDENTS" — Bloomington School students in Paula Streets's second- and third-grade class are following in her footsteps, literally. Streets is participating in the Avon Breast Cancer 3-Day, 60-Mile Walk from Baltimore to Washington, D.C., from May 3 to 5. Her students decided they also would attempt to walk 60 miles and, in the process, learn about health, nutrition, fitness, and the character education trait of courage. Students began walking in March. Their goal is to have completed 60 miles by the time Streets leaves for her walk on May 2. "The students are very excited about their project," Streets said, "and are very optimistic about reaching their goal." To date, they have walked 28.5 miles. The students have identification badges and laminated route maps that are similar to the ones that Streets will be carrying on her trek. Students chart their progress on a map posted in the classroom that simulates Streets's route from Baltimore to Washington (shown above). Pictured below are the students as they walk the 1.2 mile route around Bloomington. Identifiable students, front to back, are Nathan Zais, Vaughn Whiteman, Justin Shaw, Steven Holtschneider, Hunter Metcalfe, Amy Bittinger, Chandra Andrews, and Wayne Wilson. Not visible are Jacob Taylor, Ashley Harvey, Alan Paugh, Chaiela Muir, Brooke McClintock, Jamie Covey, Zackary Morton, Jason Carder, Jamie Feaster, Katelin Moorehead, Kamaron Barnard, and Taona Smiley. In addition to walking, the classes are studying the nutritional value of energy bars, charting the results, and conducting a taste-test survey. Some of the students' parents and other relatives have joined them on their walks.

Farina makes good acting look easy

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Dennis Farina

Q: I watch Crime Story reruns just to see Dennis Farina at work. Please tell me what you can about him. –Pat Alexander, S. Dartmouth, Mass.

A: A former Chicago cop, Farina almost does seem destined for TV shows that are critically acclaimed but short-lived (in addition to Crime Story: remember the wonderful and woefully underappreciated Buddy Faro on CBS in 1998?).

Maybe that's because the 58-year-old actor just makes it look so easy with his uncluttered, let's-get-on-with-it approach to his work. "I don't want to know that an actor lived in a cave for 12 days so that he could prepare for a part," Farina once commented about some of his more driven colleagues.

His list of credits include both home runs (Get Shorty, Manhunter, Saving Private Ryan) and strikeouts (That Old Feeling, Reindeer Games), as well as a recurring role on TV's Miami Vice. He stars in two upcoming feature comedies, Big Trouble – which was postponed due to its plot involving terrorists on an airplane – and Stealing Harvard.

Farina also recently signed to make an NBC sitcom pilot with Jean Smart that may wind up on the fall schedule.

The divorced actor has three adult sons, Dennis Jr., Michael and Joseph.

Q: Any word on who will be returning for NBC's upcoming L.A. Law reunion movie? –Bill Fulmer, Tooele, Utah.

A: Set for Sunday, May 12, L.A. Law: The Movie reteams Susan Dey (Grace Van Owen), Harry Hamlin (Michael Kuzak), Corbin Bernsen (Arnie Becker), Richard Dysart (Leland McKenzie), Jill Eikenberry (Ann Kelsey), Michael Tucker (Stuart Markowitz), Alan Rachins (Douglas Brackman), Susan Ruttan (Roxanne Melman), Michele Greene (Abby Perkins), Larry Drake (Benny Stulwicz) and Dann Florek (David Meyer).

Q: My kids are hooked on the PBS show Zooboomafoo. What can you tell be about the hosts, the Kratt brothers? –Jenni Mink, Lansing, Ill.

A: Martin Kratt, 36, and his brother, 31-year-old Chris, grew up in New Jersey with two sisters and a St. Bernard. The brothers began making wildlife films while in college. Martin holds a bachelor of science in zoology from Duke University in North Carolina. Chris a bachelor of arts in biology from Minnesota's Carleton College.

Martin also completed an extensive study into animal defenses, while Chris studied chimp language and tool-using with three chimpanzees who appeared on the show. As for their personal goals, Martin says he wants to find out why there are no bears in Africa, while Chris vows someday to beat a raccoon in a tree-climbing competition.

In Focus

Michael Douglas rarely leaves the big screen for the small one, but on Thursday, April 25, he plays a gay detective on NBC's Will & Grace.

The Oscar winner plays off his detective character from the '70s series The Streets of San Francisco, who becomes attracted to Will (Eric McCormack) while investigating the theft of his laptop computer.

The episode "Fagel Attraction" also includes an appearance by Molly Shannon (Saturday Night Live) as a kooky kleptomaniac.

Friday

Friday on NBC, the wife (Mary Beth Hurt) of a businessman (Henry Winkler) is found brutally beaten and raped in Law & Order: Special Victims Unit.

Where Does God Live?

Where do you think God lives? Joshua 1:9 says, "the Lord thy God is with thee wherever thou goest." Since God is the Holy Spirit, He can be anywhere and everywhere, not confined by flesh and bone.

Acts 17:24 sheds more light on the dwelling place of God. "God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that He is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands." Then, where does God live? 2 Corinthians 6:16 tells us, "Ye are the temple of the living God."

So, we have the answer straight from God's word. God dwells in each of us... where there is love, for I John 4:8 states it simply... "God is love."

Visit God's house this Sabbath where you may share God's love with others. "For where two or three come together in my name, there am I with them." (Matthew 18:20) So what is the primary way for God to be in our places of worship? We must go there together.

OUTLINE THE LINES

April 21, 2002

Background Scripture:
Romans 12
Devotional Reading:
Romans 12:4-8

"Coloring outside the lines" has become a commonplace in recognizing independence and creativity. When it comes to the values and mores by which we live, however, staying within the lines remains the norm. Children and youth want to dress and act as their peers do. Adults pretty much live by the norms of our society. Many assume that Christians are just like everybody else, except they go to church.

Paul, however, offers a different standard: "Do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewal of your mind, that you may prove what is the will of God..." (Ro. 12:2). Christians are not to live just like everybody else. We are to live by different values and standards, not for the sake of being different, but so that God's will may be manifest in our lives.

Some of us may question whether there is such a deep divide between Christianity and the world. But Paul goes on to count some of the ways in which Christians are called to color "outside the lines." For one thing, Christians are use their God-given gifts and endowments for the sake of the body of Christ (12:4-8). How does that differ from the world? The world doesn't acknowledge God as the source of our gifts, nor does it call us to rise above the level of "Look out for number one!"

Genuine Love

We are also called to be different in the quality of our love for one another: "Let love be genuine...love one another with brotherly affection, outdo one another in showing honor" (12:9). Love in our society doesn't reach much beyond self-gratification. Christians are also called to embrace that which is good and refuse that which is evil (12:9b). That is in stark contrast to society's advice: 'If it feels good, do it.'

In the midst of a society that worships 'letting the good times roll,' we are called to a different level of enjoyment. "Never flag in zeal, be aglow with the Spirit...Rejoice in your hope" (12:11,12a). There is a big difference between 'having a blast', a fleeting moment, and experiencing Christian joy, a transforming condition.

Another marked difference has to do with the way we regard those in need. Especially in our world today, those in need are often judged too slothful to pull themselves up by their own bootstraps. Paul paints a different picture: "Contribute to the needs of the saints, practice hospitality...weep with those who weep...do not be haughty, but associate with the lowly" (12:13,15b,16b). The real "losers" in this world are those who haughtily keep themselves unstained by those in need.

Whose Vengeance?

The most glaring difference between the world and Christian discipleship, however, is in the way we are to react to those who have or might harm us. Two thousand years later and the Christian norm is still revolutionary: "Repay no one evil for evil...Beloved, never avenge yourselves, but leave it to the wrath of God; for it is written, '

Collecting

by Larry Cox

In recent years, more and more people have become hooked on fishing collectibles. Price guides and reference books are readily available featuring tackle, lures, floats, bobbers, bamboo rods, reels, decoys and wicker creels. In addition to sportsmen, fishing collectibles have come to the attention of decorators.

With the increased interest have come soaring prices. For example, a vintage creel that would have sold for about $30 five years ago has tripled in value. Some hand-tied lures have achieved the status of works of art, and many are priced accordingly.

To find out the value of your collection, you should drop a line to the Classic Angler, a comprehensive Web site for serious collectors. The Web address is www.gorp.com/bamboo.htm.

Another good source is Phil White, a collector who specializes in tackle and reels. His address is 14099 Lakeshore Drive, Nampa, ID 83686.

A. Occupational shaving mugs generally sell between $100 and $500 each depending on the design. Mugs featuring floral or more common designs sell for less. The National Shaving Mug Collectors Association publishes The Barbershop Collectibles Newsletter. Their postal and Web site addresses are 320 S. ## "Park" Your Dog

Q. My 1-year-old Lab mix is showing signs of restlessness. I'm sure it's because he's cooped up in the apartment all day long, and he must be leashed during walks. Is there a way for him to burn off energy without destroying my furniture? — *Kelly L., San Jose, Calif.

A. At a year old, your puppy is definitely ready for more action! Big, friendly dogs can do well in small apartments, but as you've noted, their energy levels can be a problem.

And you're right; leashed walks, even several times daily, aren't quite enough for energetic breeds.

However, owners in the city these days have a few more options when they exercise their dogs.

Dog parks are becoming increasingly popular: These large, fenced-in areas are designed to let several dogs run and play, without the leash. Some are provided by their cities, and residents can visit them at little or no cost; others are privately owned and charge an admission fee.

Both have benefits and detractions: Public dog parks are inexpensive and accessible, but owners must pick up droppings. Aggressive or ill-socialized dogs can cause problems, since supervision is often minimal. Private parks are often less crowded, with more supervision offered, and the park owners may handle cleanup. However, they can cost more to visit, and management may ban certain breeds of dog entirely.

Another option is doggie daycare, an idea that is taking hold in several cities. Dogs are either dropped off at the center, or picked up by daycare providers. While you're at work, your pooch is running and playing with other dogs, supervised at all times. Daycare is usually scheduled once a week.

Find the options available by looking through your local paper and in the phone directory. Be sure to check out any facility before bringing your pet there; if you opt for daycare, insist on a tour of the facilities.

Doctor's discovery may end obesity

HILTON HEAD, S.C. – A doctor believes that a natural formula containing the extract of a small Asian fruit can help cause significant weight loss.

Anthony A. Conte, M.D. reported in an American Medical Journal that the formula, now called Bio-Rex 3000®, caused patients to lose more than twice as much weight as those in a control group on the same fat reduced diet. Neither group was instructed to decrease the amount of food they ate or to increase their exercise levels. An article published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition says that you don't have to reduce the amount of food you eat to lose weight, provided that you limit the fat.

Dr. Conte says that animal studies suggest the mechanism behind the weight reduction is due to interruption of the "Krebs Cycle", an important step in the body's fat storage process. He says it may work the same way in humans. According to Dr. Conte, "The best part of this unique discovery is that it is not a drug, but a dietary food supplement. The Asian fruit, called garcinia, is similar to citrus fruit found in the United States with one big exception-- it may help some people fight obesity! While Dr. Conte's study may be preliminary, the exclusive North American distributor, Phillips Gulf Corp., is calling the Bio-Rex 3000 supplement "Nature's Ideal Diet Aid."

Suggested retail price for a four week supply of Bio-Rex is just $19.99. Available through pharmacies and nutrition stores or call 1-800-729-8446. www.hcdsales.com

New Vacation Guide Is "Hot Off The Press"

The Garrett County/Deep Creek Lake Area 2002-2003 Vacation Guide is "hot off the press" and available free to the public. Designed by Genesis Publishing of Towson, this 168-page full-color Chamber of Commerce magazine describes local sites, attractions, events, and activities in this "four-season resort" community. An autumn scene was selected for the cover.

There are some major changes to this year's guide. Gone are the institutional welcomes. The book jumps right into a kayaking picture by National Geographic photographer Tim Tadder with adventure insets. This is followed by two-page photo spreads on each season to emphasize the area's year-round vacation appeal, explained chamber president Ken Wishnick. There are stories titled "Winter in the Mountains," "Quiet Seclusion," "Lure of the Fly," "Romantic Escapes," "Traveling with the Titans" (Henry Ford, Harvey Firestone, and Thomas Edison), and "Down on The Farm."

"There are dramatic changes in the layout of this year's guide that make it much more user friendly. Muted colors segregate the guide by specific topics, such as attractions, recreation, and accommodations, and the advertiser index is coded by geographic region. Also, the stories tie more closely with our attractions," said Wishnick.

He also pointed out that there is a new blend of advertising and editorial, eliminating a past perception that the bulk of the guide is ads. "This has been accomplished very creatively and encourages the visitor to thumb through the book cover-to-cover to ensure that important information is not missed," he added.

True to tradition, the guide features numerous pictures, many contributed by local photographers including Crede Calhoun, Julie Frazee, Tom Eichhorn, Mike Boroff, Ken Wishnick, Patrick Forrester, Alan Kline, Randy Ruhl, and Glenn Tolbert.

More than 210,000 copies of the Vacation Guide will be distributed this year. Put in other terms, that is more than 90 tons of books filling five tractor-trailer trucks. Copies are available at the Visitors Center in McHenry and local accommodations. Requests for the guide are fulfilled through the Chamber's service center that may be reached at 1-800-800-5557, on-line at www.garrettchamber.com, through postcard responses to magazine advertisements, at 16 travel shows in a six state region, and at Maryland Welcome Centers.

"This very popular publication is the cornerstone of our successful tourism marketing program and is paid for by our advertisers," Wishnick concluded.

AVAILABLE NOW, SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE — The 2002-2003 Garrett County Vacation Guide is now available. Within the 168-page issue, photos and stories depict the four-season appeal of the Garrett County/Deep Creek Lake area. Marcia and Dan Wood along with daughter Eileen (pictured above) drove down from Greensburg, Pa., this week to check out possibilities for holding a family reunion here. When they stopped in the Visitors Center in McHenry, they found exactly what they were looking for. "Our new Vacation Guide has just arrived, and there's a section on family reunions," said travel counselor Becky Skidmore, as she helped them gather information. This was a first visit to the area for Marcia and Eileen; however, Dan vacationed here often with his family when he was young. With family in the Baltimore area and in Pennsylvania, this seemed like just the place for everyone to come together, Dan said.

ACCIDENT LIBRARIANS RECOGNIZED BY LITERACY COUNCIL — Libraries are home to people as much as to books, and that was demonstrated by the Literacy Council of Garrett County recently as the non-profit presented a certificate of appreciation to the staff of the Accident branch of the Ruth Enlow Library. The library is one of several sites around the county used by the council, which offers free one-on-one tutoring to low level or non-reading adults. Pictured from the left are librarians Ruth Miller, Eva Lou Herman, and Janet Otto, as Literacy Council president Mary-Jo Hunter makes the presentation. # Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

It is starting to get noisier and noisier in Bittinger as we progress through the month of April. As Cindy Kolbe of Orendorf Road told me, we have more than ever spring peepers (little frogs) that sing non-stop during the hours around sunset. I noticed that their song seems to be lasting longer. I thought they stopped singing after a few weeks of spring weather. But here in Bittinger we have experienced a roller-coaster type of weather, which is back and forth between summer-like temperatures to winter-like, when you can feel the chill right down to your bones.

Last weekend the Kolbe family and I had to get a few gallons of emergency fuel for our furnaces. We thought that if we could get enough to last until April we would be all right. Then Monday was so hot that it felt like August, and the last thing you wanted to do was order another tank of heating oil. But in Bittinger it is unwise to not have a full tank, as any kind of weather happens. The moist weather makes the hot days feel twice as hot.

I imagine that we will get another cool stretch before summer sets in to stay. We are not completely safe even through August, since I have a painful memory of a killing frost before Labor Day. I think it was in 1983 when a huge beautiful crop of green beans turned into black mush one morning in August before I got to pick even a single bean.

Just last year after my lilac bushes budded we got another cold and clear evening, and I had to cover my huge bush. Now my lilac bush is in bud.

I am pretty sick at heart that I have not yet planted some peas, spinach, and lettuce because they need cool, and even cold, soil to do well. It is possibly too late to get a decent crop of them already. But since I can't even use a shovel myself, much less a tiller, it seems hopeless to try to plant anything. The persons whom I depended on to assist me are very busy with their own lives and filled with their own outside chores that demand to be done this time of the year.

I know it was a bad mistake not to have planted the live Christmas tree before New Year, but I couldn't get anyone to dig a hole for it then. All this April rain is going to waste, as far as the tree is concerned.

The other day as I was on my way to Dielhlan's house to deliver Meredith for the birthday of her best buddy, Hannah Avis, I whined about the gloomy day, and Mere piped up from the back seat, "April sowers bring May flowers."

If you already have planted the seeds and bulbs, you are in good shape, as the ground is too wet to till. All the farmers around who did not start their spring plowing have already missed their best chance. The only newly plowed field I have seen in the Bittinger area was one on the Owen Stanton farm. I don't know about Foxtown Road or any of the side roads off the "main drag," meaning Rock Lodge Road and Rt. 495.

But I imagine we will soon have the sound of the tractors joining the loud singing of the huge flock of black birds that arrived last week. They are hanging out in my line of big pine trees just west of my house. I am not sure about the exact species, but they might be starlings. I know one thing; when they come back their song always wakes me up at sunrise. It is a kind of shrill whistling and mixed chattering.

I also saw my first red-wing black bird, but that was on my way to Accident, which enjoys a much more temperate climate thanwe do. It is warm enough in Bittinger to have plenty of wasps and the ever annoying pest of house flies. They take any chance to get inside by sneaking in just on chance it will turn cold again.

In spite of the pleasant state of the outside, I can't open my door and windows to air out the house because, of course, I don't have screens in the windows or in the screen door yet.

One major sign of real spring is the blossoming of the forsythia. When you drive on the "main drag" you see dozens of big bushes covered with little yellow flowers. Since I personally do not have a bush of my own, Ferne Beachy donated a few branches to me. I hope one of them will root so I can stick it in the ground.

When I was a young girl and when I was training my horse "Little Joe" to jump, I used to show off to my grandmother, Emma Glotfelty, by jumping over her huge bush in her back yard. It was almost six feet high, but Joey figured out he could brush through it and not necessarily clear it, which came in handy when we met a huge hedge on a cross-country course. Its six foot height stopped quite a few competitors, but Joey just ate it up.

CONTRIBUTING TO GCS'S UPGRADE — According to Don Morin, president and owner of Garrett Container Systems Inc. (GCS), the employees are directly responsible for accomplishing the company's recent upgrade by Global Registrars Inc. ## Garrett Container Systems Receives Upgrade To Conduct Global Business

Garrett Container Systems Inc. (GCS) recently received an upgrade by Global Registrars Inc. to ISO 9001-2000, which will enable the company to participate in global business activities with its shipping containers.

GCS was one of the first companies to upgrade to the new standard. ISO is an international quality system auditing organization.

GCS's continuous improvement process, goals, and objectives for the facility were directly responsible for the improvement to GCS's Quality Management Process, according to Don Morin, president and owner. "Our employees are directly responsible for GCS's successful upgrade to ISO 9001-2000. We have a loyal, dedicated, and committed workforce motivated toward quality and customer satisfaction."

Dan Beiler, ISO 9001 coordinator, has been involved in the improvement of GCS's Quality Management Process. He provides training to all GCS employees and is responsible for one of the internal auditing teams.

Tom Chase and Daniel Nordeek are employees who have successfully completed ISO 9001 auditor/lead auditor training, including transition training, conducted by the University of Maryland at Ocean City. "Tom and Dan will be key individuals in GCS's Quality Management Process, add new life to our continuous improvement, and place GCS as a recognized quality producer in the aluminum shipping and storage container market," said Jim Kesselring, quality support manager.

GCS also recognized Mark Tonkovich, operations manager, for his successful completion of the American Welding Society's Educator/Inspector Training and Testing. He was licensed by AWS as a welding, educator, and inspector. The certification of visual welding inspector requires documentation of experience, satisfactory completion of an examination, and proof of a visual acuity. The examination tests the inspector's knowledge of welding processes, welding procedures, destructive tests, definitions, symbols, reports, safety, and responsibilities.

"Being certified and licensed by AWS supports my personal goals as well as the goals and objectives of GCS," said Tonkovich. "I will continue to provide welding training and knowledge to our workforce to improve growth and advancement. Customer satisfaction is directly related to GCS's growth, employee security, and the economy of Garrett County."

Other employees recognized for their successful completion of the leadership course "Analyzing and Improving Performance" were Byron Bowman, Jason Beachy, Ron Host, Chris Felton, and Betty Mayne. Robert C. Byrd Institute quality trainer Eddie Fisher conducted the training. GCS provides the leadership courses to support its goals and objectives as well as employee growth and advancement.

"Our employees are our most valued resource, and GCS recognizes them as customers who must be satisfied," said Tonkovich. "To satisfy our employees, we must challenge them toward continuous growth and improvement as well as involvement in our quality, management process and provide a stable mature workforce. The new ISO 9001-2000 standard framework is extended to encompass issues relating to continuous improvement and customer confidence and satisfaction."

What's Happening with Electric Competition in Maryland.

As electric competition in Maryland begins to develop, the Maryland Public Service Commission will publish a series of update reports to provide consumers with helpful information. Today, most of Maryland is ready for electric choice—investor-owned utilities officially opened their markets to competition in 2000 and the Southern Maryland Electric Cooperative and Choptank Electric Cooperative opened to choice in 2001. As a competitive electric market develops, you will be able to choose the company that supplies electricity to your home or business. This competitive electric market will take time to develop, but offers a long-term strategy designed to bring many different benefits to Maryland consumers. Now is a good time to learn more about electric competition and to stay informed.

What Changes and What Stays the Same?

In the past, your entire electric service was provided by your local electric utility. With electric competition, the three main parts of electric service – generation, transmission and distribution – are separated. As the market develops, you will be able to choose the company that provides the generation of your electricity. This company is called an electricity supplier.

Transmission and distribution services are still regulated by the Maryland Public Service Commission. This includes the actual delivery of electricity over poles and wires and will continue to be provided by your local utility. Your utility is now called your electric company. You should call your electric company if the power goes out, just as you always have.

Benefits to Consumers

Electric competition offers the potential for several benefits to consumers. It gives you the power to choose the electricity supplier that provides your energy. You can choose that supplier based on price, terms and conditions of service, reputation, billing options or its use of renewable resources. Competition among electricity suppliers may also help lower prices over time, while encouraging the development of new products and services.

Some Consumers Are Already Making the Switch

As the market develops, more competitive electricity suppliers are likely to become active in marketing and advertising to Maryland consumers. Nearly 10% of residential consumers in the Potomac Electric Power Company (PEPCO) service territory have already switched electricity suppliers. Your choices and your options will develop over time, as more competitors enter the market across the State.

Safe and Reliable Service

If you do not choose an electricity supplier, you will still receive power from your electric company. This power is called standard offer service and is in place now.

Although the Public Service Commission will no longer regulate the price of energy, the delivery of energy is still regulated to help ensure that you receive safe power with the same service reliability you have always known.

Consumer Protections

Important consumer protection regulations remain in place. To begin with, all electricity suppliers must be licensed by the Maryland Public Service Commission to do business in the State. Once you choose an electricity supplier you have ten days to cancel if you change your mind. Also, when you make a choice, the supplier must send you an official notice of enrollment, description of billing options, plus information about the customer service and dispute process. Electricity suppliers must also tell you the energy sources used to generate their power and specify their emissions rates. Your electric service may not be switched without your permission. And if you ask a telemarketer to take your name off their call list, that marketer is not allowed to call you again.

Assisting Low-Income Consumers with the Electric Universal Service Program

Some consumers may need assistance in paying their electric bills. The Electric Universal Service Program helps lower-income customers pay current electric bills, settle past unpaid bills, and also provides guidance with energy efficiency measures. You may be eligible if your yearly income is $12,885 or less (add $4,530 for each additional household member.) To find out more about the program or to get an application, call toll-free at 1-800-352-1446 (TTY/TTD: 1-800-925-4434) or visit the web site at www.dhr.state.md.us/meap. Applications are also available at your local energy assistance office.

Competition Takes Time to Develop – Learn More Now

A competitive electric market is just beginning to take shape in Maryland and will need time to develop more fully. Now is the time to get informed! Plug in. Get smart. To find out more about electric competition, call our answer center or visit our web site.

Miss McConnell, an eighth grader at Terra Alta/East Preston Middle School, was chosen from four contestants in grades seven and eight who were vying for the honor of reigning over West Virginia's oldest continuous Fourth of July celebration. Her maids of honor will be Amanda Riley, daughter of Robert and Diana Riley, and Stephanie Rogers, daughter of James and Rhonda Rogers.

Chosen as princesses were Bethany Whetsell, daughter of Chuck and Angie Whetsell, and Nicole Loughry, daughter of Eddie and Connie Loughry and Debbie and Tom McKee. Both girls, students at Terra Alta Elementary/East Preston Middle School, were selected from six fourth through sixth grade princess hopefuls.

Serving as mistress of ceremonies for the pageant was Kayla Ely, who served as Miss Fireworks 1998. Kimberly Metheny, Miss Fireworks 2001, offered her farewell speech, and stayed to crown her successor.

The other contestant for Miss Fireworks was Tonya Sypolt, daughter of Todd Sypolt and Milinda Wright.

Princess contestants included Rebecca Browning, daughter of Robert and Lisa Rhodes; Michelle Kelly, daughter of Mike Kelly and Barbara Wiles; Stephanie Metheny, daughter of Kenny and Belinda Metheny; and Brittany Rogers, daughter of James and Rhonda Rogers.

The flower girl contestants also included Skylar Freeman, daughter of Robin Clutter; Danielle Lewis, daughter of Wayne and Diann Lewis; Megan Pritt, daughter of Charles and Melissa Pritt; and Katelyn Slaubaugh, daughter of Todd and Helena Slaubaugh.

The other crown bearer contestants were Patrick Coen, son of Philip and Dodi Harrison; Brandon Streets, son of Larry and Jolene Streets, and Ryan White, son of Crystal White.

The annual Miss Fireworks pageant and coronation are sponsored by the Terra Alta Civic Club. Members of the pageant committee were Dorene Rogers, chairperson, Dottie Bolyard, Jane Brown, Saundra Conklin, Ann Harris, Lynda Hopkins, Suzanne Kehoe, Rosella Majerczak, Judy Mapes-Sutton, Carol Moran, and Peggy Nagel.

Gifts for Miss Fireworks and her court were donated by the Terra Alta Dairy Queen, The Terra Alta Bank, BB&T Bank, the Terra Alta Volunteer Fire Department, and Shear Image.

KITZMILLER KIDS LEND HELPING HANDS TO LITTLE PAWS — The Kitzmiller After-School Program undertook a service project recently, sponsored by the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families, that resulted in the collection of over six boxes of canned dog and cat food, and a number of pet treats and toys. The items were delivered to the Garrett County Animal Shelter in person by the kids, who were treated to coloring sheets, stickers, and a tour of the facility. Shown getting a "hands-on" introduction to one of the shelter's adoptables are, from the left, Rebecca Reckart, Cheyenne Evans, Justin Nasselrodt, Damora Smith, Heidi Welch, and Sandy Browning. The Kitzmiller After-School Program drew to a close for the year with an outing to Smiley's Fun Zone arcade in McHenry, as 70 elementary, middle, and high school students and their families took part in an evening of fun, food, and games. Throughout the year the group took part in service learning, at-risk behavior prevention, and recreational activities, plus sharing crafts, games, and snacks. The program was funded by the Partnership and the Garrett County Health Department.

MOUNTAINEER 4-H

For nearly an hour, 12 members and five adults worked to clear brush and leaves from the grounds of the Farmers' Wildlife Park at Horse Shoe Run. This activity was held prior to their April 8 regular meeting and is an annual service activity of the club.

Ashley Bachtel, Katelyn Harsh, and Ashley Wilt, members of the Health Committee, presented devotions, and Caitlin Roth led the Pledge of Allegiance and 4-H pledge. Fourteen members answered roll call, and the secretary and treasurer both presented their reports.

The club has been invited to send two representatives to the volunteer banquet at Cortland Acres on April 23. Ashley Bachtel and Ashley Wilt volunteered to attend. Aaron Lipscomb and Trevor Spaid plan to attend weekend camp for first-year members. The club voted to provide camp scholarships to members attending county and state camps this summer.

Members and leaders discussed the proposed 4-H camping changes resulting from allegedly demeaning Indian tribal rites used in WV 4-H camps for the past 80 years. Members with access to the internet were previously aware of the situation.

At the May 13 meeting, John Slawter will present a conservation program on beekeeping.

Kaitlyn Schalker gave a talk about 4-H camping. Kari Harsh demonstrated how to plant seeds, then transplanted the seedlings. Trevor Spaid showed how he made his wooden four-leaf clover exhibit, then told of the history of WV 4-H camping. Lindsey Teets, with assistance from Craig Rembold, demonstrated how to aim and shoot a paintball gun, with everyone learning how to do it.

Attending were Ashley Bachtel, Debbie Collins, Katelyn Harsh, Kari Harsh, Tyler Harsh, Sara Lewis, Craig Rembold, Caitlin Roth, Kaitlyn Schalker, Trevor Spaid, Bridgette Strawser, Lindsey Teets, Ashley Wilt, and Aaron Lipscomb. Adults were Ron and Angie Spaid, Sue Corbin, Elaine Roth, Kevin Corbin, and Linda Lewis.

4-H Club Slates Gortner Dinner

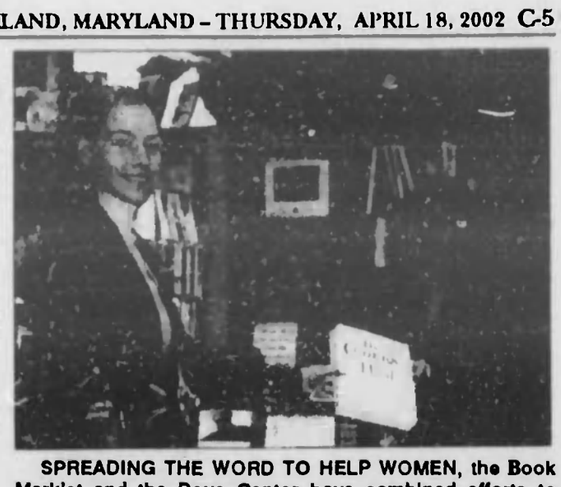
The Shepherds 4-H Club has scheduled an "all-you-can-eat" spaghetti dinner for Saturday, April 20, beginning at 4 p.m. at the Gortner Union Church. The cost is $5 for adults and $2.50 for children 6-12, with no charge for those under 6. The event will benefit the club's educational programs and activities.

The church is located along Mason School Road approximately five miles south of Oakland.



SPREADING THE WORD TO HELP WOMEN, the Book Mark'et and the Dove Center have combined efforts to raise awareness of the specter of domestic abuse and violence in our community. Battered adults and children are offered a variety of victim services and educational materials through the Dove Center, including informative and inspirational books. The Book Mark'et has posted a list of suggested books that contain much-needed words of encouragement which can help women work their way toward a permanent escape from the cycle of domestic violence. From now through August, Book Mark'et patrons can purchase one of the books, some at a 5- to 10-percent discount, for express donation to the Dove Center. Books will be left at the store when purchased for quick delivery to the shelter, and a sign-up sheet is posted at the store for book donors who wish to be recognized for their support. Shown above are Dove Center staffer Susie Mosser of the AmeriCorps Program, left, and Book Mark'et proprietor Judy Devlin.

Farming On The Mountaintop

Nutrient Mgmt. Fund Increase Gains Approval

Substantial new funds sought by Governor Parris N. Glendening to share with farmers the cost of writing nutrient management plans were approved, and funds for the popular cover crop program were largely maintained during 2002 Maryland Legislative Session that grappled with budget limitations. Agricultural land preservation also gained continued support as part of Governor Glendening's multi-faceted Smart Growth Initiative.

"In a year when budgets are being scrutinized carefully and cut deeply, we are fortunate that Governor Glendening and the Maryland Legislature remains committed to helping farmers meet environmental requirements for improving water and soil quality, and to preserving farm land," said Maryland Agriculture Secretary Hagner R. Mister. "Given the difficult fiscal climate, the governor and the General Assembly gave Maryland's providers of food and fiber a high priority."

Two primary themes of the state's agricultural programs are to help farmers remain profitable as agricultural techniques, land use trends, and markets shift; and to protect the environment. Toward those ends, funding to share the cost of writing nutrient management plans with farmers topped the list of agriculture priorities. To help meet this need, the governor sought, and the Legislature appropriated, a 350 percent increase to $987,409. Without increased funding, many farmers would be unable to afford to develop the plans, which are required by the Water Quality Improvement Act of 1998 to help restore the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries.

A program that encourages farmers to plant winter cover crops to absorb excess nitrogen left over from primary crops was funded at $2,398,000, 98 percent of the 2002 level. A bill also passed to repeal the scheduled sunset of the Manure Transport Pilot Program, which supports the transport of animal manure from farms with high nutrient levels to those that need such resources in the soil, and helps to find new uses for manure. Funding of $250,000 will support continued operations in the most critical areas.

Maryland's Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation, a nationally recognized program that buys development easements on agricultural land so that it remains in farming, was funded at $15 million. This will allow the program to continue to work along with other Smart Growth preservation programs, including Green-Print and Rural Legacy, to preserve farms and other open space throughout the state.

Other Department of Agriculture bills that passed the General Assembly in support of farming, the environment, and consumer services include:

- A $2 per ton assessment on commercial horse feed will benefit the valuable and growing equine industry by raising funds for research, education, and promotional projects as determined by the Maryland Horse Industry Board.
- The establishment of a State Agricultural Mediation Program provides private citizens and government agencies with a voluntary process to settle agricultural-related disputes in a non-adversarial setting and with assurances of full confidentiality. Currently functioning under USDA regulations, the program has been successful in resolving conflicts between farmers and lenders, suburban neighbors, and others.
- Beginning October 2002, regulations promulgated by the USDA pursuant to the Organic Foods Production Act of 1990 will supersede state organic laws. Legislation was passed that will allow Maryland to take the steps necessary to comply with the federal regulations, including raising fees to cover inspection and certification costs of this rapidly growing industry and providing for confidentiality.
- A new law would revise the definition of shell eggs in the Maryland Egg Law to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to regulate eggs that have been modified by treatments used to control pathogens. These eggs fell outside current legal language. By including them and providing for the imposition of civil penalties to improve compliance with the requirements of the Maryland Egg Law, the public will be further protected from the health risks associated with sahnonella enteritidis contamination.
- A law authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to apply for an administrative search warrant and enter property to test for infectious and contagious livestock and poultry diseases.

Field Work And Planting Under Way Across Md.

It was seasonable weather throughout the week across Maryland, with temperatures in the 80 degree range at week's end. Farmers had an average of 5.5 days suitable for field work for the week ending Sunday, April 14, which they used to continue land preparation and planting activities. Small amounts of tomatoes, cantaloupes, watermelons, and snap beans have been planted thus far. According to reports, potatoes are 51 percent planted, green peas are 60 percent planted, and sweet corn is 14 percent planted. Peaches, apples, and strawberries continued to bloom and reached average progression levels for this time of year; however, freezing temperatures m the previous week damaged these crops in northeastern parts of the state. The damage ranged from slight to moderate and varied according to crop.

Small grains continue to be reported in mostly fair to good condition with winter wheat rated 6 percent poor, 18 percent fair, 65 percent good, and 11 percent excellent. Barley is rated 4 percent poor, 13 percent fair, 67 percent good, and 16 percent excellent.

Pasture is rated 3 percent very poor, 14 percent poor, 47 percent fair, 34 percent good, and 2 percent excellent. Hay supplies are rated 9 percent very short, 17 percent short, 70 percent adequate, and 4 percent surplus.

Rain showers over the past couple of weeks have helped, although much more precipitation is needed to restore soil moisture to mostly adequate levels. Topsoil moisture is 5 percent very short, 45 percent short, 50 percent adequate. Subsoil moisture is 34 percent very short, 49 percent short, and 17 percent adequate.

MGPA Members Eligible for Cash Rebate

Time is running out for members of the Maryland Grain Producers Association (MGPA) who want to take advantage of the special cash rebate being offered by General Motors on the purchase of a 2002 Silverado or Sierra pick-up. The rebate applies to purchases of E85 vehicles made between March 1 and May 31, 2002.

"By purchasing an E85 vehicle, farmers are showing their support of ethanol while reaping the benefits of receiving a $500 cash rebate," said Donnie Tennyson, president of the MGPA and a grain farmer in St. Mary's County. "For a farmer who is in the market for a new pick-up, this is a win-win deal."

Eligible vehicles include the 2002 Chevrolet Silverado and the GMC Sierra 1500-series short box, regular, or extended cab in either two-wheeled or four-wheeled drive. The offer is available only to MGPA members who have paid their dues before March 1, 2002. Members who join after March 1 are not eligible for the rebate. Other restrictions may apply. For more information, persons may contact Lynne Hoot at 410-956-5771 or General Motors at 1-888-462-3848.

2001 Nutrient Management Annual Report Available

The Maryland Nutrient Management Program has released its 2001 annual report on the state's efforts to protect local waterways by requiring farmers to have a nutrient management plan developed for their farms. According to the report, Maryland farmers officially submitted required information for approximately 1.1 million acres of cropland with the program by the Dec. 31, 2001, filing deadline. This figure represents 65% of the agricultural land that is covered by Maryland's nutrient management regulations. The report further highlights new technology and tools used to develop nutrient management plans, certification, and training programs and available financial incentives. For a copy of the report, persons may contact the Nutrient Management Program at 410-841-5959.

Cut Alfalfa as Short as Possible

The January 2002 issue of Hay & Forage Grower magazine has a very interesting article by Neil Tietz on alfalfa cutting height research conducted in Wisconsin and North Dakota. Titled "Cut It Close," Tietz states that recent research has shown that for the best combination of yield and quality, alfalfa should be cut as low as possible. Daniel Wiersman, University of Wisconsin agronomist, found that cutting height resulted in very significant differences in yield but minimal differences in quality. Total dry matter yield from three alfalfa cuttings increased by an average of 0.5 ton/acre for each 1-inch reduction in cutting height. Cutting height treatments ranged from 2 to 6 inches. Average annual yields were 5 tons/acre for the 2-inch cutting height and 2.5 tons/acre for the 6-inch height. Lower cutting reduced relative feed value by about 4 points per inch. But potential milk yield per acre (a combined measure of forage yield and quality) increased by 900 lbs./acre for each 1-inch reduction in cutting height.

Similar results have been reported from North Dakota State University. Dwain Meyer also found significant yield gains from cutting alfalfa as low as one inch. Meyer attributes most of the yield gain to increased growth from stems originating from the crowns rather than from auxiliary buds on the lower portions of stems.

Fertilize Forage Grasses for Grazing and Hay Demands

As temperatures warm, and spring nears, cool-season forage grasses will "greenup" and begin rapid growth. To take advantage of good growing conditions, soil fertility and plant nutrition needs must be met. Tall fescue, bromegrass and orchardgrass (perennial cool-season forage grasses) require about 38 pounds of nitrogen, 18 pounds of $P_2O_5$, 52 pounds of $K_2O$, about 4 pounds of sulfur, and 4 pounds of magnesium per ton of forage produced.

The need for phosphorus, potassium, sulfur, and magnesium and the appropriate rates of application should be determined from recent soil test results based on site-specific soil samples. Most forage producers know to avoid soil sampling in livestock feeding areas and areas near water and shade where animals congregate and soil nutrient levels may be elevated because of animal wastes.

Experienced forage producers recognize that appropriate nutrient rates depend on grazing needs and hay yield goals. Perennial cool-season forage grasses will yield between 3 and 6 tons per acre, with nitrogen rates from 90 to 150 pounds per acre and balanced inputs of phosphorus, potassium, and other nutrients. Producers sometimes rely on a "nitrogen-only" forage program and fail to consider the harvest removal of phosphorus and potassium. As a consequence, soil test levels may decline over time, leading to disappointing yields and inefficient nitrogen use.

Required phosphorus and potassium may be applied with the first nitrogen application (if not applied last fall) as the grass breaks dormancy and begins to grow. Nitrogen, and any other needed nutrients, should be applied at or before green-up, before rapid growth begins. The initial nitrogen rate at green-up often ranges from 50 to 100 pounds per acre. Additional nitrogen should be applied at 50 to 100 pounds per acre about every four to six weeks afterward, depending on grazing needs and haying objectives. Forage producers should recognize that less nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium may be needed in grazed forage systems, compared to hay, haylage, and silage systems, because a portion of the nutrients are returned to the soil by grazing animals as urine and manure.

Maryland Grain Producers Scholarships Available

The Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board (MGPUB) has allocated $5,000 of grain check-off funds to support a scholarship program. The program, administered by the Maryland Grain Producers Association, will award two deserving students enrolled in a Maryland or out-of-state institution with $2,500 scholarships. Now entering its fifth year, the purpose of the MGPUB scholarship is to provide financial support to students interested in pursuing a career in agriculture. The scholarships will be awarded to Maryland residents who are enrolled in or accepted by a four-year institution and working toward a BS degree, or students enrolled in or accepted by a two-year institution with an agricultural program. The selections will be based on agricultural background, family farm involvement, financial need, grade point average, agriculture related studies, career goals, and extra curricular activities. Applicants or the applicant's immediate family must be involved in the production of grain. The deadline for applications is June 1, 2002. For an application, persons may call Lynne Hoot at 410-956-5771.

15th Anniversary Celebrated By Alzheimer's Association In April

April 2002 marks the Alzheimer's Association, Western Maryland Chapter's 15-year anniversary of providing local services for families living with Alzheimer's disease. From 1987 until today, the Alzheimer's Association, Western Maryland Chapter, has existed to promote public awareness, support Alzheimer's disease research, and advocate for and provide a wide and growing range of services to individuals affected by this devastating disease.

In the early 1980s, two western Maryland nurses acted upon their belief that local families could benefit from sharing their experiences in caring for loved ones with Alzheimer's disease. These nurses, supported by a small, dedicated group of Alzheimer family members and health care professionals, developed an informal support network in Frederick County. They held monthly support group meetings, distributed newsletters, and sponsored an educational conference about Alzheimer's disease at Hood College in Frederick in the late 1980s.

By 1987, this core of family members and health care providers had founded the Frederick County Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association, an affiliate of the National Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Associations Inc. In 1988, both a logo and an identifying slogan ("Someone to Stand by You") were adopted by the national association and its affiliated chapters throughout the country.

In 1991, Washington, Allegany, and Garrett counties were added to the chapter's formal territory, whereupon the name of the local chapter was changed to the Alzheimer's Association, Frederick County/Western Maryland Chapter, and later to the Alzheimer's Association, Western Maryland Chapter.

"It's remarkable to see the progress this chapter has made over the years," sid Joyce A. Heptner, executive director. "Based on the latest population figures, there are an estimated 8,700 residents in western Maryland with Alzheimer's disease. This figure is just the tip of the iceberg, since it doesn't include the many spouses, family members, and caregivers of those with the disease. The Alzheimer's Association has worked very hard over the last 15 years to continue to expand and enhance the programs and services we can provide to all of those people living with Alzheimer's."

Services currently provided by the Western Maryland Chapter include information and referral programs, family support programs, and professional development programs. For additional information, persons may call the Alzheimer's Association at 1-800-696-6830 or visit www.alzmd.org.

FSU Campaign Aimed At Young Area Students

Frostburg State University is launching a marketing campaign geared toward middle and high school students in Allegany and Garrett counties. To kick off this effort, FSU will hold an interactive college fair at the Country Club Mall in LaVale this Friday evening, April 19, from 6 to 9 p.m.

FSU called upon the advertising and public relations agency McClarran and Williams Inc. of Cumberland to develop a marketing plan targeted to area teens considering their college choices. The campaign, under the slogan "Opportunity. Right Here. Right Now," will be showcased on regional ads and billboards in the coming months.

Free interactive computer CDs will be given to all middle and high school students, who may use them to register to win prizes from Pepsi and the FSU bookstore. The interactive CDs link students to FSU's web site with information on its over 40 undergraduate majors and programs. CDs are currently available at the Country Club Mall and the Garrett 8 Cinemas at Deep Creek Lake.

Radio Disney and the Radio "Street Team" will share Country Club Mall's center court with Frostburg State displays and activities. FSU athletics, admissions and financial aid displays, Atomic Cafe Chemistry Program, Instant Photo Morphing, and IMac movies, among other displays, will be part of the event. The FSU Bobcat, mascot to the university, will also be on hand Friday night passing out the interactive CDs.

"This is an opportunity for FSU to reach out to the local students and tell them about the new and exciting programs we have on campus," says Ty DeMartino, FSU spokesperson. "We're also letting middle and high school students know that they don't have to go away from western Maryland to receive a quality college education. It's available right here in their own backyard."

To learn more about the new FSU campaign, persons may pick up a CD or visit on-line at my.frostburg.edu.

INFORMATION FOR BIDDERS

BIDS will be received by the Garrett County Sanitary District (herein called the "OWNER"), at 14689 Garrett Highway for the Keysers Ridge Water Project until May 3, 2002 at 11:00 a.m. and then at said office publicly opened and read aloud.

Each BID must be submitted in a sealed envelope, addressed to Ronald W. Petrella at Garrett County Sanitary District. Each sealed envelope containing a BID must be plainly marked on the outside as BID for Keysers Ridge Water Project and the envelope should bear on the outside the BIDDER'S name, address, and license number if applicable, and the name of the project for which the BID is submitted. If forwarded by mail, the sealed envelope containing the BID must be enclosed in another envelope addressed to the OWNER at

Garrett County Sanitary District
14689 Garrett Highway
Oakland, Maryland 21550

ALL BIDS must be made on the required BID form. All blank spaces for BID prices must be filled in, in ink or typewritten, and the BID form must be fully completed and executed when submitted. Only one copy of the BID form is required.

The OWNER may waive any informalities or minor defects or reject any and all BIDS. Any BID may be withdrawn prior to the above scheduled time for the opening of BIDS or authorized postponement thereof. Any BID received after the time and date specified shall not be considered. No BIDDER may withdraw a BID within 60 days after the actual date of the opening thereof. Should there be reasons why the contract cannot be awarded within the specified period, the time may be extended by mutual agreement between the OWNER and the BIDDER.

BIDDERS must satisfy themselves of the accuracy of the estimated quantities in the BID schedule by examination of the site and a review of the drawings and specifications including ADDENDA. After BIDS have been submitted, the BIDDER shall not assert that there was a misunderstanding concerning the quantities of WORK or of the nature of the WORK to be done.

The OWNER shall provide to BIDDING, all information which is pertinent to, and delineates and describes, the land owned and rights-of-way acquired or to be acquired.

The CONTRACT DOCUMENTS contain the provisions required for the construction of the PROJECT. Information obtained from an officer, agent, or employee of the OWNER or any other person shall not affect the risks or obligations assumed by the CONTRACTOR or relieve the contractor from fulfilling any of the conditions of the contract.

Each BID must be accompanied by a BID bond payable to the OWNER for five percent of the total amount the BID. As soon as the BID prices have been compared, the OWNERS will return the BONDS of all except the three lowest responsible BIDDERS. When the Agreement is executed the bonds of the two remaining unsuccessful BIDDERS will be returned. The BID BOND of the successful BIDDER will be retained until the payment BOND and performances BOND have been executed and approved, after which it will be returned. A certified check may be used in lieu of a BID BOND.

A performance BOND and a payment BOND each in the amount of 100 percent of the CONTRACT PRICE, with a corporate surety approved by the OWNER, will be required for the faithful performance of the contract.

Attorneys-in-fact who sign BID BONDS or payment BONDS and performance BONDS must file with each BOND a certified and effective dated copy of their power of attorney.

The party to whom the contract is awarded will be required to execute the Agreement and obtain the performance BOND and payment BOND within ten (10) calendar days from the date when NOTICE OF AWARD is delivered to the BIDDER. The NOTICE OF AWARD shall be accompanied by the necessary Agreement and BOND forms. In case of failure of the BIDDER to execute the Agreement, the OWNER may consider the BIDDER in default, in which case the BID BOND accompanying the proposal shall become the Property of the OWNER.

The OWNER within ten (10) days of receipt of acceptable performance BOND, payment BOND and Agreement signed by the party to whom the Agreement was awarded shall sign the Agreement and return to such party an executed duplicate of the Agreement. Should the OWNER not execute the Agreement within such period, the BIDDER may by WRITTEN NOTICE withdraw the signed Agreement. Such notice of withdrawal shall be effective upon receipt of the notice by the OWNER.

THE NOTICE TO PROCEED shall be issued within ten (10) days of the execution of the Agreement by the OWNER. Should there be reasons why the NOTICE TO PROCEED cannot be issued within such period, the time may be extended by mutual agreement between the OWNER AND CONTRACTOR. If the NOTICE TO PROCEED has not been issued within the ten (10) day period or within the period mutually agreed upon, the CONTRACTOR may terminate the Agreement without further liability on the part of either party.

The OWNER may make such investigations as deemed necessary to determine the ability of the BIDDER to perform the WORK, and the BIDDER shall furnish to the OWNER all such information and data for this purpose as the OWNER may request. The OWNER reserves the right to reject any BID if the evidence submitted by, or investigation of such BIDDER fails to satisfy the OWNER that such BIDDER is properly qualified to carry out the obligations of the Agreement and to complete the WORK contemplated therein.

A conditional or qualified BID will not be accepted.

Award will be made to the lowest responsible BIDDER.

All applicable laws, ordinances, and the rules and regulations of all authorities having jurisdiction over construction of the PROJECT shall apply to the contract throughout.

Each BIDDER is responsible for inspecting the site and for reading and being thoroughly familiar with the CONTRACT DOCUMENTS. The failure or omission of any BIDDER to do any of the foregoing shall in no way relieve any BIDDER from any obligations in respect to its BID.

Further, the BIDDER agrees to abide by the requirements under Executive Order No. 11246, as amended, including specifically the provisions of the equal opportunity clause set forth in the SUPPLEMENTAL GENERAL CONDITIONS.

The low BIDDER shall supply the names and addresses of major material SUPPLIERS and SUBCONTRACTORS when required to do so by the OWNER.

Northern GOP Women's Club Sets '02 Agenda

The Northern Garrett County Republican Women's Club recently met at Hilltop Restaurant to outline the club's programs for the year. Fourteen members were present, including NGCRWC president Carolyn Ganoe and fellow officers Twila Mae Fike, Lois Rowe, and Louise McKenzie. A fruit basket raffle was held to raise money for club projects, and Mary Kight Hebb drew the winning ticket.

Grantsville Elementary School principal Linda Buckel was on hand as the club's guest to receive a school library book donated through the Mamie Eisenhower Library Project. The NGCRWC distributed a copy of The Big Picture: Getting Perspective on What's Really Important in Life, by Dr. Ben Carson, to each of the 15 schools in Garrett County. (See picture.)

Club member Brenda Butscher reported that Congressman Robert Ehrlich has announced that he is a candidate for governor of Maryland.

Several items of coming interest were discussed, including the Garrett County Lincoln Day dinner, slated for Friday, April 26, at the Wisp Resort's McHenry House. The annual event will get under way with a 6 p.m. social hour, with dinner to follow at 7 p.m. Congressman Roscoe Bartlett will be the featured guest speaker, and tickets are available at $25 per person. (Persons may the club members listed below for reservations.)

A GOP candidates' picnic has been set for 6 p.m. Thursday, July 18, at the Accident Town Park. The event will provide members and guests of the Northern and Southern Garrett County Republican Women's clubs with the opportunity to meet with their state and local Republican political candidates, each of whom will be invited.

The next meeting of the NGCRWC is set for 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 30, at the Hilltop Restaurant. State Senator John Hafer and Delegate George Edwards will be on hand to present a 2002 legislative overview. Members and guests are invited to attend.

For information on joining the Northern Garrett County Republican Women's Club, persons may call Carolyn Ganoe at 301-895-3545, Brenda Butscher at 301-334-4500, or any club member.

Man Charged With Alcohol-Related Offenses

An Oakland man was arrested and charged with many alcohol-related offenses after his vehicle was stopped along Garrett Highway just south of Foster Road around 12:30 a.m. Friday, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Jacob William Rodeheaver, 26, was arrested after he failed field sobriety tests, according to the deputy. He was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, driving while impaired by alcohol, failure to drive right of center, negligent driving, and consuming an alcoholic beverage while driving a motor vehicle on the highway.

Rodeheaver was released from the Garrett County Jail on his own recognizance.

Garrett County Trail Projects Receive Funds

Governor Parris N. Glendening announced this week a commitment of $2 million to create more recreational opportunities and expand the state's network of trails. $1 million will be used to improve 31 trails across Maryland, some of which are in Garrett County. The other $1 million will go toward building the final phase of the 14-mile Gwynns Falls Trail in Baltimore.

"More Marylanders will have the opportunity to get outside, explore nature, and enjoy our beautiful state," said Glendening. "Building our trail network also demonstrates how Smart Growth can connect communities and create a sense of community."

Locally, $188,385 has been awarded for projects in Garrett County. The Recreational Trail System Plan for Deep Creek Lake, sponsored by the Garrett County commissioners, will receive $35,000. The funds will be used to acquire rights-of-way and construct a trail from Deep Creek Lake State Park to the Wisp Mountain Resort.

Three projects slated for Potomac and Garrett state forests will also receive funding. The Department of Natural Resources will receive $51,972 for grading and erosion control on the Wallman and Laurel Run multi-use trails. The award amount for four vault toilets to be installed at high-user camp sites along the system is $48,000. Additionally, $3,413 has been allocated for the purchase of tools and equipment to outfit volunteer crews at the forests.

The DNR is also sponsoring two projects in the Savage River State Forest. A bike trail improvement project at Negro Mountain will receive $30,000. The grant will be used for stone dust materials, trail signage, and access controls to enable bikers to use the snow mobile trail. Additionally, a project to update trail maps and trail user information at the forest was allocated $20,000.

Some of the other key trail grants in the state include $30,000 to Seat Pleasant in Prince George's County and $50,000 to

IT WAS AN UGLY SCENE In front of Southern High School yesterday morning, but fortunately it was all just a staged car crash involving a "drunk" driver, four "injured" passengers, the office of emergency management, police, fire, and rescue personnel, and plenty of realistic make-up. The purpose of the scenario, coordinated by Diane Lee of the Garrett County Health Department, was to provide a vivid reminder to local high school students that drinking and driving do not make for a healthy mix. It was staged at this time because the Southern High School prom will be held this Saturday, April 27, and because graduation, a time that students typically like to celebrate, is just a month away. A similar demonstration will be held at Northern High School next month just prior to its annual prom. (See story on page A-3.) All students planning to attend their proms are encouraged to also attend the all-night after-prom celebrations, which are scheduled at both Southern and Northern high schools. Photo by John McEwen.

Vehicle Found, Driver Ejected, Charges Filed

Garrett County sheriff's deputies arrested the driver of a 1990 Plymouth Caravan they discovered on top of a guardrail along the Hutton Road bridge crossing the Yough River at Gibson's Store, Crellin, early Monday morning.

Robert William Newton Jr., 38, Oakland, had been ejected and was found lying over the embankment near the edge of the river, police said. He was charged with driving under the influence (DUI) and various other traffic offenses.

Southern Rescue and Oakland Volunteer Fire Department responded, and removed the victim and transported him to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where he was admitted for his injuries.

Oakland City Police and state highway personnel also responded to the scene.

In another incident, Charles A. Dean, 52, Oakland, was stopped by deputies around 4 a.m. on Satur-

Octogenarian Iman Named A Md. Volunteer Of Year For MSP Work

Gerald Iman, 85, who has been driving the 30 miles from his Kitzmiller home to the Maryland State Police McHenry barrack for over a decade to contribute his services to the MSP, has received the Governor's Volunteer and Service Award. Barrack W commander Lt. Randy Resh announced the award during a surprise birthday celebration held recently in Iman's honor at Uno's restaurant. Dozens of Iman's law enforcement colleagues were on hand for the April 16 event to show their appreciation.

"This is just a great thrill, because I'm doing what I've always wanted to do," Iman said afterward. "Ever since I was a child I wanted to be a trooper with the Maryland State Police, and now I do pretty much everything but go out with a gun and arrest people. It's a wonderful group of people to work with, and I'm very honored that they would think I deserve this award," he remarked.

"Mr. Iman's contributions are a valuable asset...supplementing responsibilities traditionally assigned to law enforcement or civilian members of the department," Lt. Resh remarked as he presented Iman with resolutions of appreciation from the Maryland House and Senate, and a certificate from the Office of the State Fire Marshal. "He has contributed to the efficient operations of the department, allow[ing] other civilian and sworn members

MCHENRY MSP BARRACK, STATE HONORS GERALD IMAN — Long-time Kitzmiller resident Gerald Iman has been named the recipient of the Governor's Volunteer and Service Award for his volunteer service to the Maryland State Police. Iman reports to the McHenry MSP barrack on a near-daily basis as an active member of the civilian Volunteer in Police Support (VIPS) program, logging an average of 20 hours a week performing a variety of duties. Shown outside the Garrett County Public Safety Building along Friendsville Road — home to the MSP, Natural Resources Police, and State Fire Marshal's Office — are Barrack W commander Lt. Randy Resh, left, and Gerald Iman. After beginning his avocation at the age of 73, Iman and his law enforcement comrades marked his 85th birthday and 12th year of volunteer service on April 16 with a surprise party and award presentation at Uno's restaurant.

Residents Have Another Year Before Moving

Attorney General J. Joseph Curran Jr. announced last week that the owner of a mobile home park at Deep Creek Lake has agreed with Curran's Consumer Protection Division to allow residents to remain in the park through April 2003.

According to Curran, Glen Acres Family Limited Partnership, the owner of the Glen Acres Mobile Home Park, sent a notice to owners of homes in the park in January stating that the park was closing and homes would have to be removed by May 1, 2002. Under the settlement reached with the division, Glen Acres agreed to provide the home owners with a one-year notice of the park's closing. The 48 owners now have until April 13, 2003, to move.

Curran said that Maryland's mobile home parks law requires that residents be given a year's advance notice if a park is going to close. "While we can't make the park owner keep the park open forever," said Curran, "the settlement ensures that owners of mobile homes receive time to make alternate arrangements."

The attorney general said that the mobile home parks law is intended to offer some stability to residents who are in the difficult position of owning their homes but renting the land upon which those homes are located. Although Glen Acres agreed to give the year's advance notice of the park's closing, it denies that the law applies to its mobile home owners, whose homes are only used seasonally, said Curran.

He encouraged mobile home park residents or prospective purchasers considering moving to a park to obtain a consumer publication about their rights under the mobile home parks law by calling the Consumer Protection Division's Hagerstown office at 410-791-4780 or by visiting the attorney general's web site at www.oag.state.md.us.

Garrett County Leaders Discuss DCL's Growth, Sewage Increase

The Garrett County commissioners and officials with Planning and Zoning, the Health Department, and the Sanitary District recently met to discuss the increase in development at Deep Creek Lake. The officials were concerned about the growth's effect on the DCL Sewage Treatment System, as well as future development at the lake.

The increase in the number of houses at the lake has led to more sewage flow going through the system. As a result, a moratorium on Equivalent Residential Units (sewer taps) was issued at the lake a few years ago. Currently, there are no available ERUs for residents to purchase from the Sanitary District to enable them to hook up to the system.

Some residents who want to build are trying to obtain ERUs from other residents, who purchased them before the moratorium, but have not yet used them. There are about 1,800 inactive ERUs owned by residents, said Petrella.

In lieu of available ERUs, some DCL Watershed residents are installing their own systems. Steve Sherrard, director of Environmental Health Services, said that his office was currently conducting perk tests at some lake properties.

Lake residents need at least 600 square feet of land — about 1½ acre — before they may install water and septic systems, said the director. He added that a well and a septic were required to be 100 feet apart.

Commissioner Wendell Beitzel indicated he was concerned that the lack of ERUs would slow down development, which in turn would slow down the growth of the county's assessment base.

John Nelson, director of Planning and Zoning, asked Petrella what the long-term plans were for sewage treatment in the watershed so that county agencies could coordinate their efforts.

Petrella said the White Face Farm Spray Irrigation Facility at the county airport should be completed in the summer of 2004. Once that is opened, about 2,700 ERUs will be available. The facility would be able to handle the peak sewage flows during the summer. It could also be used year-round and be a viable facility for the next 15 years, Petrella said.

In the interim, he is working with the Maryland Department of the Environment to get a temporary sewage flow increase. The current approved limit is 608,000 gallons a day. The MDE sets limits based on peak flows, not overall averages. Petrella hopes to eventually get the limit permanently increased to 1 million gallons.

His office is also making improvements at the DCL plant, reducing infiltration, and updating the water/sewer master plan.

On April 1, the Sanitary Commission implemented a universal sewer rate for all Sanitary District customers in the county, which is based on the number of bathrooms in their homes.

The commission was also going to require an additional ERU for every three bathrooms. However, because of public concerns, the commission rescinded its decision. It is currently looking at "generally accepted practices across the country," said Petrella, in lieu of the ERU requirement. An impact fee may be charged instead. The payments would go to maintaining plant systems.

Jessie Railey Takes Fourth Place In Suzuki World Cup Co-Ed Contest

McHenry athlete Jessie Railey earned fourth place at the Suzuki World Cup sportaerobics competition earlier this month. The event was held in Tokyo, Japan, and was attended by athletes and fans from 16 countries.

The competition was held at the Tokyo Gymnasium, a venue used for the Olympic gymnastics events in the 1960s.

"The facility was beautiful and the perfect setup for our competition," said Jessie's coach, Brenda Brosnihan. She explained that spectators could view the athletes' performances on stage as well as on a large screen located up high to the right of the stage. The scores were posted on a screen on the other side.

"It was so exciting to see her routine displayed on the big screen," Brosnihan said. "Following Jessie's performance at finals she and I got to sit in what ice skaters refer to as the 'kiss and cry' area. We sat with cameras projecting our images on the big screen so the audience could view our reaction to her score. While we waited for the scores, we watched a playback of her routine. RAILEY DEFIES GRAVITY IN JAPAN — Jessie Railey, a sportaerobics athlete from McHenry, competed in the Suzuki World Cup competition, held in Tokyo, Japan, on April 12 and 13. She was accompanied on her global trip by her coach, Brenda Brosnihan, and her mother and brother. See story.

County Agency Receives CDBG Project Grant

Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD) Secretary Raymond A. Skinner announced last week that grants totaling $3.2 million were awarded to 18 projects in small communities throughout Maryland.

Locally, Garrett County Community Action will receive $473.625. with $186,800 of it to be used for a housing rehabilitation program benefiting low- and moderate-income residents, $170,000 to acquire property for townhouse construction for low- and moderate-income residents, and $81,825 for restoring the Meals on Wheels program to five days a week.

"These project awards will help provide housing, family, and senior support services, and basic public facilities for communities around the state," said Skinner. "Smaller communities do not have the resources to undertake these needed projects alone. Yet these are the types of community development programs that are vital to our Smart Growth initiatives, which encourage investment in existing neighborhoods to help slow sprawl and preserve open space."

The state receives the funding for these projects through the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program administered by the U.S Department of Housing and Urban Development. CDBG projects supported by DHCD are designed to help local governments provide decent housing, community facilities and infrastructure improvements to enhance the quality of life for low- and moderate-income residents. However, the programs typically benefit the entire community, according to a spokesperson for DHCD.

DHCD works with partners to revitalize communities, encourage home ownership, expand affordable housing opportunities, and enhance Maryland's historic sites and traditions.

Garrett Teacher Honored With Award For Environmental Work

The philosophy of Joseph Winters, "To love what you do and feel that it matters; how could anything be better?" is his motivation behind his most recent award, the 2002 Richard A. Johnson Environmental Award. As coordinator of the Hickory Environmental Education Center, Winters received this award for "his role as a mentor to future leaders in promoting environmental stewardship."

He was presented his award at a ceremony held at the University of Maryland Center for Environmental Science Appalachian Laboratory.

Mettiki Coal LLC was also recognized for partnering with the Appalachian Laboratory in Frostburg to honor outstanding western Marylanders who mentor and inspire future environmental science leaders. The company pledged $10,000 to the award, which recognizes local citizens for their outstanding contributions to environmental education. In previous years, the award was given only when funds were available. Mettiki's contribution will ensure that the award will be given annually.

About 3,000 students visit Camp Hickory each school year, and many more participate in a five-week summer resident program for fourth and fifth graders.

Hickory is considered a school within the school system. Children learn about everything from soil and minerals to food chains and weather.

Winters received his bachelor's degree and later his master's degree in biology education from Frostburg State, and then taught for eight years at Southern and Northern high schools.

In 1972, Hickory expanded to a year-round interpretive nature center for all Garrett County public schools, and Winters became assistant director. Seven years later, he took over his "dream job" as coordinator of the program, a position he still holds today.

At Hickory, it has been Winters' mission to teach environmental awareness, acquainting countless students with their natural environment, and explaining the impact humans have on their surroundings.

According to Winters, western Maryland is the environment where they (the students) will live most, if not all, of their lives; therefore, it is important that students understand how their choices in life, however small, could affect that environment.

During his tenure, he has instituted the RainWise Weather Station, which makes daily weather data available to teachers upon request. He also instituted an annual Arbor Day celebration, providing more than 2,500 seedlings to Garrett County elementary school students.

Under his direction, Hickory built two outdoor pavilions/classrooms and reconstructed a 100-seat outdoor amphitheater with lights. This year, he was awarded a 2002 Community Tree Planting Grant from the National Tree Trust to provide 100 trees for all Garrett County public schools.

Winters is also involved with the Maryland Fur Trappers Association, Western Maryland Consortium Summer Youth Employment Training Program, Maryland High School Forestry and Natural Resources Resident Program, Northern High School Envirothon Team, and a charter member of the Appalachian Laboratory Citizens Advisory Board.

Since 1980, Hickory has been a part of the University of Maryland Blacklight and Allison Pike insect trap program. Winters is also a facilitator of Project Learning Tree, Project Wild, and Project Wet — three separate national programs offering teachers interdisciplinary curriculas that integrate themes of the environment, wildlife, and water resources.

Winters said he hopes his work at Hickory helps students make better choices to benefit the environment and learn to stop taking their natural resources for granted. He said he also hopes to empower his students to pass these lessons on, because he believes there are not enough people speaking out for western Maryland's natural resources.

The Richard A. Johnson Environmental Education Award was created in 1991, and is named for a western Maryland orthopedic surgeon who actively supported environmental education during his lifetime. Each recipient is presented with a plaque announcing his/her achievement and a $1,000 check made out to the organization of the recipient's choice to aid ongoing environmental education efforts. Recipients are selected by a panel of representatives from local communities, significant donors, and the Appalachian Laboratory.

Past recipients include Bernice Zlomek of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (2001), former Appalachian Laboratory director Kent Fuller (1996), retired teacher Charles Strauss Sr. (1993), retired teacher Nan Livingston (1992), former Times-News columnist Ken Hodgdon (1991), and Frostburg State University professor Don Emerson (1991).

AWARDED FOR DOING WHAT HE LOVES — Joseph Winters, coordinator of Hickory Environmental Education Center, is shown fulfilling his lifelong dream of teaching his students to make better choices to benefit the environment. Winters was recently awarded the 2002 Richard A. Johnson Environmental Education Award. See story for more details.

Correction Noted

Incorrect information was supplied to this newspaper concerning an injured person in a motor vehicle accident which occurred along Paul Friend Road last Wednesday. The rear passenger of the vehicle was Michael Paul Liller, 24, Oakland, not Michael Paul Miller.

Charges Filed After Crashes Injure Five

A pair of two-vehicle collisions, one Saturday and the other yesterday, resulted in injuries for a total of five persons, according to Maryland State Police troopers, who filed charges against one of the drivers involved in each accident.

Saturday's crash, which occurred shortly before 4:30 p.m. along the National Highway just west of the Casselman River, occurred when a stopped Dodge Caravan which was waiting to turn into a private driveway was struck from behind by a Ford F150 pickup truck operated by Daniel Lloyd Ganoe, 17, Frostburg (GC). The collision damaged both vehicles to the point all occupants were trapped, requiring extrication work which was carried out by personnel from the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department and the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

Each of the injured persons — Tabitha Dawn Beitzel, 17, Accident (a passenger in Ganoe's truck); and Marlin Laverne Bender, 41, Twila Marie Bender, 41, and Lenore Arlene Bender, 63, all of Grantsville — were transported to Cumberland Memorial Hospital. Lenore Bender was hospitalized for several days before being released, while the others were all treated and released the same day.

State troopers charged Ganoe with driving at a speed greater than reasonable, citing driver inattention and the slick road surface as contributing factors to the accident.

Yesterday's 9:39 a.m. mishap occurred along Finzel Road just north of Interstate 68 when Kristina Fike, 27, Frostburg, lost control of her Chevrolet pickup truck and skidded into the oncoming northbound lane, striking a 2001 Chevrolet Silverado operated by Gary E. Brant, 37, Salisbury, Pa.

Fike's truck bounced off the Silverado and struck an embankment before coming to rest, and she sustained minor injuries. The Frostburg Ambulance Service transported her to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released

Fike was charged with negligent driving by state police.

DUI Arrest

State troopers arrested Craig Eugene Hood, 36, Mount Pleasant, Pa., early Tuesday morning and charged him with driving while under the influence (DUI).

Swanton Man Faces Alcohol-Related Charges

A Swanton man was arrested and charged with many alcohol-related offenses early Friday morning, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Deputies located Terry Jay Shope, 24, asleep in a vehicle which was partially on the roadway and in a residence's yard along Bittinger Road. The vehicle was still running and in drive, police said. Shope failed field sobriety tests and was arrested.

Shope was charged with driving while impaired, driving while impaired per se, driving while under the influence, driving on a revoked driving privilege, and consuming an alcoholic beverage while operating a vehicle on the highway, police said.

He was released from the Garrett County Jail after posting $2,500 bond.

to 6 p.m. each evening, except for Saturday's clinic at the Health Department, which take place from 10 a.m. to noon.

The vaccination cost is $5 per animal, and county dog licenses will be available at each clinic. Dogs should be on a leash and under the control of a responsible individual. Cats and ferrets should be brought to the clinic in a cage or a tightly secured box with air holes.

Although Maryland law requires dogs, cats and ferrets to be vaccinated against rabies at 4 months of age, vaccinations may be safely and effectively administered at 3 months of age. Dogs and cats need to be revaccinated at least once every three years after the initial one-year vaccination. Ferrets need to be revaccinated every year.

Failure to vaccinate pets against rabies in Maryland may be punishable by a fine of up to $500 per animal.

Suspects Sought In Burning Case In Grantsville

Maryland State Police and local investigators for the Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office are seeking information leading to the arrest of a person or persons who are responsible for setting a fire at an apartment building in Grantsville.

An occupant of the six-unit apartment building, located at 207 Main Street, noticed a burned area on the rear of the building early Sunday morning and contacted the MSP. Deputy State Fire Marshal Ryan Chapman responded to the scene and determined that the fire had been intentionally set on the outside of the building, but then burned itself out before spreading inside. The damage to the building, which is owned by Karin Miller, was estimated to be $100.

Anyone with information about this incident is asked by DSFM Chapman to call (toll-free) 877-890-0199.

Four bodies were jumbled inside, and another was trapped between the front of the car and the tree. The ambulances and fire and rescue trucks all converged on what appeared to be a bad vehicle crash in front of Southern High School yesterday morning.

But what appeared to be blood oozing from various wounds on the victims' bodies was really just make-up.

Southern High School students passed the scene of the crash, in the grass at the corner of the parking lot, as they came to school Wednesday morning. Except for a select few who were helping with the mock crash, they did not know it was just a demonstration. The scene looked realistic, and students were not told that it was a demonstration until the morning announcements before classes started.

The Garrett County Health Department organized the mock crash at the suggestion of the Zero Tolerance for Underage Drinking Committee.

"The idea behind the mock crash was to get the students to think about what it would be like to be in a crash, or to have one of their friends injured or killed in a crash," said Diane Lee, Combating Underage Drinking coordinator for the health department. "We want them to think about it now, so they make the right decisions when they attend parties during this prom and graduation season."

The victims were extricated from the vehicle using the Jaws of Life and other appropriate equipment, just as if the crash were real. The driver, who appeared to be intoxicated, was given a field sobriety test, handcuffed, and put into the back of the police car.

Information and additional photos about the mock crash, as well as information about Maryland's Underage Drinking Laws and alcohol and youth, are posted on Southern High School's web page at www.ga.k12.md.us/Schools/SH.

Participants in the mock crash included staff of the Garrett County Office of Emergency Management, the Garrett County Health Department, the Sheriff's Office, the Maryland State Police, the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, and Southern Rescue Squad. Victims in the crash included several Southern High School students, and a number of AmeriCorps members from the Garrett County Health Department.

AMONG THE CONTRIBUTORS to the Capital Campaign for Garrett County Memorial Hospital, with a five-year pledge of $25,000, is Sincell Publishing Company Inc., Oakland. The campaign is under way to help fund a major expansion/renovation project at the hospital, which will include construction of a new emergency department, relocation and modernization of the helipad, relocation and expansion of the same-day surgery unit, renovation of the lobby and admissions area, expansion of the laboratory, and expansion of the radiology department. In recognition of this pledge, the new emergency room waiting room will be named by members of the Sincell family. Robert Sincell, a charter member of the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad, was the first certified emergency medical technician instructor in Garrett County. He was among the founders of Southern Rescue, and instructed scores of members of both the Southern and Northern rescue squads during the 1970s and '80s. He and his wife Hannah and four of their children — Donald, Benjamin, Kathryn, and Mary — were all members of Southern Rescue, as were Suzanne and Beverly Sincell, spouses of Donald and Benjamin. Collectively they provided over 70 years of active service. "Top-quality emergency medical care for our community is obviously important to our family," stated Donald Sincell, who also served as a member/chairman of the hospital's board of governors for 18 years, "and Garrett Memorial does an outstanding job of providing that level of care." Pictured from left in the photo are: Louise Conjura, GCMH Foundation chairperson; Elaine McDonald, chairperson of the capital campaign; Donald Sincell; and Robert Sincell. Additional naming opportunities exist as part of the campaign, McDonald said, and persons desiring more information may telephone the GCMH Foundation office at 301-533-4178. The hospital plans to break ground for the project early this summer, and completion is slated for spring of 2004.

was very tough and we were pleased with where she finished."

This was the first year for the Suzuki Cup to include youth competitors, and some of the rules were slightly different from the world championships held in the United States, the coach noted. For example, the male and female varsity athletes were not separated in this competition. Railey proceeded to defeat all of the varsity boys except one. Eiici Ohmura from Japan, who is the 2001 Boys Varsity World Champion, won the competition.

"Eiici is well on his way to winning three world titles. He is quite a star in Japan," Brosnihan said. "The television cameras and press created a media frenzy around him. Later when it was realized that he was the winner, the press hounded him like the paparazzi."

Jessie took the stage after Eiici's performance.

"She really knows how to captivate an audience," her coach said. "The beauty and artistry of her performance makes her very entertaining to watch." She reported that Railey gave a "very solid technical performance." She also noted that the competition afforded them a preview of the competitors who may attend the world championships in Miami this August.

Railey said competing in the Suzuki World Cup was "an incredible experience."

"Through the preliminary round I was very nervous and had waves of insecurity. Everyone seemed so talented. I was full of anxiety during my performance at preliminaries. I was relieved when I got off stage," she said. "After my performance I went to change clothes when Brenda came screaming into the room to tell me I was in fourth place. We were all overwhelmed."

Railey said she is proud to have placed fourth in the event.

"Next year they will separate the male and female athletes and I hope I can go back and earn a medal," she said. Railey said the experience has inspired her to train hard for the NAC World Championships in Miami, and her goal is to earn a medal.

Railey was part of a four-member team representing the United States. Teammate Chelsea Sullivan, Greensboro, N.C., earned a fourth place ranking in the junior varsity event. Terri Levins, Ga., and Kourtney Huston, Washington D.C., both adult athletes, placed second and seventh, respectively.

"Team USA was one of the smallest delegations, but our presence had great impact with all our athletes earning such respectable rankings," Brosnihan said. The Suzuki World Cup will air on television in Japan on April 29.

In addition to her coach, Jessie was accompanied on her trip by her mother Nancy and her brother Lee. In addition to the competition, the group had time to go sight-seeing.

"Being in Japan was a wonderful life experience for each of us," Brosnihan said. "We traveled in the subways, ate lots of interesting foods, and really had an opportunity to experience many facets of the Japanese culture."

Town Hall

ACCIDENT

The next mayor and town council meeting has been changed to May 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the town hall.

FRIENDSVILLE

- The town's annual Clean-Up Week is scheduled for the week of May 6-11, with regular trash collection on Thursday and bulk item pick up on Saturday, May 11. Flyers with additional information will be distributed in town next week.
- It was noted that the trash containers of a number of local residents are damaged beyond being useful. Residents with trash containers that have damaged or missing handles, sharp edges, or other dangerous features are asked to repair or replace them in order to reduce the likelihood of injury to the refuse collection crew members.
- Circuit Rider Michael Mullan explained the option of having the county tax collector's office bill municipal taxes as a part of the county tax bill. The mayor and council decided to not utilize this service.
- Residents are reminded that the Garrett County Dog Ordinance, which forbids dogs from running loose, is enforced in town
- The Garrett County Commissioners have approved the mayor and council's request for county assistance to pave a three-foot wide section of the west side shoulder of Second Avenue from the Maple Street intersection to the county's Bear Creek Bridge. This paved area will serve as a walkway from the center of town to the Community Park and the Head Start/Community Center. Additionally, the county will repair damaged sections of Water Street and Walnut Street. These projects are scheduled to be undertaken in late summer or early fall.

The next scheduled meeting of the Friendsville Mayor and Town Council is on Monday, May 6, at 7:30 p.m.

KITZMILLER

- The town of Kitzmiller is still collecting newsprint for recycling on the last Friday of each month and will continue to do so through the summer months. Citizens can bring papers to the community building and place in the container provided or put them out on curb for town employees to pick up.
- Results of the April 9 election: Jim Browning was elected mayor and Mike Brady and Rob Reckart were re-elected to the council. They will assume their positions on May 6.
- The Kitzmiller mayor and town council will soon begin sponsoring the Yard of the Month contest. A sign will be placed in the winning yard proclaiming it as the Yard of the Month and a gift will be given to the owners by Green Acres. Watch for further details.
- Plans are under way for the 2002 Homecoming. Councilman Reckart was named head of the homecoming committee. Homecoming will be held July 27 at the town park and school grounds.

Golden Opportunity...

A popular criticism of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, as expressed from time to time in written form on this page, and verbally on the streets, is that the chamber focuses entirely too much of its energy and resources on the promotion of Deep Creek Lake rather than the promotion of Garrett County as a whole. Another is that the chamber's board of directors consists of too many realtors/developers whose decisions are based more upon self-interest than on what is best for the county.

While there may be some evidence to support both of these allegations, the purpose of this column today is not to express an opinion one way or the other on this issue, but to commend the chamber board members for an idea they are considering right now, and encourage them to bring it to fruition.

It was suggested well over a year ago by chamber executive director Ken Wishnick that a chamber foundation be created, with its own board of directors, but under the auspices of the chamber. The purpose of the foundation would be to help fund various promotional events and activities throughout the county. For example, if the Kitzmiller Lions Club or the Eastern Garrett Fire and Rescue Department or the Crellin School PTA were planning such an event, those organizations could apply for a grant from the chamber foundation to help them finance their effort. Larger events, such as the Autumn Glory Festival, could also be so supported by the foundation. It might be a grant of a few hundred dollars, or it could be one of several thousand dollars, depending upon the scope, intent, size, and type of event. What an incredible way for the chamber to respond to the aforementioned criticism, as financial support could be spread to every corner of the county.

Funding such a foundation is always the toughest hurdle, but in this case the chamber has a golden opportunity to hit the ground running. When plans were under way to build the visitors' center at McHenry it was believed that the chamber's budget would have to provide a sizable portion of the funding. Money was set aside, but was ultimately not needed, as the construction was covered by other governmental grants. The money is still there, somewhere in the neighborhood of $185,000.

There is interest among some of the chamber members in establishing a foundation. We would like to see them utilize at least half of this money to do so. If $80,000 to $100,000 were allocated as the principle amount for the foundation, then in its very first year of existence there would be earnings of several thousand dollars that could immediately be awarded in the form of grants.

The chamber directors have a perfect opportunity to prove that promotion of all of Garrett County, and not just the lake area, is their mission, and that's precisely what it should be.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The National Day of Prayer tradition dates back to February 19, 1795, when President George Washington issued a proclamation setting aside a day of public thanksgiving. An annual day of prayer was established by Congress in 1952 and specifically designated in 1988 as the first Thursday in May.

We will mark the 51st anniversary of the National Day of Prayer May 2, 2002, at noon in the Garrett County Courthouse rotunda. Life has changed dramatically for all Americans since September 11. In the midst of uncertainty many have turned to their spiritual roots. This National Day of Prayer is an opportunity to see the Lord's healing power as we humbly come before his throne.

This year's theme, "America United Under God," emphasizes the need for individuals to place their faith in the unfailing character of their Creator, who is sovereign over all governments, authorities, and men. Psalm 46:1 will further highlight our theme. It reads, "God is our refuge and strength, and ever-present help in trouble."

The event is sponsored by the Mt. Top Ministerial Association. The public is encouraged to attend the Garrett County observance as we publicly declare our trust in our Creator's sovereignty over the affairs of men. A prayer event will also be held in Friendsville at 1 p.m. on May 2 on the lot across from the Friendsville Elementary School.

Sincerely,
Teresa Domenick

To the Editor:

While I cannot pretend to agree with George Falter on every issue his opinion has graced these past few years, I can tell you this: Where the rights of private property owners versus government regulations such as zoning are concerned, Mr. Falter rates number one in my book.

His steadfast leadership in opposing the attempts that were made a few years ago to force these laws on the free people of Garrett County should be remembered and appreciated by all of us who abhor these oppressive and restrictive controls.

In my opinion, without George's relentless rallying cries awakening the people to what was going on, we could very well have been living under these vile regulations today.

Thanks, George!

To the Editor:

I'm writing in reference to the editorial titled "Political Correctness?..." I was stunned to read the last line, where you accused "Civil Liberties Union zealots who really need to get a life" of being responsible for the 4-H edict banning the use of tribal names for groups at 4-H camps.

I have no feelings one way or another about how 4-H campers' groups are named, but I have very strong feelings of gratitude for those Civil Liberties Union zealots whose lives revolve around protecting those liberties that we all claim to cherish.

I am especially grateful to those "zealots" now, at a time when so many people are eager to give up the freedoms on which this country was founded in exchange for feeling safe from terrorists.

I usually enjoy your editorials, whether or not I agree with them, because they are thoughtful and fair-minded. I hope the above-mentioned line represents a momentary lapse.

Sincerely,
Linda Theriot

To the Editor:

Garrett County Memorial Hospital will be celebrating National Nurses Week May 6-12, 2002. During this week, we would like to raise public awareness of the value of nursing and to help educate the public about the vital roles registered nurses, licensed practical nurses, and certified nursing assistants play in meeting the health care needs of our community.

To celebrate National Nurses Week, Garrett County Memorial Hospital would like to pay tribute to the number of nurses and nursing assistants at our hospital who provide highly skilled, safe, and quality care in a variety of settings, and who encounter increased challenges to their professional and ethical commitment to deliver essential health care.

The hospital is soliciting stories to pay tribute to theses nurses and nursing assistants. Perhaps, for example, an individual may want to thank the nursing assistant who cared for him/her, or his/her family member; or perhaps a nurse was involved in saving a particular individual's life, and the individual would like to show his/her gratitude. We would like to hear from your readers, and we ask that your newspaper print these testimonials during May 6-12.

Please help us recognize our area's nurses and nursing assistants and give an individual the opportunity to share his/her story and pay tribute to a particular nurse or nursing assistant or to all indispensable nursing personnel on this special day. We encourage your readers to mail these testimonials to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, 251 N. Fourth Street, Oakland, MD 21550, Attn: Linette Sines.

Thank You,

To the Editor:

I am being "terrorized" by a huge black bear. I have lived on this property for 13 years and am used to seeing bears wander through the woods, kept my garbage locked up, and no bird seed in the feeders except in the dead of winter. I'm used to seeing many deer, wild turkey, and bears, and am careful in what I do and when I do it.

However, this huge bear has put many muddy nose prints on two sliding glass doors and has torn up my 10-ft. satellite dish. I'm shaking all the time, can't eat well, and am very frightened.

So, I reported the three occurrences to DNR immediately. Mr. DeWitt came to see if my garbage was put away and told me it was my job to re-program this monstrous thing. In my opinion, hanging ammonia in balloons coated with honey, ammonia in sauce dishes next to my sliders, an air horn, and pepper spray are cosmetic approaches to the problem. He needs to be either trapped and relocated far away or taken out.

I'm almost 70 years of age and have very serious heart problems. Medication keeps me alive and quite mobile, but stress is a "no-no" for my heart. I explained this to Mr. DeWitt.

My comment to the newspaper and the public is: Why is this bear more important than the life of a long-standing, active, and contributing member of the county? They won't even relocate it! I'd be willing to pay the $1,500 fine for killing the bear if I had a gun, but my health would not allow me to spend six months in jail. So now my options are a heart attack or being mauled by this bear in my own home.

Where is there any sense in a wildlife management program like this?

To the Editor:

Yes, Bill, I did learn a few things at JIIU, but putting a $9 million amusement ride on Deep Creek Lake at the Playground for the Rich (ASCI) just boggles me. I don't understand why the commissioners and their confreres would support the concept of constructing a kayak run that requires huge pumps when there are so many rivers (like the Savage) here in G.C. It gives a whole new meaning to "sunk money."

You do have a way with words, Bill (ha, ha, ha,) - - - you have done "standup," right?

Priorities, Bill! Priorities! That's what it's about. Spending that amount of money on something that might provide a few $6.00/hour service jobs just doesn't make sense. There are better ways of using that money. Many suggestions were made at the recent Economic Development meeting by the people. You wouldn't know this because you weren't there, but a request was made that the comments, suggestions, and ideas be published in The Republican. The out-of-state facilitator said that he had to get permission first (presumably from the commissioners, who weren't in attendance either). Inasmuch as you are so adept at getting information, perhaps you can convince them to publish it. Not honoring, the request brings discredit to the whole idea of "open government"; it encourages disrespect for our leader and it dishonors all of us who braved that snowstorm to attend that meeting.

And, by the way, I want to express my admiration for all of those young ladies who attended that meeting and so eloquently expressed themselves about their plight.

Instead of elliptical answers and more rhetoric, how about straightforward answers to two questions: 1. Are you willing to join the commissioners in a public debate/town meeting? 2. When will the unexpurgated version of the Economic Development Meeting be published?

To the Editor:

Windmills - Let's use experience please!

By recent showing (by our Garrett County commissioner) of lack of basic knowledge of windmills, it is time to get the facts out. Ignorance is not a sin, but it is if you go forward without the facts and spend the taxpayers' money, when all freely available information tells you that the sun rises in the east. We do not need to spend money to learn this.

Briefly, look at the energy crisis back in the 1970s. Several people thought windmills would produce enough electric to pay their own electric bills. In Garrett County there were, and still are, more than a few dead windmills still standing. I personally spent several hundred dollars in wind-measuring equipment. Forget it. Garrett Community College built a windmill. To my knowledge, there has not been one which even paid for part of the cost of construction. The local radio station built one. I do not recall that the blades ever turned.

Now some facts from a very learned lady who has written 200 scientific articles: To properly establish a "windmill farm" which would replace a 1000-megawatt coal plant, you will need "uninhabited area with correct meteorological conditions of roughly 400 sq. miles on which to place 2,000 wind turbines, not to mention the associated imprint of high-power transmission lines, roads, etc."

Now, stop and consider, my folks in power (Garrett County, Allegany County, or anywhere), 400 square miles is just about 2/3 the size of Garrett County, Maryland! Let's look at that in another way. Most of the county residents would need to move out, tear down the houses, and the insanity goes on. Simply said, people in power, look at the existing experience. Yes, the wind is powerful, but give slight thought to reality, please!

In closing, I must also pass along that this educated lady who brought us the above details also has the facts on "global warming." Basically, a myth. But that story of truth comes later. Source: Sallie Baliunas, who is an astrophysicist at the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics. She is also a deputy director of Mt. Wilson Observatory. She is a senior scientist and chair of the Science Advisory Bd. at the George C. Marshall Institute. She has many more credentials; however, we poor country folks are well impressed, and do not really understand what astrophysicist means. The question is, will our people in power accept facts, or will they insist on spending $500,000 to "see if it is practical here."

To the Editor:

Cissy Plekavic takes a great deal of strength from her children, the ones who are left. In fact, she says that if it weren't for her surveying children, she would not have coped with the loss of her son Danny and her daughter Miriam.

Danny was a police officer in Oahu, Hawaii. On April 30 last year, he was at the scene of a traffic crash adjusting some flares to help keep the area safe. A drunk driver ran into Danny, hurling him into the air and into another vehicle. Danny died instantly.

Cissy and her husband traveled to Hawaii from their home in Chicago to bury their son. Because it was Police Week, it was a week and a half before Danny's formal police funeral would take place.

As Cissy was still struggling to understand Danny's loss, she received another telephone call. This time it was about her daughter Miriam, who also lived in Hawaii. A drunk driver who decided to pass five other cars on a hill ran into her car, killing Miriam and injuring her husband and son.

Within 10 weeks, Cissy Plekavic had to bury a son and a daughter, both taken from her by drunk drivers!

Let's ask ourselves, "Why isn't drunk driving treated more seriously? How do drivers with suspended or revoked licenses continue to drive? How do they get away with it? Are drunk drivers who have killed others able to get off with light sentences if they have a good lawyer? Does our system say 'you will have fairness' or does it say 'get a good lawyer and you will have better than fairness? Get a good lawyer and you will get off?'

Let's get the drunk drivers off the roads. Let's ask for tougher laws and tougher enforcement of the existing laws in the courtroom. No matter how good their lawyers, drunk drivers kill and injure, and deserve to be punished to the fullest extent of the law. Contact your state elected officials and urge strict enforcement of existing laws and the passage of tougher laws as well.

KEEPING UP WITH SPRING

Warm weather has suddenly out-stripped my efforts. The grass grew. The buds blossomed. The earth became warm. There was too much to do at once.

This year we are doing something different at my church. We are making a community garden. For several years now we have had the 1 Corinthians 15:36 Project, "...that which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die." St. Paul uses the planting of seeds and the growing of plants as a metaphor for death and the resurrection from the dead.

Our project has consisted of planting seeds following the Ash Wednesday service. What happened to the seeds after that depended upon the individual. This year we are going beyond planting seeds to seeing them through to fruition.

One couple offered to have the garden at their house. The husband had the ground worked up for us. A cousin of mine had a calf pen that needed cleaning, which he, my nephew, and I did together. We forked the manure onto my pickup truck, which I then unloaded onto the future garden. A church member roto-tilled the manure into the ground, and we let good things work on their own for a few weeks before we planted anything.

Onions, radishes, and spinach are planted there now. The garden is under way.

At home I worked in my orchard under the gun of the sun. Pink-tip is the ideal stage for spraying apple trees. The problem was that the sudden and steady warmth meant that the pink-tip stage did not last very long. Within two days of the pink-tip emergence, the trees started to open into full bloom. I hit the trees with spray in time, but just in time.

Another of my nephews seems happy to make a little extra money mowing the yard. So I set him to that task, and off he went. Lawn mowing started to look like a full-time job with the grass growing behind the lawnmower. That is the situation on the yard front.

Springtime has such interesting smells. There is mache, a corn weed. Some call it pepperweed. In the spring, as it flowers, the field above my house has a peppery smell to it. There is the smell, too, of the mown lawn, the rich fragrance of grass in the full flow of energy in its race upward. There is the garlic smell of wild onion, too.

Sunshine itself does not smell, but somehow the intensifying of the sun at this time of year does make other things smell. Drying grass smells different than newly cut grass. Clothes dried on a clothes line take on a different kind of freshness, as they dry more quickly when the sun burns more brightly.

The dew also does not itself have a smell, but draws out the fragrance of flowers. To walk on a dew-laden morning is to indulge oneself in the perfumes of nature, which are most intense at this time of year.

This is spring, the time of year that demands a steady pace from mortal man to keep up with her, and yet, at the same time, that tempts us to a leisured immersion into these simple, pure, and natural joys. It is a time of year when all that has died — like St. Paul's seed — comes to life, and is thus a season of promise and of hope.

People used to ask me how I got so much accomplished. Perhaps I have slowed down enough that the question no longer needs to be answered. My old answer was that I was really triplets, but that only one of us ever went out of the house at a time.

As I grow older there seems to be less time. In one sense there is less time. A.E. Housman writes of that when he says, "of my threescore years and ten/ twenty will not come again./ And take from seventy springs a score,/ it only leaves me fifty more." Well, if it is threescore years and ten we are talking about, I only have twenty-three more.

In other ways, too, there is less time. I seem to need about one hour of sleep more each night than I did a decade ago. That is nearly one work day a week that I now sleep which, 10 years ago, I could dedicate to some enterprise, even if it was the enterprise of smelling spring flowers.

Life has sped up or I have slowed down in my ability to live it. Planting those dead seeds becomes more and more important to me each year, because I get a little more like them. As the cycle of seasons has passed once more, I become more like the thing planted than the fruit of the spiritual body harvested.

I wish I could do it all. Mowing the yard almost sounds like fun, but a kind of fun in competition with lots of other kinds of fun. So I revel in what remains, and admire those in the generations ahead of me who are still reveling though they are that many years closer to their final status in this life as a seed.

Volunteers Sought For Major Bird Atlas Project

Area birding enthusiasts and landowners are being asked to volunteer to assist with a five-year bird study sponsored by the Maryland Ornithological Society. The effort will serve as the basis for publication of an updated Breeding Bird Atlas of Maryland and the District of Columbia, set for publication in 2008. A comprehensive introduction to the project, past and present, is available on the web site of the non-profit Maryland Ornithological Society at www.mdbirds.org.

A training session for local persons interested in participating in observing and counting birds for the atlas project has tentatively been set for 7 p.m. Wednesday, May 8, at the Center for Adventuresports and Outdoor Studies (CAOS) at Garrett Community College in McHenry. The CAOS facility is located along Mosser Road just east of the Panorama Motel, and just behind the college's residence hall. Signs at the facility will direct attendees to the meeting room.

Maryland's breeding birds were last mapped by the atlas method from 1983 through 1987. The results of that study were published in a large hardcover book in 1996 (see photo), which documented 194 confirmed breeding species with drawings, page-long descriptions, and maps detailing confirmed sighting and breeding locations statewide. "The atlas has been an important tool for land managers and is regularly consulted by government officials when making decisions on land use," said project publicity coordinator Marcia Balestri.

BIRD ATLAS UPDATING IN WORKS — A project to update the 20-year-old Atlas of the Breeding Birds of Maryland and the District of Columbia, shown above, is about to take flight, and a meeting to introduce the effort is set for 7 p.m. Wednesday, May 8, at the Center for Adventuresports and Outdoor Education at Garrett Community College. Local volunteers are being sought to help out in a variety of ways including documenting field observations, opening their own property to bird observers, and asking permission for observers to enter other private property. Field data will be collected from 2002 through 2006. Each year's data will be made available in electronic form as soon as possible, and a printed Atlas is scheduled to be published in 2008. Comprehensive information on the project is available on-line at www.mdbirds.org, while Garrett County atlasing coordinator Fran Pope may be reached at 301-334-4908 or via e-mail at fpope@gcnetmail.net.

"This new study will determine how the distribution and diversity of breeding birds has changed over the last 15 years. The upcoming Breeding Bird Atlas project will document the current distribution of bird species in Maryland and the District of Columbia. This information will be compared with the original study to provide insight into the protection and preservation of critical habitat for breeding birds."

Through 2006, volunteer fieldworkers will be visiting different bird habitats in order to find breeding species. Each county in Maryland and the District of Columbia has been assigned a county coordinator to organize data collection, and Garrett County's coordinator is Fran Pope of Mtn. Lake Park (contact information appears later in this article).

Pope will be working with interested volunteer fieldworkers to divide the county into blocks, and the volunteers can sign up to cover one or more blocks, depending on how much time that they want to devote to the project. Coverage of one block takes a minimum of about 20 hours — not all in one day, but spread over a single breeding season, or over multiple breeding seasons within the five years.

"Atlasing goes beyond the basic identification and counting of birds," Pope stated. "The goal is not to count every single individual bird, but instead to find which species are breeding. A sample of possible sightings of breeding bird behavior which could be seen in almost any yard might include a begging fledgling American robin following an adult, northern cardinals feeding young in a nest in a shrub, or barn swallows attaching their mud nest to a beam in a carport."

Pope added that persons who don't volunteer for the fieldwork can still assist with the project in a variety of ways. Landowners are being asked to open their property to bird observers, and others are being asked to approach landowners to make such requests.

"For this atlas to be effective, it must be as comprehensive as possible," Pope explained. "Atlasing requires finding breeding birds in all habitats in a block. Some blocks contain significant acreage of public land; however, many do not. Because of this, access to privately owned land in any block would make a huge difference in the overall accuracy of this atlasing project."

Another way to participate is to pass along any sighting of breeding behavior to Pope, including backyard and neighborhood sightings as well as behavior observed during trips throughout the atlasing area. Those interested are asked to record the exact location of the observation, including the street and/or closest intersection, the date, and observer's name) and mail it to Fran Pope at 503 F St., Mtn. Lake Park, MD 21550.

Pope may reached for further information at 301-334-4908 (home) or 301-533-4326 (work), or via e-mail at fpope@gcnetmail-.net.

The atlasing study is being undertaken in cooperation with the U.S. Geological Survey's Patuxent Wildlife Research Center, the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, and other conservation groups. Financial contributions can be sent to MOS Treasurer, 8007 Martown Road, Laurel MD 20723.

"Atlasing the breeding birds of Maryland and the District of Columbia can be a rewarding experience and open up a new world, adding to your appreciation of birds," Balestri remarked. "You will not only have a chance to observe the similarities and differences that occur from one species to another but also to see, firsthand, activities that are truly unique. In addition to gathering scientific data, this project provides a unique opportunity for an individual to spend time outdoors and increase one's knowledge of a major aspect of bird behavior."

THE CHILDREN'S MIRACLE NETWORK, which provides free medical care to ill children in need, is $3,410.53 richer, thanks to the efforts of many Oakland Wal-Mart employees who conducted a raffle, and the generosity of over 65 local businesses which donated two shopping carts full of prizes. Each of the carts contained over $700 worth of merchandise. One of them was won by Trina Donoghue, Oakland, pictured above left with Wal-Mart employee Linda Meyers, who chaired the raffle. The other was won by young Tacoma Poling, pictured below with Meyers and his grandmother, Judy Henderson. Abby Buckley draw the winning tickets. Each of the winners had purchased only one ticket. The money has been donated to the Children's Miracle Network program at Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh.

IRIS

Rated R - Running Time: 1:30 - Released 12/14/01

I suppose the threat of Alzheimer's disease, a presently incurable illness which cripples the mind and erases the memory, usually during old age, is one of the primary fears of the senior generation, in the same way that, a few generations ago, tuberculosis, diphtheria, or polio would have borne the ominous specter of certain death to anyone who contracted it. The thought of "losing one's mind" is perhaps an even more emotionally paralyzing fate, especially for those who are especially thoughtful, who have benefited from being educated and well-read, than one with more physical pain. Richard Eyre's touching film Iris explores this scary and all too common scenario with grace and tenderness, telling the true story of noted British novelist and Oxford philosophy professor Iris Murdoch, whose love for words and freedom were brought to a gradual and tragic end when she contracted Alzheimer's late in life and lost all contact with her previous literary achievements and well-respected status.

There is not a slouch in this film, in front of or behind the camera. Starring in the title role is Judi Dench, one of the most underappreciated actresses today, and as usual, she does exquisite work, garnering an Oscar nomination (but not the award) for her efforts. Opposite her and no less eloquent is Jim Broadbent, who did win Best Supporting Actor for this role and rightly so. Dench's slip into madness, if you will, is gradual, subtle, and tragically unremarkable; it is made all the more believable by her understanding of the tiny but inevitable steps by which one makes such a descent. Broadbent, playing her well-educated but socially awkward partner, professor and writer John Bayley, forced to assume the uncomfortable role as the dominant partner, is beautiful in his unwillingness to accept the terrible obvious, and perhaps even more beautiful in his final acceptance of it.

Besides Dench and Broadbent, however, the performances of Kate Winslet and Hugh Bonneville (as Iris and John in their early years) deserve no less credit. The film skips back and forth between post-war and present-day England; it is, in fact, their performances which let us know how the couple's romance evolved and to what extent their life together was changed by its tragic outcome. Winslet and Bonneville seem to be doing studied and accomplished impersonations of the older actors, but their work is so much more than simply an imitation of Dench and Broadbent; Winslet gives Iris the kind of life she must have had as a young, brash philosopher in the 1940s, filled with revolutionary ideas and an adventurous love of life, sex, passion .. Bonneville's stuttering, nervous John, unsure of why he has captured such a wild beauty and of whether he is even worthy of her, and yet frustrated with her occasionally cavalier and insensitive treatment toward him, gives the role a depth that underpins Broadbent's complex characterization of the man later in life, with all the love, frustration, tenderness, and confusion that resulted from the intervening years' experiences.

This script, based on John Bayley's books Iris: A Memoir and Elegy for Iris, converted into a screenplay by director Eyre and Charles Wood, is eloquent and touching, but unafraid to show the occasional harshness of human nature and the stresses at work on people whose lives have been turned upside-down. "It doesn't matter what you say to her," John says at one point, "as long as you say it like you're telling a joke." The film's constant oscillation between the two time periods is as entertaining as it is enlightening, but it seems to rush the story somewhat, especially toward the end, when Iris seems to lose all her memory just a few months after publishing her final book. This is one of the few occasions when you'll see a critic say that a film would be helped by a longer running time. As I have said before, although the story may have really happened that way, sometimes a subtle alteration of the truth is necessary to make it more believable from a cinematic point of view.

Despite the shortness of the film, however, director Eyre does take the time for some dreamlike sequences of swimming and bike riding, to show the times Iris and John spent together and how their experiences evolved, and how her love for water often softened the pain of her illness. The R rating may scare away some potential viewers if they think the film contains objectionable material, but this is a mistake; it is there primarily because there is some minor nudity by Winslet, portraying Iris's early love for skinny-dipping. Don't let the rating scare you away: this film should be seen by everyone who can, especially those over 50 or those whose loves ones may be suffering from Alzheimer's disease, but also anyone who likes to witness the rare treasure such a collection of talent can produce. ★★★★★

THE SCORPION KING

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:29 - Released 4/19/02

Fans of 1999's The Mummy, in which Brendan Fraser cracked wise while battling a huge face of sand, thousands of scarab beetles, and various other impressive CGI effects, and of last summer's The Mummy Returns, where he had to fight a half man/half scorpion villain played by wrestling star Dwayne Johnson (a.k.a. The Rock), may be disappointed when they see Chuck Russell's The Scorpion King, which has very little to do with mummies, scorpions, cool effects, or Brendan Fraser. The Rock doesn't become a scorpion this time—he becomes Arnold Schwarzenegger. Adapting the skills he uses in his day job to the much more lucrative field of feature film, Johnson assumes the mantle of leading player, turning ancient Egypt into one long, costumed WWF match, except without the folding chairs. Director Russell, whose short resumé includes such hits as The Mask and such dreck as Bless The Child, crafts a serviceable but very run-of-the-mill action flick with no sand facials, no mummies, and no one turning into anything.

I suppose this would be categorized as a prequel, since it takes place many thousands of years before the ancient Egypt we (and Brendan Fraser) know and love. At this time in fabricated history, the people all live in various tribes headed up by various warlords, but they are all ruled by King Memnon (Steven Brand), a vicious monarch who governs his people in kinda the same way Hitler governed the Jews. But he is invincible in battle thanks to his trusted advisor, who can predict the future and therefore ensure Memnon's success in just about any battle. So the tribesmen decide to hire an outcast named Mathayus (Johnson) to assassinate the psychic. Trouble is, she turns out to be a fabulous babe named Cassandra (Kelly Hu) with no love for her king. To this scenario add a comic sidekick (Grant Heslov), an elderly inventor with the recipe for dynamite (Bernard Hill), and a big, tough dude whose only decent part ever was in another movie called The Green Mile (Michael Clarke Duncan), and you've got yourself an action flick.

It's not as if this film didn't have capable writers. The story was devised by Jonathan Hales, who, in addition to being one of the creators behind TV's Young Indiana Jones Chronicles also assisted George Lucas in writing the upcoming Star Wars episodes II and III, and Stephen Sommers, writer and director of both previous Mummy movies. And it was adapted into a screenplay by Sommers, David Hayter (X-Men), and William Osborne. The script borrows heavily from better films like Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon and The Green Mile, a fact which seems to emphasize that someone's running out of ideas. But, it's not the writing that makes this a so-so flick, it's the mediocre quality of talent. While The Rock looks good and obviously knows how to please the crowd, his acting ability makes his name seem all the more appropriate. ★★½

Rams Remain Perfect With Wins Over Alco And Westmar

Wins number eight and nine against no defeats were recorded this past week by the Southern High School varsity baseball team, as the Rams collected Western Maryland Interscholastic League victories over Allegany on Friday, 7-4, in Cumberland, and against visiting Westmar yesterday, 19-1.

The Rams found themselves in unfamiliar territory after three innings against Allegany last Friday — behind, 3-1. After a scoreless fourth frame, Southern erupted for five runs in the top of the fifth, assisted by some key Camper errors, to take the lead for good.

Southern's Bryson Meyers and Alco's Aaron Laffey both had good days on the mound for their teams, as each allowed only four hits in going the distance. Meyers struck out 11 batters and issued two walks, while Laffey fanned nine and walked three.

The Rams' five runs in the fifth were recorded on just two hits, as the Camper defense finished with six errors. Southern also did not have an outstanding day defensively, committing four errors.

Kevin Goraiski and Tobi Stoner each had two-run doubles for the Rams. The only two players who were able to connect off Meyers were Shane McDade and Laffey, who each provided two singles.

The win gave the Rams a regular-season sweep of the Campers, having defeated them last Wednesday, 14-4. The loss dropped Allegany to 6-3 overall and 3-2 in the WMIL.

The Westmar Wildcats were completely outmatched by the Rams yesterday, as the home team racked up 13 runs in the first inning.

Ricky Reams ripped two homers, one for three runs and the other for two, and finished with six RBI.

Also connecting for a three-run shot was Stoner, who also had a single and drove in four runs. Chad Panther finished with a double and two singles, Nathan Fitzwater and Joel Helbig each singled twice, and Brad Palmer stroked a solo homer. In all, the Rams finished with 16 hits.

Coach Jim Bosley seized the opportunity to rotate three pitchers into the contest, with Meyers, Bryan Hauser, and Dennis Tressler collectively allowing just four hits. Two of those hits were singles by Bobby Alkire.

The loss dropped the Wildcats to 6-6 overall and 4-3 in WMIL competition.

The Rams are scheduled to host Hampshire in an 11 a.m. game this Saturday, travel to Northern on Monday for a 4:45 p.m. clash, and entertain Keyser next Thursday.

SHS Jayvees Win Four More; Record Is 9-0

The junior varsity baseball team of Southern High School is following in the footsteps of the Ram varsity, as the younger Rams won four more games this past week to up their record to a perfect 9-0.

Southern rolled over Westmar last Thursday, 13-1 (no details reported), flattened visiting Bishop Walsh on Friday, 13-1, and won both ends of a doubleheader over host Frankfort on Saturday, 6-3 and 17-2.

Billy Reams led the Rams at the plate against Bishop Walsh, smacking two doubles and a single for five RBI, while Chad Everd recorded a double and a single, and Scott Wildesen hit two singles and scored twice.

Cory Bosley and Aaron Louden earned the win on the mound, combining on a three-hitter. Bosley pitched four innings, struck out five, and gave up the three hits. The game was called after five innings because of the 10-run rule.

Adam Sheetz accounted for the Spartans' only run by stroking an RBI double.

The Rams trailed Frankfort, 3-2, going into the seventh inning of the first game on Saturday, but that's when Tyler Graham rapped a bases-loaded triple and then scored on a bunt by Travis Friend to give pitcher Corey Burrell the win on the mound in relief.

Leading the Falcons offensively were Nathan Metz with a two-run RBI, and Brandon Buzzard and Brandon Weaver, who each hit a double and scored a run.

Everd racked up eight RBI in the second game for the Rams, which was called after five innings. He hit a pair of doubles and a single, and scored three times. Bosley also hit two doubles and scored three times, while Louden provided a pair of doubles. Reams hit a double and a single for three RBI, and Burrell also had a double and a single.

Reams and Louden combined on the mound for the victory, finishing with nine strike-outs.

Matt Miller hit a triple and a single for the Falcons, who dropped to 4-3 with the double loss.

Coach Tom Bosley's Rams were slated to play at home Tuesday against Northern, but that contest was postponed because of weather conditions. They are scheduled to host Allegany in a 2 p.m. doubleheader on Saturday, and entertain Westmar next Wednesday at 5 p.m.

Huskies Topple Maples, Caged By Wildcats, Hounded By Alco

The Northern High School varsity baseball team started the week off by taking its sixth straight victory this past Thursday with an 11-4 trimming of the visiting Mapletown Maples, but dropped its next two, by a 10-8 score to Westmar the following day and a nail-biting 6-5 loss at Allegany yesterday.

The two losses were both marked by strong three-run NHS rallies in the final inning, both of which fell just short of putting the Huskies over the top and into the win column. Northern's record is now 7-6.

The Huskies got a big day from Dan Vagnetti Thursday against Mapletown as the junior belted a two-run home run in the third inning to give Northern a 3-1 lead, then he ripped a two-run double to highlight a six-run NHS sixth inning. That big stanza broke a 3-all deadlock and made the score 9-3 in favor of the hosts. Mapletown scored once in the top of the sixth and NHS answered with two more runs in the bottom of the stanza to account for the Huskies' seven-run win.

Northern's sixth-inning flurry came after the Huskies filled the bases on walks drawn by Derek Workman and Danny Ellis, followed by a one-out Chad Carr single. The struggling Maples' pitcher then issued consecutive walks to Cliff Everett and Torrey Poholsky, forcing home a pair of runs and setting the stage for Vagnetti's two-run double. Jason Rice capped the fireworks with a two-run single. NHS totaled 10 hits on the day to the guests' six.

Bryan Lenhart tossed the first four and 1/3 innings for the Huskies before Rice was called in for relief duty. Rice trimmed the Maples' bats by striking out six batters among the eight outs garnered during his mound tenure, and was credited with the win.

It took a big Westmar rally over the last two innings of Friday's outing to break the six-game winning streak Northern had carried into the contest.

Northern broke out of the box early to snag a 3-0 lead in the first inning, but the Wildcats clawed back into a tie by scoring twice in the fourth and once in the fifth.

Lenhart cracked a two-run homer in the bottom of the fifth to put NHS up by two, but the guests took advantage of a pair of sixth-inning Northern errors to score five times and begin to salt the win away. NHS looked to be staging a miracle comeback in the bottom of the seventh when Greg Whittemore launched a clutch two-run homer to pull the Huskies to within two runs, but the hosts ran out of inning and fell short.

NHS recorded eight hits during the contest, including Lenhart's and Whittemore's round-trippers and a pair of singles each by Trey Brenneman and Poholsky. All four of those batters drove home two runs apiece to account for all of Northern's scores.

Whittemore threw the first five innings for the Huskies before giving way to Poholsky in the sixth.

Yesterday at Allegany the Huskies put their fans and coaches through another stress test, as they scored three runs in the bottom of the final stanza for the second straight game in another losing effort.

Northern got off to a good start with a two-run first, but Alco eventually knotted the score at 2-all with single runs in the first and third innings. The dam broke in the bottom of the fourth when the Campers unleashed a four-run torrent to go up 6-2. The silver lining of an otherwise dark day for the Huskies had to be the seventh stanza, as the visitors refused to go down without a fight, tallying three scores to pull to within one run before running out of inning.

NHS's offense recorded five hits during the contest, two of those singles by Poholsky. Whittemore worked the first three innings before Poholsky relieved him in the fourth. Alco totaled 10 hits for the day.

Ashley Liller Top Scorer For Md. All-Stars

Southern High School standout and Area Player of the Year Ashley Liller recorded a game-high 27 points for the Western Maryland All-Stars in the 22nd annual McDonald's/Frostburg Lion All-Star game played at Frostburg State University on Saturday; however, it was not enough for her team, as the West Virginia All-Stars prevailed, 92-79.

Meanwhile, Southern's Chad Panther, also an All-Area honoree, reached double figures for the Western Maryland All-Star boys' team with 12 points, but the West Virginia All-Stars won the game, 106-89.

Liller, who was named the Maryland MVP, hit eight field goals and 11 of 15 attempts from the foul line. Panther's points came on six field goals.

Southern's Ricky Reams also played, as did Northern High's Josh Swandol, who contributed three points. Northern's Bridget Frazee netted two points for the Maryland girls.

The West Virginia boys were led by Matt Delawder and J.R. Saunders with 23 points each. Other Maryland players who reached double figures besides Panther were Josh Repac with 18 and Zack Alkire with 12.

The West Virginia girls were paced by Ericka Kuykendall with 19 points. Also reaching double figures for the Western Maryland girls was Jessica Smith with 12 points.

GCC Lakers Get By Essex With Nine-Run, Seventh-Inning Rally

"It ain't over 'til it's over," stated famous player/manager Yogi Berra, and that fact was proven once again last Friday by the Garrett Community College baseball team, as the Lakers went into the top of the final inning against host Essex CC trailing 7-0, and proceeded to put nine runs on the board to record a 9-7 win.

P.J. Ross led off the top of the seventh with a single, and Joe Carper and Jeff Straface loaded the bases by each drawing walks. Ross then scored on a passed ball, and Carper came home on a sacrifice fly by Josh Bosley. Joe Walker then walked, and Ryan Wetzel followed with a double that plated Straface. Dean Altavilla reloaded the bases by drawing a walk, and James Fun was hit by a pitch to bring home Walker and close the gap to 7-4.

Brian Rockwell then reached on an error, which scored Wetzel and Altavilla. Ross and Carper followed with singles to plate Rockwell and tie the score at 7-7.

Ross and Carper then scored what would be the winning runs.

Essex utilized four pitchers in the seventh inning.

The win improved the Lakers' record to 8-16. Several other scheduled games this past week had to be postponed because of weather conditions. They are slated to play a doubleheader against the junior varsity of Marietta College today in Ohio, host Germantown for a twinbill on Saturday, and entertain Harford on Sunday in another doubleheader.

SHS Leaves Little Standing In Wins Over Marion, Keyser

Like "Old Man River," the Southern High School varsity softball team just keeps rolling along, as the Rams used a torrent of runs and superb pitching this week to up their area-leading record to 12-1. SHS thumped North Marion 8-0 Friday before taking the wind out of Keyser's Golden Tornado yesterday by a 12-2 margin, while scheduled contests against Beall and Northern were canceled because of the wet weather.

With SHS's offense racking up runs seemingly at will, it would have been easy for its pitching staff to ease up, but "ease up" is not in the vocabulary of a Rams' squad seeking to repeat as state champs, as evidenced by the superb moundwork of cousins Jennifer Bosley and Ashley Liller.

The Rams' performance Friday likely gave the coaches of potential playoff opponents insomnia over this past weekend. Southern ace Bosley was a human flamethrower, hurling seven complete innings for a 20-strikeout no-hitter, and one batter separated her from recording every out via strikeout.

The overpowering right-hander whiffed 17 straight batters before a North Marion player got just enough stick on the ball to dink out a groundout at the end of the sixth inning. Another twist of fate kept Bosley from achieving the second perfect game of her SHS career, as a Ram error allowed one batter to reach base.

The Rams recorded eight runs on eight hits, scoring twice in the third, five times in the fifth, and once in the sixth. Bosley led the way at the plate by turning in a 2-for-3 performance with a double and an RBI single. Autumn Uphold cracked a pair of singles, and Ashley Liller and Jenna Rush each tallied RBI singles.

It was Liller's turn yesterday against Keyser, and the senior responded with a three-hit win over the visiting Tornado. She struck out five batters and issued six walks during her five-inning, complete-game triumph.

Catcher Gina Reeves sparked the Rams' 12-hit offensive tally by cranking out a double and two singles for three RBI, while Liller doubled and singled, driving home one run, and outfielder Megan Burner stroked a pair of singles. SHS scored twice in the first and once in the third, before exploding for a four-run fourth inning and a five-run fifth. Both of Keyser's runs came in the fourth stanza.

The Rams have a bit of a breather over the next few days, as their whirlwind schedule of recent weeks simmers down to just two home contests. Northern visits Oakland on Tuesday for a 4:30 p.m. battle (rescheduled from a rainout this past Tuesday), and a rematch with Keyser follows the next afternoon at 4:30 p.m.

Lady Golfers Meet To Open 2002 Season

The Ladies Golf Association of the Oakland Golf Club held its spring luncheon and first meeting of the 2002 season on April 18 at the golf club. President Karon Schnably welcomed the returning members and introduced four new members: Kathy Refosco, Debby Raynovich, Joan Johnson, and Patty Bobo.

Gordon Stetz, Oakland Golf Clnb president, Jay Myers, superintendent of grounds, and Pat Warren, Oakland golf pro, spoke briefly during the social hour about changes which are now in place for the 2002 season.

A short business meeting followed the lunch, which was served in the dining room. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Jane Frawley, in the absence of the secretary, Carolyn Deverse. Sherry Grant gave the treasurer's report, and Janice Metheny, chairman of Thursday's play, explained the different games and tournament rules which will govern the Women's Golf Association this season.

Handbooks were distributed to all members present, and pictures were taken by Marion Boehmer, club photographer.

Arsenal U-12 Boys Win First Match Of 2002

The under-12 boys' team of Arsenal Football Associates won its first soccer match of the 2002 spring season in the second weekend of play by rolling over Petersburg, 8-2. Michael Rosecky and Alec Holloway led the local team by recording a hat trick apiece, while Andrew McCreery and Frank Moravetz scored one goal each. A.J. Storck had an assist.

Rhett Rhodes turned away 11 shots on goal for Arsenal, and Royce Warnick had one save.

The Arsenal boys dropped their first match of the day to Hampshire, and were scoreless. Warnick had nine saves.

The Arsenal under-18 girls, playing shorthanded, finished with a scoreless draw against Hampshire. Alasha Rush had seven saves. The second match was called because of inclement weather.

The under-12 boys' and the Arsenal girls' teams will play at home this weekend, with matches set for inside the track at Southern High School.

NHS Swats Hornets Before Weather Shuts Down Week

The wet weather wreaked havoc on the Northern High School varsity softball team's schedule this week, but not before the Huskies took their second win of the season with a 6-4 triumph at Hyndman this past Thursday. A doubleheader against Preston was rained out Saturday, as was Tuesday's road game at Southern. NHS's record is now 2-6.

Northern exploded for a 5-2 lead after the first three full innings of play at Hyndman, racking up three runs in the first and two in the second. Hyndman scored lone runs in the first and third innings. NHS padded its lead to four with one run in the top of the fourth, and the Hornets scored twice in the bottom of the stanza to account for the 6-4 final.

The Huskies' batters ripped Hyndman's pitching for 14 hits. Lyndsi Butler went three-for-three, all singles, and Amanda Frantz three-for-four with three singles. Jolene Brenneman ripped a double and a single, and Brooke Butler punched out a pair of singles.

Valene Snyder hurled the seven-inning, complete-game win for NHS, giving up eight hits along the way. Her effort could have used a little more support from her defense, as NHS's fielders committed four errors overall.

The Huskies host Westmar this afternoon in a 4:30 p.m. showdown, travel to Salisbury tomorrow, then return home play Fort Hill Monday at 4:30 p.m. The NHS/SHS showdown has been rescheduled for Tuesday at Southern, and will get under way at 4:30 p.m.

Rams, Huskies Compete In WMIL Track, Field Meet

The track and field teams of Southern and Northern high schools competed in the annual Western Maryland Interscholastic League championships at Beall High School in Frostburg on Tuesday. The best finish by a Garrett County team was that of the Southern girls, who just missed placing second as a team. The Rams amassed 133 points, while Fort Hill won easily with 192 and host Beall edged out the Rams for second place with 135 points.

Allegany was a distant third with 39 points, followed by Northern with 20 and Westmar with 18.

Fort Hill also dominated the boys' events, recording 209.5 points. Allegany placed second with 137.5, followed by Beall with 96.5, Southern with 90.5, and Northern with 18.

The Southern girls' 800 and 400 relay teams, both consisting of Miriam Sincell, Brittney Friend, Eileen Mouyard, and Robbin Gregg, captured first places with respective times of 1:56.2 and 54.7 seconds. Other individual first places were earned by Jennifer Hickman in the 100 hurdles with a time of 17.5 seconds, and Laura Preston in the triple jump with a distance of 30'3.5".

Hickman also placed third in both the 300 hurdles and the long jump. Garnering second places for the Rams were Melissa Durst in the 400 dash, and Justine Pagenhardt, who tied for second in the high jump. The 1,600 and 3,200 relay teams also finished second.

Recording most of Northern's points were the 400 and 800 relay teams, which both placed third.

The Southern boys finished with first places in the long and high jumps, with Bill Schmidl winning the long jump with a distance of 18'5", and Matt Stephens taking first in the high jump with a height of 6'.

Stephens was also second in the long jump, triple jump, and 110 high hurdles. Also finishing second were Southern's 400 and 800 relay teams. Chris Lantz took a third place in the 300 hurdles.

The Rams and Huskies also competed against each other last Thursday at Northern in the annual Garrett County championships. The Southern boys and girls dominated the event, but specific results were not reported.

The Rams are scheduled to host the Huskies, as well as Allegany and Union high schools, in a quadrangular meet this afternoon, beginning at 4 p.m. The Southern and Northern boys will vie in the boys' Area Meet next Tuesday at Beall, and the girls' teams from both schools will compete in the girls' Area Meet, also hosted by Beall, on Wednesday.

Husky Netters Roll Over FH, Bag Falcons With 7-0 Sweep

The year is unfolding for the Northern High School tennis team just as Coach Linda Wengerd had hoped from the outset, as the Huskies have run their record up to 6-1 and are the odds-on favorite to take the regional title. NHS took two homecourt matches this week, starting with a 5-2 victory over Fort Hill Tuesday before sweeping Frankfort 7-0 sweep yesterday.

Tuesday's match saw the Huskies run away from the visiting Sentinels, as No. 1 and No. 2 seeds Heather Lander and Ashley Robinson opened with respective 8-4, 8-1 triumphs over their singles opponents. FH took the third seed match before Northern roared back decisively with consecutive 8-1 victories recorded by No. 4 seed Amber Weimer and No. 5 seed Rachel Bruch.

Northern's top-seeded doubles team got off on the wrong foot in its match by dropping an 8-2 match, but the No. 2 Husky tandem of Nicole Sisler and Jennifer Lowdermilk swept their way to an 8-0 victory.

The Huskies put on a clinic yesterday against Frankfort, sweeping their way through all five singles and both doubles matches with ease. Landers's 8-3 opening match rout set the tone for the day, as successive play saw Robinson cruise to an 8-1 win, Flockhart net an 8-3 triumph, Weimer sail to an 8-1 victory, and Bruch demolish her opponent 8-2.

Doubles play was much the same; Lauder/Robinson teamed to run away from their counterparts by an 8-1 tally, then Sisler/Lowdermilk crushed their opponents 8-0.

Northern is slated to host Beall tomorrow in a 4 p.m. match, then a road match at Bishop Walsh will take place Monday.

Area Netters Have Busy Week For FSU Squad

Garrett County was well-represented on the local college tennis circuit this week, as Southern High School graduate Justin Stephens and Northern High alum David Butler both took to the court for their Frostburg State University men's squad. Mike Pamepinto, a third county native who graduated from Southern High, played for Waynesburg College in a match against the Bobcat netters on Monday.

The week's action opened with the Allegheny Mountain Collegiate Conference (AMCC) tournament, played Saturday in Rawlings. Penn State Altoona took the conference championship with 21 team points, Penn State Behrend recorded 15 points, defending champion FSU had 12 points, Pitt Greensburg netted two points, and Lake Erie failed to record a single point.

Stephens fell in a No. 1 singles match to Altoona's David Bruno, by a 7-5, 6-3 tally. In fourth-seed singles play, Altoona's Yannick Riveti downed Butler 6-4,6-1. Doubles competition featured a top seed match-up between FSU's Stephens/Terrence Killen vs. Altoona's Bruno/Scott Kowalcski, and the Bobcat tandem fell by an 8-5 margin.

Monday's outing at Waynesburg saw Stephens get back into the win column with a 6-3, 6-2 triumph over the hosts' Eric Kaluza in top seed singles competition. Pamepinto fell to the Bobcats' Killen in No. 2 seed play 6-1, 6-1, and Waynesburg's Mike Gates downed Butler in a fourth seed match 7-5, 7-5.

Doubles play kicked off with Waynesburg's top-seeded duo of Pamepinto/Kaluza defeating FSU's Stephens/Killen team 8-6. In second seed play, Waynesburg's tandem of Gates/Guillermo Pradera downed Butler/Sean Shillinger 9-7.

The Frostburg men's tennis team is slated to visit Bethany College this afternoon.

Remember The Titans' Coaches To Speak At FSU

A presentation by the former high school football coaches who helped inspire the hit movie Remember the Titans is set for 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 29, at Frostburg State University. The free event, which is open to the public, will take place in the Lane University Center's Alice R. Manicur Assembly Hall.

Herman Boone and Bill Yoast coached the Titans varsity football team in 1971, when racial tensions were running high in the city of Alexandria, Va., the year three rival city schools were consolidated to form T.C. Williams High School. The consolidation process was made even more difficult because the respective schools were being racially integrated into one school.

After many tumultuous months, Boone and Yoast were able to put aside their personal differences and force their players to unify by establishing common goals and visions. Both men brought the school and community together at a volatile time when race relations were frayed. United by their coaches' dedication and example, the Titans went on to compile a perfect 13-0 record and claim the 1971 Virginia state high school football championship.

For more information on this speakers' event, persons may contact the FSU CAB Office at 301-687-4192.

State Approves New Short-Term Fishing License

Anglers from other states who are interested in fishing Maryland's waters will soon have the opportunity to purchase a short-term fishing license. The Maryland General Assembly approved the new licenses this month, and they will go on sale June 1.

The legislation establishes a non-resident, short-term fishing license valid for three days and sets a fee of $5 or a fee equal to the fee charged by a Maryland resident by the non-resident's home state for a similar license. Previously, anglers from certain states such as Pennsylvania that did not issue non-resident short-term licenses of their own were forced to purchase an annual out-of-state license to fish in Maryland, even if only for a few days.

The House bill was co-sponsored by Del. George Edwards. DNR lobbied for the change by releasing a study that estimated 3,000 non-residents will be purchasing the new three-day licenses. Based on that estimate, DNR projects that special fund revenues generated by license sales will increase by $13,500 annually during the first full year the licenses are available.

For further information, persons may contact the Western Region Fisheries Service office in Cumberland at 301-777-2349.

Railey said the people in Tokyo were friendly and helpful.

"The city seemed to stretch in every direction," she said. "I felt very safe everywhere we went." The group traveled to Old Tokyo, the fish market, temples, museums, took a hike near Mt. Fugi, went to the zoo, and took a ride on the largest Ferris wheel in the world.

Railey is a member of the Garrett County Sport-aerobic Team, a sophomore at Northern High School, and the daughter of Nancy and Jimmy Railey. For more information about the trip and the competition, persons may visit the team's web site at www.sportaerobies.org.

"BOOMER" GOES WITH RAILEY ON JAPANESE TOUR — First-graders at Broad Ford Elementary School will be getting a detailed account of athlete Jessie Railey's experiences in Japan at the recent Suzuki World Cup sportaerobics competition. Boomer, pictured above held by Railey, is a Beanie Baby™ that went along on the journey as part of a school project. The first grade teachers at Broad Ford developed the idea to send the mascot with various Garrett Countians who take trips or who may meet interesting people. As Boomer goes along on trips, his hosts keep a journal and take pictures of their adventures. When Boomer returns, the children read about the experience and learn facts about people and locations around the country and the world. "It was so much fun taking Boomer everywhere we want," Coach Broenihan said. "He was a great way to meet people and take interesting pictures. We are putting all of Boomer's pictures on our team web site so all the school children can view his adventures, she said. The web site can be found at www.sportaerobics.org.

TWO SPORTAEROBIC STARS — Jessie Railey, sport-aerobic athlete, is pictured above with the only boy she did not defeat in the Suzuki World Cup competition in Japan. Eiici Ohmura of Japan, the 2001 Boys Varsity World Champion, inched past her in the contest. He was the object of much puble attention throughout the competition, with television crews following his every step. Railey said she is looking forward to the next Suzuki contest in which the boys and girls are apparently supposed to be separated for competition.

As he learned to play the banjo and guitar he added American folk songs to his repertoire. In performances now he accompanies his baritone voice with these instruments and the bodhran, harmonica, and whistle.

He has performed at numerous folk festivals and concerts throughout the United States, Canada, and Britain, has appeared on Canadian television shows, and has recorded his music on Capital Records of Canada, London Records, Nesak International, and Music Minus One. He is currently recording for his own company, Darach Recordings, and is looking to the music video market.

Social Security Cast Noted; Run Dates Announced

The cast for Our Town Theatre's production of Andrew Bergman's play Social Security has been announced. The show will be presented at Our Town Theatre on May 22-25 at 8 p.m. and May 26 at 2 p.m.

The cast members are as follows: Susan Rushing Bell as Barbara, David Tuel as her husband David, Lane Duda as Martin, Mary Sincell McEwen as his wife Trudy, Deirdre Kildow as Sophie, and Fred Jacoby as Maurice.

Jane Avery is directing the show, and the stage manager is Venessa Stacy. Erin White is the lighting designer and John Wildesen is designing the set.

The play is an adult comedy, suitable only for those over 18, Avery said.

"It's a delightful, hilarious romp involving lots of family awkwardness and love affairs," Avery said. "We are stressing that some of the subject matter is definitely for adults only."

Tickets, which are all $5, may be reserved by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640.

Valley Ridge To Host Sang Run Saturday

The Irish music group Sang Run will be bringing its own brand of Celtic roots music and traditional dancing tunes to Valley Ridge Theatre in Thomas, W.Va., this Saturday, April 27. The band will take the stage at 7 p.m. at Valley Ridge's primary performance space along Front Street in Thomas. This event is one of the many arts events held by Valley Ridge this year to promote arts activity in the Tucker County area.

Formed in 1997, Sang Run quickly evolved from its "old-time" music origins to focus on even more ancient Celtic roots. Initially relying on an instrumental core of fiddle, Irish flute, guitar, and African and Irish hand drums, the group has picked up new talent along the way and now features the acclaimed vocals of Jose Pimienta-Bey and Jennifer Osha.

Over the years, Sang Run's line-up has changed and grown to include many talented artists of various backgrounds. Mike Broderick, on fiddle, is the founder, director, and creative force behind the band. He has a master's degree in piano performance from the University of Nebraska, and lives in Aurora.

Alice Fleischman, on Irish flute and whistles, played classical music with woodwind trios and smaller chamber music ensembles for many years before laying down the concert C flute in favor of the wooden Irish D flute five years ago. She also lives in Aurora.

Jeff Gilbert, on guitar and mandolin, is known around western Maryland for his contributions over the years to local rock, blues, and soul bands, before joining Sang Run. He resides in Mtn. Lake Park.

Percussionist Fred Jacoby adds the rhythmic sound to all of Sang Run's tunes. He has played in numerous other bands over the years, and lives near Loch Lynn.

Jose Pimienta-Bey, who provides guitar and vocals to the band, is an experienced singer and songwriter who has focused mainly on Irish ballads and folksong since joining the band two years ago. He cutrently resides in Morgantown, where he is professor of history at West Virginia University.

The most recent addition to Sang Run is Jennifer Osha on piano, whistle, and vocals. She brings with her a varied musical background and the punch of traditional Irish style piano accompaniment, as well as her voice. She is currently living in Aurora.

In recent years, the band has performed at numerous events, including the Cheat River Festival, the Garrett County Highland Festival, and the Cumberland Celtic Festival. Sang Run also provides educational music performances to Elderhostel groups and schools.

For more information about this, or any other event at Valley Ridge Theatre, persons may call 304-463-3365.

Iman Named

[the] freedom to provide a higher level of service to the citizens of Garrett and Allegany counties in other more critical and sensitive areas."

As an active member of the Volunteer in Police Support (VIPS) program, Iman performs a variety of duties for the MSP at the McHenry barrack — and on an as-needed basis for the MSP's LaVale barrack — as well as for the Natural Resources Police and the State Fire Marshal's Office, both of which are also housed at Barrack W.

Iman assists in crime prevention and community education programs by performing many non-enforcement tasks, according to Resh. Some of those tasks include fingerprinting, processing and logging court documents, compiling and reporting statistical data, moving equipment and departmental mail to various areas of the state as needed, and acting as a liaison with many of the town councils and mayors in Garrett County by arranging meetings.

Iman has logged over 10,000 hours of volunteer service to the MSP since joining the VIPS program, performing 1,403 of those hours during 2000 alone. Based on the current minimum wage figure of $5.15 per hour, he has donated approximately $52,000 in labor to the state over the past decade.

The son of a mine superintendent, Iman was born in 1917 in Thomas, W.Va., to Agnes Mae and Walter Carl Iman. His family moved to Kempton within a year, then Oakland, Vindex, and Kitzmiller. He graduated from Kitzmiller High School in 1933, and married Alyce Hartley seven years later.

Iman was accepted by the Maryland State Police Academy in 1942, but received his draft notice from the U.S. Army Air Corps before his academy training class convened. During his 3½ years of World War II service as a co-pilot of C-47 transport planes, he was stationed in England, Algeria, Tunisia, Sicily, Italy, and France, rising to the rank of chief warrant officer.

Iman returned home to his wife after the war ended, anticipating to resume his dream of becoming an MSP trooper; however, Alyce, who as an infant had lost her father after an accident in a Kitzmiller area coal mine, discouraged his notion of seeking what she considered a perilous career. Iman yielded to her wishes and dismissed the aspiration, eventually establishing and operating the Deep Creek Oil Company until his retirement. He served his community as a member of the Kitzmiller Volunteer Fire Department for over 50 years, and held the chief's position for over a decade.

Alyce Iman passed away in 1987 after 47 years of marriage, with Gerald caring for his bed-ridden wife at home during the final weeks of her life. Upon Alyce's death, his thoughts began to return to serving his community with the state police, and he joined the McHenry barrack's VIPS program three years later at the age of 73.

"Much more [important] than his voluntary contributions, however is the way Mr. Iman has contributed by example," stated Resh. "He continues to contribute daily to the Maryland State Police, and exhibits no sign of slowing down. His example for living has been an encouragement for all who know him."

Trail Projects

Chesapeake Beach in Calvert County to build the trailheads off the Chesapeake Beach Rail Trail. According the Governor's Press Office, "this seed" would provide the first funding for a proposed trail that would connect the Washington, D.C., region to southern Maryland.

The trail would run along the rail line of the historic Chesapeake Beach Railway. The 28-mile trail ultimately would connect to transit communities, businesses, and parks in Prince George's, Anne Arundel, and Calvert counties, as well as link to other existing trails.

Other trails that received grants range from the new Cross Island Trail on Kent Island to the Western Maryland Rail Trail in Hancock.

In Loving Memory of

on his birthday, April 27.

We thought of you with love today
But that was nothing new.
It doesn't have to be your birthday
For us to recall having beautiful memories with you.

What a difference a day makes in the lives of the ones who love you.
If we could only change the course of time,
or the route we take in life,
We would have been there with you,
if we had only known.

You bid no one a last farewell
nor even said goodbye.
You were gone before we knew it and only God knows why.
Gone are the days we spent together
But deep in our hearts you will always be.
The gates of our memory will never close.
Life goes on, it's true we know
But it hasn't been the same since the day we lost you.

Hickory Center Receives Tree Trust Grant

The National Tree Trust (NTT) has awarded Hickory Environmental Education Center, north of Accident, with a 2002 Community Tree Planting Grant. The grant will enable 100 Allegheny serviceberry tree seedlings to be planted at all Garrett County schools.

"As the trees grow, they will continually provide environmental and social benefits to the school sites," said a spokesperson for the Hickory Center.

The Allegheny, or smooth, serviceberry is quite showy in early spring when its clusters of snow-white flowers are often produced in abundance. South of Garrett County, the berries ripen about June, and it may be August before they ripen in the northern part of the tree's range. Reportedly, serviceberries were among the preferred wild fruit of American Indians. Wild birds — including ruffed grouse — as well as white-tailed deer, raccoons, opossums, and foxes eat the berries.

The NTT is a nonprofit organization committed to helping people work together to improve their local communities through tree planting and education. Some of the trees to be planted were purchased by NTT, and some were donated by the organization's forest product company partners, according to the spokesperson.

Forum Slated To Increase Funding For Alzheimer's

Later this month, local Alzheimer advocates from the western Maryland region will join hundreds of families from across the country for the Alzheimer's Association's annual Public Policy Forum in Washington, D.C. Participants in the forum, April 28-30, will urge Congress and the president to make conquering Alzheimer's disease a key federal health priority and increase Alzheimer research funding at the National Institutes of Health from its current level of $589.9 million to $1 billion annually.

Today, an estimated 4 million Americans have Alzheimer's disease. One in every 10 persons over age 65 and nearly half of those over 85 have the disease. According to Joyce A. Heptner, executive director of the Alzheimer's Association, Western Maryland Chapter, an Alzheimer epidemic will hit the United States by the middle of this century, when as many as 14 million of today's baby boomers will develop Alzheimer's. "For most of them, the process that will eventually destroy their memories, their lives and their savings has already begun," Heptner said.

Currently in western Maryland, approximately 8,700 people are living with Alzheimer's. The numbers will continue to soar after 2025 as the baby boomers age.

"Our convergence on Washington is a call to our nation's leadership to harness its resources — both public and private — to conquer Alzheimer's disease much as we have mobilized against cancer, heart disease and AIDS," said Heptner. "We all cheat our children and grandchildren if we save them from these other diseases only to condemn them to spending their last years in the labyrinth of Alzheimer's."

According to medical experts, the steady investment that Congress has made in Alzheimer research over the past 20 years has brought it to a point where effective treatment and prevention of the disabling impact of the disease is within reach.

"A solid research infrastructure is in place. The paths for further investigation are clear. The missing ingredient is the financial commitment needed to realize the scientific opportunities before us," said Stephen McConnell, interim president of the national Alzheimer's Association. "Continued infusion of funds from the National Institutes of Health will maintain the existing infrastructure and continue the momentum of current research efforts."

With the support of local families, the Alzheimer's Association will urge Congress and the president to appropriate an additional $200 million in fiscal 2003 for Alzheimer research across the National Institutes of Health, and reiterate the association's $1 billion goal in total funding by fiscal year 2004. The association identifies the following priorities for use of the funds:

- Additional clinical trials to validate results and to test new targets for early intervention and prevention of Alzheimer's disease, with emphasis on diverse populations and testing variability of treatments by race and ethnicity.
- Expanded support for the Alzheimer's Disease Center program to maintain the research infrastructure for laboratory, clinical and epidemiological studies of Alzheimer's disease and to facilitate collaboration among academic health centers to realize results as rapidly and efficiently as possible.
- A major collaborative initiative at NIH to discover the mechanisms that link vascular disease and Alzheimer's disease and to fund large-scale clinical trials to determine whether drugs developed to prevent cerebrovascular disease can also prevent the clinical expression of Alzheimer's disease.
- Establish and fund a program through the Centers for Disease Control to help translate research results to public health practice and to develop a system to accurately report the incidence and prevalence of Alzheimer's disease.
- Through agencies responsible for health services research, fund clinical research on the treatment and management of Alzheimer's disease to demonstrate cost-effective delivery of chronic care and disease management for persons with dementia and to develop appropriate outcome measures for Alzheimer care and treatment.
- A continued commitment to basic scientific research, including the study of genes associated with Alzheimer's disease, biological markers, disease mechanisms, and animal markers.

For additional information, contact the national Alzheimer's Association at 800-272-3900 or at www.alz.org.

There will be a national press conference on Tuesday, April 30, at 10:30 a.m., following a Senate hearing on Alzheimer's disease. Key speakers, including David Hyde Pierce, will answer questions from the media. The findings from a new national poll about Alzheimer's and what Congress ought to do to address it will be released at that time.

IN A NUTSHELL

Serviceberry, shadbush or "sarvis" — same tree/shrub. Sarvis is a derivative of the word "service." The name "service" was given to the genus in Colonial times because many people who died during the winter were buried without funeral services. Then in the spring, the circuit rider came around and said services for all the deceased at about the same time that the sarvis bloomed.

Sarvis seedlings were given to each elementary school this past week. Through a grant Hickory received these seedlings from the National Tree Trust Program.

Don't hold your breath for a Golden reunion

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Estelle Getty

Q: I've heard there may be a TV reunion for the cast of The Golden Girls. Any word when that will be? –Dave Lee, Marietta, Ga.

A: When pigs fly, according to someone very, very close to that NBC sitcom. At 78, Estelle Getty (Sophia) is battling Parkinson's disease, which makes her participation risky at best. Close friends Rue McClanahan (Blanche) and Betty White (Rose) probably would be game for the project, but Beatrice Arthur – the first cast member to depart the show – isn't said to be interested, preferring to work alone on such projects as her current one-woman Broadway show.

Q: The new Gorton's Seafood fisherman in the TV commercials looks very familiar. Who is he? –Mrs. B.J. Helm, Detroit, Mich.

A: That's Denny Miller, now 68, a former movie Tarzan and star of such TV series as Wagon Train and Mona McCluskey, the latter a sitcom with Juliet Prowse.

Q: Thanks to TV Land, we recently saw a Maverick episode called "Three Queens Full" that held a lot of similarities to Bonanza. Jim Backus played the patriarch of the Wheelright family, with three sons: Henry (dressed in black), Moose (large, with ten-gallon hat) and "Small Paul" (leather vest and curly hair). This can't be a coincidence, but was it spoof or inspiration? –Dave and Carol Brady, York, Pa.

A: Thanks for a great question! Premiering in 1957, ABC's Maverick may have beat NBC's Bonanza (1959) onto the airwaves, but by the time "Three Queens Full" aired on Nov. 12, 1961 – part of the last season of Maverick – the Cartwrights of the Ponderosa were sitting near the top of the Nielsen ratings, with roughly a third of the nation's TV viewers loyally tuning in each week.

Maverick always was slightly ahead of its time with its sly wit, and this parody episode was just a tip of the hat to a phenomenal TV hit that would run for more than another decade.

Q: Whatever happened to actresses Elizabeth Hartman (A Patch of Blue) and Dana Hill (National Lampoon's European Vacation)? –Suzy via e-mail.

A: I'm afraid I have sad news in both cases. Hartman never had the kind of career her early breakout roles seemed to promise and, on June 10, 1987, she committed suicide by leaping from her apartment window in Pittsburgh. She was 43.

Another promising young actress, Hill was a diabetic who suffered a fatal stroke in 1996 at age 32.

Drunk-Driving Bills Dumped By Legislature

by Tim Keefe
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Lt. Gov. Kathleen Kennedy Townsend sent a stern message to drunken drivers earlier this year: "If you think you can tempt fate, we're going to get you."

Yet, despite support from House Speaker Casper R. Taylor Jr., D-Allegany, state police, and legislative leaders, many components of a hefty drunken-driving package were killed in committee, and most that passed were watered down and pushed through because significant federal funds were on the line.

Efforts to "change the culture" of drunken driving in Maryland by stiffening penalties have foundered in the General Assembly the last three years, while the number of alcohol-related fatalities on the state's highways has risen. There were 225 alcohol-related deaths on the state's highways in 2000, 202 in 1999, and from 1998 to 1999, drunken-driving deaths increased 26 percent, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Townsend and some legislators urged tougher laws this session to prevent "falling behind" in the battle against drunken driving, but the House Judiciary Committee again impeded the measures.

The committee, laden with conservative lawyers and led by Delegate Joseph F. Vallario Jr., D-Prince George's, is well-known for annually killing most drunken-driving bills. The panel gave the legislation another cool reception this year, but did pass two priority bills to salvage $15 million in federal funds for state highway construction.

Congress passed legislation in 2000 restricting federal highway funding unless states passed new drunken-driving measures that strengthen penalties on repeat offenders and ban open containers of alcohol in cars. The money could be used for highway safety programs, but not for construction.

Vallario's committee amended the open-container bill to make it a civil, rather than criminal, offense. The committee also reduced the fine from $500 to $25, with no points for a driver that could lead to a license suspension or higher insurance premiums.

Supporters made the best of the move.

"The open-container legislation made an important statement that it's not acceptable in Maryland to drive with one hand on the wheel and one hand on the bottle," Townsend said. "It is a good step, but not the final step."

Backers of tough drunken-driving measures outwardly expressed perfunctory gratitude to the committee for "putting something on the books." But when pressed, they complained of the committee's "gutting" amendments and its continued resistance to pass substantive legislation.

Sen. Jennie M. Forehand, D-Montgomery, sponsor of the open container bill, called the $25 fine "pitiful," but added, "any kind of penalty sends a message, and the message has to get out."

Others were not as diplomatic.

"It's a slap in the face to victims," said Wendy J. Hamilton, national president-elect of Mothers Against Drunk Driving. "We're glad they passed the bill, but [the fine] is a joke."

Opponents argued that responsible drivers would too often be victimized, and the bill unnecessarily infringed on the freedom of

Collecting

by Larry Cox

Bicycle collectors generally fall into one of three main groups. Some are drawn to early bicycles, especially those manufactured during the 30-year period beginning in 1880. Others concentrate on the classic models from the 1940s and '50s, while a third group focuses on the more recent lightweight machines.

Age is not as important as desirability. For example, a 1952 Schwinn Black Phantom often sells for about $2,000, while a 1910 Columbia bicycle was offered recently online for less than $500.

How much is your bicycle worth? You might want to ask the experts. Lorne Shields buys, sells and appraises bicycles manufactured before 1960. His postal and e-mail addresses are Vintage Cycling, P.O. Box 211, Chagrin Falls, OH 44022; and vintage@globalserve.net. Lee Dixon is a collector and curator of the National Bicycle History Archive. His postal, e-mail and Web site addresses are P.O. 28242, Santa Ana, CA 92799; oldbicycle@aol.com; and members.aol.com/oldbicycle/.

For parts for vintage bicycles, Larry Busch of Memory Lane Classics can help. He publishes a catalog of old and reproduction parts for sale and a "blue book" that lists values of older bikes. His postal, e-mail and Web addresses are 24516 Third St., Grand Rapids, OH 43522; info@memorylane-classics.com and www.memorylane-classics.com.

The Schwinn bicycle company might also be a good source for information. The postal and e-mail addresses are: 1690 38th St., Boulder, CO 80301; and schwinn@schwinn.com.

Old Dog Can Learn New Behaviors

Q. We purchased a beagle (let's call him "Shane") through the Humane Society. We think that Shane's last owner might have abused him. When we have visitors, he hides in the bedroom and barks. He calms down for a while; however, when the guest starts to leave, our dog will run over and try to bite and bark at the visitor. How do we change this behavior? Shane is about 13 or 14 years old. They say you can't teach an old dog new tricks, but can you teach an old dog new behaviors? — *Sincerely, Rose B., Vermont

A. You certainly can teach an older dog new behaviors, but this problem would take time and attention to resolve in a dog of any age.

Your beagle's fear of strangers and aggressive behavior might indeed be due to previous abuse; his attitude could also have resulted from the trauma of being abandoned at the shelter.

Either way, Shane feels threatened when people enter his new home. His behavior is a combination of dominance and fear aggressions: Like any dog, he wants to rule the roost, but the entrance of strangers causes deep anxiety. In addition, he's a beagle, one of the more vocal breeds.

The first step is a visit to your veterinarian. At 13 years old, Shane must be checked for health conditions common to senior dogs: physical deterioration, cognitive dysfunction and underlying diseases, all of which could increase his level of anxiety.

A combination of obedience training (teaching the dog to sit and stay, despite distractions), desensitization (getting your dog accustomed to doorbells and strangers) and possible drug therapy (to reduce his underlying anxiety) might stop his behavior. Training might take longer with Shane than with younger dogs, but success is possible.

Even if training and desensitization don't help, consider continuing drug therapy. Antidepressants can stabilize moods and reduce acute anxiety, making life quieter for both Shane and you.

"To have a rolling keg party going down the road infringes on the rights of everybody else on the road," Forehand said.

The repeat offender measure will boost mandatory jail time for second-time drunk drivers to five days from 48 hours, and to 10 days for subsequent offenses, and also impose a one-year suspension of the offender's driver's license.

Imprisonment could mean home detention, a penalty Delegate Donald E. Murphy, R-Howard, called the equivalent of telling a repeat offender, "Go to your room."

Murphy, the only House member to vote against the repeat offender bill, said current laws grant judges the power to send repeat offenders to jail, but those judges free them with a slap on the wrist.

The Judiciary Committee has done more than any other to combat drunken driving, Murphy said, and supporters should redirect their ire at the state's judges.

"Ask the judicial branch to start to enforce the laws that we put on the books year in and year out," Murphy said. "Tell the judges to do their job and we won't have to pass laws like this in the future."

The bills would have had a slim chance, supporters said, if federal funds were not on the line.

Supporters realize Vallario's committee will pass only so much drunken-driving legislation each year, and these bills were priorities this session, said Delegate Carol S. Petzold, D-Montgomery, chief sponsor of the House open-container bill and Judiciary Committee member.

Townsend plans to continue her fight for tougher drunken-driving laws in her soon-to-be-announced campaign for governor, said Michael Sarbanes, her spokesman.

Her top priority will be the "super drunk" bill, which would impose stricter penalties on drunken drivers with a blood-alcohol content of .15 or higher, Sarbanes said. Such drivers are responsible for about 65 percent of all alcohol-related traffic deaths, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Gov. Parris N. Glendening plans to sign both bills.

Car Seat Check Set Saturday In Grantsville

A free child safety seat check will be held at Diehl's Ford in Grantsville on Saturday, April 27, from 11:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. Trained personnel will check seats for correct installation, appropriate seat for child's size and age, and manufacturer recalls.

"At previous seat checks in Garrett County, 9 out of 10 seats that were inspected had something that we could correct to make them safer," said Diane Lee, highway safety coordinator at the Garrett County Health Department.

The seat check is being sponsored by the Garrett County Health Department, in cooperation with the Maryland State Police and the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

The event is part of the Ford Commitment to Kids Project. "We feel that kids' safety is very important, and we care about the kids in our community," said Greg Diehl. Parents can also have their children's fingerprints taken for safety records.

The Maryland Legislature made a change to Maryland's child passenger safety law during the past legislative session. The new law requires children to be in a restraint until he or she is 6 years old. Although it will not take effect until October 1, 2003, it stresses the importance of keeping kids in restraints for a longer period of time. "The new law will cover kids up to 6 years old, " said Lee, "but experts in child passenger safety recommend using booster seats until kids are 8 years old, or at least 4 feet 9 inches. Kids smaller than that are usually not ready to fit into adult restraints."

Rental seats, from infant through booster seats, are available through the Maryland Kids in Safety Seats Loaner Program at the Garrett County Health Department. Appointments are available for individual seat checks or to discuss the rental program by calling 301-334-7730 or e-mailing leed @dhmh.state.md.us.

National Road Project Receives Federal Funding

Senators Paul S. Sarbanes and Barbara A. Mikulski announced this week that the federal Department of Transportation has awarded grant money to the Historic National Road project.

The project will receive more than $300,000 to develop and install a series of wayside exhibits along Maryland's portion of the Historic National Road Scenic Byway. The exhibits will be located in Baltimore City, and in Baltimore, Howard, Frederick, Washington, Allegany, and Garrett counties and will raise awareness of the road's history, as well as create a visual identity for the byway, according to Sarbanes.

"I'm proud of this federal-state partnership to protect Maryland's heritage and promote our tourist economy," said Mikulski. "Maryland possesses a terrific combination of natural beauty and American history, and these federal funds will allow us to preserve some of our most beautiful and cultural areas in Maryland."

Four other byway projects in the state also received funding — the Chesapeake Country Scenic Byway Interpretive Plan, the Lower Eastern Shore Heritage Committee, the Charles Street Corridor Management Plan, and the Chesapeake County Water Access Improvements program. More than a half of a million dollars was awarded to the five projects.

"Maryland has a rich cultural, historical, and environmental heritage," Sarbanes said. "Our scenic byways are one of the true treasures of our state, and these funds will help see to it that all who live in and visit Maryland will have an opportunity to enjoy its rich beauty and heritage."

Brakes Fail On Vehicle, Driver Injured Tuesday

The brakes failed on a work vehicle Tuesday afternoon along Route 219 South near Red House causing an accident and sending the driver to the hospital for treatment, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Wayne E. Shumar. 31, Thompson, Pa., was operating a work vehicle when he lost control of the brakes and hit two guard rails before coming to a stop, police said.

He was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released.

No charges were filed by deputies.

DWI/DUI ARRESTS

Several driving while impaired (DWI) or driving under the influence (DUI) arrests were made this week by sheriff's deputies. They were: Victor C. Morcau, 30, Oakland; Robert William Newton Jr., 38, Oakland; and Harold Roger Markley, 54, Oakland.

Salisbury VFD Sets Roast Beef Dinner

The Salisbury Volunteer Fire Department and Ambulance will sponsor an "all-you-can-eat" roast beef dinner on Sunday, April 28, from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m., at the fire hall on Ord Street in Salisbury, Pa.

The dinners will consist of roast beef, mashed potatoes and gravy, noodles, vegetables, cole slaw, choice of beverage, and dessert. Takeouts will be available. The cost is $7 for adults, $3 for children under 12 years of age, and free for children under 5 years of age.

ACE Meeting Set

The fifth meeting of the Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) for the 2001-2002 school year will be held on Tuesday, April 30, at 7 p.m. in Room 315 at Garrett Community College, McHenry.

Reports on vertical teaming and summer workshops will be presented. The public is invited to attend.

passengers to drink in a car. The committee rejected it two of the past three years.

That logic held no credence with supporters.

"To have a rolling keg party going down the road infringes on the rights of everybody else on the road," Forehand said.

The repeat offender measure will boost mandatory jail time for second-time drunk drivers to five days from 48 hours, and to 10 days for subsequent offenses, and also impose a one-year suspension of the offender's driver's license.

Imprisonment could mean home detention, a penalty Delegate Donald E. Murphy, R-Howard, called the equivalent of telling a repeat offender, "Go to your room."

Murphy, the only House member to vote against the repeat offender bill, said current laws grant judges the power to send repeat offenders to jail, but those judges free them with a slap on the wrist.

The Judiciary Committee has done more than any other to combat drunken driving, Murphy said, and supporters should redirect their ire at the state's judges.

"Ask the judicial branch to start to enforce the laws that we put on the books year in and year out," Murphy said. "Tell the judges to do their job and we won't have to pass laws like this in the future."

The bills would have had a slim chance, supporters said, if federal funds were not on the line.

Supporters realize Vallario's committee will pass only so much drunken-driving legislation each year, and these bills were priorities this session, said Delegate Carol S. Petzold, D-Montgomery, chief sponsor of the House open-container bill and Judiciary Committee member.

Townsend plans to continue her fight for tougher drunken-driving laws in her soon-to-be-announced campaign for governor, said Michael Sarbanes, her spokesman.

Her top priority will be the "super drunk" bill, which would impose stricter penalties on drunken drivers with a blood-alcohol content of .15 or higher, Sarbanes said. Such drivers are responsible for about 65 percent of all alcohol-related traffic deaths, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Gov. Parris N. Glendening plans to sign both bills.

Man Convicted Of Theft From DCL Home Site

A Friendsville man has pleaded guilty to a felony theft charge stemming from a theft of building materials from a Deep Creek Lake area home construction site. The criminal hearing took place in Garrett County District Court.

Bronco Joseph Detrick, 24, was handed a five-year sentence by Judge Ralph Burnett, who suspended all but 18 months of the term, fined the defendant $500, and placed him on three years of supervised probation.

Detrick's December arrest by the Garrett Bureau of Investigation came within a few days after he stole $2,200 worth of lumber and nails from inside the unfinished home. After developing several leads indicating that Detrick was a possibly suspect, GBI detectives discovered the missing lumber in a wooded area along Squire Fike Road owned by a relative who had no knowledge of Detrick's actions. Detrick was apparently planning to build a cabin for himself, and detectives alleged that he had been stealing materials for the project from construction sites in the DCL area.

Detrick also faced allegations stemming from a second theft case involving similar charges. Stet rulings were handed down on charges of two counts each of felony theft and second degree burglary, filed after he allegedly cut the lock on a McHenry area construction trailer and took over $5,000 worth of tools and plumbing supplies.

In other District Court news, a Mtn. Lake Park man pleaded guilty to three counts of misdemeanor theft and was handed a 49-month sentence, all but 10 months of which was suspended.

Richard Dale Reeves, 26, was jailed by Cumberland police officers in January at the request of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. An investigation had determined that Reeves had stolen some checks from an MLP home where he was staying as a guest, then went on to forge names and make multiple transactions for cash.

In addition to the jail term, Reeves was placed on two years of supervised probation and ordered to pay a total restitution of $1,520 among his victims of Stop 'N Save, the Lucas Garage, and WEPCO.

William Edward Wolfrays, 47, Garrett, Pa., pleaded guilty to felony theft scheme and was handed a one-year sentence, 10 months of which was suspended. Maryland state troopers arrested Wolfrays in February for, while employed at the Grantsville Ag feed and fuel company, he made a series fraudulent charges to the account of regular client. He was also placed on two years of supervised probation and ordered to pay $5,826 to the store.

Cinderella Mae Wilburn, 42, Grantsville, pleaded guilty to obstructing and hindering a police investigation and failure to obey a lawful order. She was handed a four-month sentence, half of which was suspended, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Wilburn's July arrest by state troopers came in the wake of a domestic altercation involving five persons at her Fosters Inn Road residence. She had allegedly hit a family member with a broom prior to the arrival of police, then continued yelling and cursing as the troopers were investigating the incident. Alcohol was cited as a factor. An additional charge of second degree assault was not prosecuted by the State's Attorney's Office.

Clifton Edward Johnson, 38, Dundalk, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and driving while under the influence (DUI) and was handed a 90-day sentence, all but 10 days of which was suspended, fined $600, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

Sheriff's deputies jailed Johnson after a November traffic stop in Grantsville. During the course of the DUI arrest, Johnson volunteered that he was carrying a smoking pipe which was determined to be bearing burnt marijuana residue. A film canister containing marijuana residue was also discovered in his pocket. An additional charge of possession of drug paraphernalia and various traffic charges were not prosecuted.

Daniel Fred Maravich, 44, Pittsburgh, pleaded guilty to driving while impaired and was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, fined $555, and placed on one year of supervised probation by visiting Judge Timothy Finan. An additional criminal charge of second degree assault was not prosecuted.

Maravich's December arrest by sheriff's deputies came after his car was stopped along an Oakland street. While being escorted into the Garrett County Jail facility for booking on the DUI charge, Maravich grew combative and used his body to push a deputy into a door. Several additional traffic charges were not prosecuted.

Charles Reuben Collins, 22, Oakland, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a 50-day sentence, 10 days of which were suspended, and was placed on two years of supervised probation. Sheriff's deputies filed the charge in January in the wake of an unrelated arrest on an outstanding bench warrant. While Collins was being booked at the jail a routine search located a bag of marijuana in his pocket.

Nathan Allen Murphy, 18, Oakland, pleaded guilty to disturbing the peace with loud noise and was handed a 30-day sentence, all but seven days of which was suspended, and was fined $100, placed on one year of unsupervised probation, and ordered to complete 60 hours of community service. Additional charges of trespassing and harassment were not prosecuted. Judge Burnett presided.

Murphy's November arrest by sheriff's deputies came after he went to the home of a female acquaintance and swore loudly and repeatedly at the girl and her mother. The charging statement also referred to graffiti he had allegedly written concerning the girl's family.

Murphy also had been jailed in March by GBI detectives who had investigated a break-in at the Countryside Animal Hospital. The charges stemming from that incident of second degree burglary, felony theft, and malicious destruction of property were not prosecuted.

Jeremy Todd Jenkins, 26, Hedgesville, W.Va., pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a seven-day jail term by Judge Finan, while an additional charge of drug paraphernalia possession was not prosecuted. Jenkins had been arrested by state troopers in November after the odor of burning marijuana was detected during a traffic stop along Interstate 68. A search located a bag of marijuana and a smoking pipe in his pocket, and another bag of marijuana on the floor of the car.

Beverly Louise Wiles, 41, Gormania, W.Va., pleaded guilty to second degree assault and was handed a 60-day sentence, all but four days of which was suspended by Judge Burnett. Her December arrest came in the wake of a traffic stop along George Washington Highway, when she interfered with the DUI testing of the driver, and yelled and kicked a deputy. A charge of failure to obey a lawful order was not prosecuted.

Cancer Researchers Predict Use of Herbs

U.S. Newswire reviewed the recent 9th annual Conference of the American Institute for Cancer Research. "In a surprising move, scientists predicted that mounting scientific evidence may lead the medical community to recognize a wider role for herbal medicine and supplements in cancer prevention." A panel of experts noted that scientific acceptance was "both logical and inevitable."

The Conference highlighted recent research into the cancer-fighting activity of natural substances within soy, tea, garlic, grapes, and the trace mineral selenium.

The scientific community has long been studying how substances within fruits, vegetables, grains, and beans (called phytochemicals) work to protect against various diseases, including cancer." Such work has convincingly established the enormous potential of phytochemicals in cancer prevention and treatment." The research group currently recommends a diet primarily based on plants - one high in grains, fruits, vegetables, and beans.

Left Alone

In this world of fast transportation, people come and go with increasing frequency. Many of us commute to jobs a further distance than our grandparents or our great-grandparents traveled in their lifetime. Children may go across the country or even abroad for college. There are also unfortunate kinds of leave-taking... divorce, friendships dissolving and, the most final, death. Sometimes we are left with only ourselves for company. How do we deal with that?

First, we can take time to come to know ourselves. We can learn to paint or write or plant a garden. Informative books abound at the mega-bookstores of today and at the library.

Above all, use your time of solitude for prayer and meditation. Learn to know yourself and learn to know God, for He promises us in Joshua 1:5... "As I was with Moses, so I will be with you; I will never leave you nor forsake you."

Visit God's house in Worship this week. God is always home... and with God we are never alone.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHO APPOINTED YOU JUDGE

April 28, 2002

Background Scripture: Romans 14:1 through 15:13.
Devotional Reading: Romans 14:14-23.

Much of the turmoil I have experienced in church life I would put, not in the "Of Vital Importance" column, but in the "Disputes Over Opinions" side. Paul tells us, "As to the man who is weak in faith, welcome him, but not for disputes over opinions" (Ro. 14:1). The problem is that many of us think that our disputes occupy a much higher level than mere opinions. Other people may have 'opinions'; we have 'vital issues.'

Somewhere I read about a violinist who drove his wife to distraction by playing the same string over and over and over again. "Why do you do play just one string?" she demanded. Other violinists use many different notes when they play. "Ah," replied her husband, "they are looking for the right note, but I have found it!"

Many Christians think they have "found it." I have seen them come nearly to blows over the most trivial of matters, because they failed to realize how trivial they were: the color to paint the church doors, the variety of hymns to be sung, the version of the Bible used in the service, the suitability of having church suppers, the choir members who get to sing most of the solos, and on and on ad nauseum.

Human Opinions

Admittedly, we often have disputes over more important matters, too: what shall be in the church budget, what clergy person shall we engage, shall we support this mission or that, is it Christian to permit this or that activity in the church, etc. But, important though these may be, they are not earth-shattering unless we make them that way. These too are about opinions—human opinions—fallible opinions. There is nothing wrong in keeping our opinions, so long as we remember that that is all they are.

Many of our intramural disputes are not about vital issues, but about the all too human passion for judging others. Paul asks us plainly: "Who are you to pass judgment of the servant of another" (14:4). Our brothers and sisters in the faith are not our servants, but of the Lord. We will be judged, not by each other, but by the Lord. "For we shall all stand before the judgment seat of God" and each of us "shall give account of himself to God" (14:10,12). Some of our own opinions are bound to be in error!

Jesus did not ask his disciples all to have the same opinions. "One man esteems one day as better than another, while another man esteems all days alike. Let everyone be fully convinced in his own mind" (14:5). Live by your opinions, but do not presume to make your neighbor abide by them, too. That is for your neighbor and his Maker—and yours—to work out between themselves.

Honor The Lord

The key to all this is found in Paul's admonitions to do whatever it is you think you ought to do "in honor of the Lord." If you abstain from eating, do it

Fresh Air Fund Seeking More Host Families

The Fresh Air Fund is seeking more host families in Garrett County to open their homes to a New York City child for two weeks this summer. Since 1877, the Fresh Air Fund has enabled 1.7 million disadvantaged young New Yorkers to experience summer in suburban and small town communities. Through the fund's Friendly Town Program, volunteer host families in 13 states from Virginia to Maine and in Ontario, Canada, opened their homes to nearly 6,000 New York City children last summer.

Fresh Air host families can choose the gender and age of their visitor. First-time Fresh Air children are between the ages of 6 and 12. Many families find their hosting experiences so rewarding that over 65 percent of all children are reinvited to stay with host families, year after year, according to a spokesperson for the program. Children can participate in the Friendly Town Program through age 18. In 2002, the fund continues to celebrate its 125th anniversary of serving children with a wide variety of special events and volunteer opportunities.

For more information, local residents may contact Alice Orendorf at 301-245-4326, or the Fresh Air Fund at 800-367-0003. Persons can also visit the fund online at www.freshair.org.

USE A BOOSTER SEAT, PLEASE — Sharon Custer, Garratt County Health Department Outreach worker, recently visited the Friendsville After-School Program to teach the students about the importance of wearing a seat belt or using a booster seat. "I would like to encourage all children who are out of car seats, but still do not sit comfortably in seat belts, to try a booster seat," Custer said. "Children between the ages of 5 and 8 years of age who weigh between 40 and 80 pounds would benefit from these seats. The booster seat will lift the child up so the shoulder belt will fit correctly at the neck, therefore, correcting the problem of children putting the shoulder belt behind them or under their arms." The Maryland After School Opportunity Program is funded by the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families. The Friendsville program operates Monday evenings at the Friendsville Elementary School. For more information, persons may call 301-334-7730, ext. 6530.

Salaries For Lawmakers To Take Big Jump

by Krissah Williams
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Maryland's part-time lawmakers this year received the largest legislative pay raises in state history — up nearly 40 percent to $43,500 by 2006. The governor's salary will also rise from $120,000 to $150,000. That increase would put the state's legislative and gubernatorial salaries among the highest in the country.

Still, they all make substantially less than the highest-paid state employees, who garner salaries of more than $300,000. But legislative pay will be more than most rank-and-file state employees make. The average state salary is less than $40,000, according to the Department of Management and Budget.

Lawmakers and executive branch officials were the only state employees to receive across-the-board raises this year. Other employees — from judges to janitors — were denied requested increases.

Legislators defend the increases, which they passed despite a large budget deficit. Legally, they had to implement the raises this year or forgo a pay hike until 2006 because legislative and executive branch salaries can be increased only in election years.

"Maryland has fallen way behind in their compensation to their legislature," said House Majority Leader Maggie McIntosh, D-Baltimore. Four years is too long to wait, she said.

But the timing of the increase is awkward. Legislators prepare to face voters after spending months wrangling over the state budget, cutting state services, and searching for new revenue sources.

"We think it is obscene [for lawmakers] to grant themselves increases at a time of deficit...and at a time when state revenues are constricting," said Kenneth R. Timmerman, president of the Maryland Taxpayers' Association.

Raising salaries at such a time could have negative political implications in the coming election. Lawmakers, however, can partially shield themselves from having to take responsibility for the magnitude of the raise.

The state constitution mandates an independent compensation commission recommend salary increases for lawmakers and executive branch officials every four years. The salaries are enacted automatically unless the General Assembly passes a resolution reducing or rejecting the raises.

Along with General Assembly members and the governor, a compensation commission recommended raises for assembly leaders and other executive officers.

The lieutenant governor's $100,000 annual salary will increase to $125,000 over the next four years. The Senate president and House speaker's salaries will increase from $41,509 to $56,500.

The legislative raises were derived from an exhaustive study done by the nine-member General Assembly Compensation Commission, said Commission Chairman S. Nelson Weeks.

"We felt that our General Assembly has not stayed up with general assemblies for other states," Weeks said. "It was appropriate to bring our legislature in line with legislatures in other states."

Nationally, Marylanders will have the ninth-highest-paid state legislature — following Cahfornia's legislature, which meets full time and whose members are paid $99,000.

Lawmaker salaries vary widely. Legislators in neighboring Virginia meet for 60 days and earn about $18,000 a year. Massachusetts lawmakers meet year-around and earn $50,000 a year. Delaware legislators earn $33,400 for six months of full-time work.

Lawmakers allowed the increases to pass with little debate. Republican members of the House and Senate introdueed resolutions to rejeet pay raises, but they were overwhelmingly defeated in both chambers.

"We have skirted our responsibility, said House Minority Whip James F. Ports Jr., R-Baltimore County. "The citizens of Maryland deserve to know how we vote."

Resolutions, such as the one offered by Ports, have routinely died since the salary system was created in 1970. Members have fully accepted every increase ever proposed.

Lawmakers and high-ranking state officials were among the few state employees who received the salary boost. Along with the majority of state employees, judges were denied a 5 percent raise. Rank-and-file state employees were denied a 2 percent cost-of-living pay increase.

Workers are quick to point out that lawmakers will be paid more than the average full-time state employee for their part-time lawmaking jobs when their full inerease takes affect.

On average, state employees make $39,000 for 12 months of work. Lawmakers, who work full-time jobs in addition to their legislative service, will be paid more than that for their three months of full-time work. Lawmakers also have meetings outside of session and represent their constituents throughout the year.

The large legislative raises, without an increase for state employees, has angered many, said George Myers, president of the Maryland Professional Employees Council, a union representing 5,00[illegible] state employees. Workers said they understand the economic constraints of the national recession gripping the state, which is why they only asked for a 2 percent pay increase.

"People still have to live," he said.

Lawmakers said state employees have been treated fairly, and raises may be considered next year. State employee salaries increased seven times with 10 merit increases in the last 12 years. Legislators got only six salary increases in the same time, according to thc commission report.

"In the aggregate, state employees have done very well getting increases in good tunes," said House Appropriations Chairman Howard P. Rawlings, D-Baltimore. "I'm making this decision [to raise legislative salaries] based upon what I see as a very fair analytical process."

In years past, the compensation commission, appointed by the governor and House and Senate leaders, has not been so generous to lawmakers.

The commission looked at the amount of time lawmakers spend on legislative duties, estimated how much money highly educated legislators lose by working in the public seetor, and compared Maryland's pay to other states.

This pay raise is the largest increase the commission has ever recommended. Legislative pay rose from $29,700 in 1998 to $31,509 in 2002, up 6.1 percent. Inflation rose 10.4 pereent during the same time, according to the Consumer Price Index.

Whether or not voters count the hefty salary increases against incumbents running for office in the fall will be evident at the polls in November. Most members are betting it will not be an issue.

"The commission held public hearings before [issuing] the report," Rawlings said. "It was not done in a vacuum."

Western Maryland Trailing In Computer Use, High-Speed Internet

by Nicole M. Richardson
Maryland Newsline

ANNAPOLIS — Western Maryland households and businesses are the least likely in the state to have computers and high-speed Internet access, according to a study released this week.

Garrett, Allegany, and Washington counties are among six Maryland counties where digital subscriber lines, or DSL, are not provided by local telephone companies, said a study by the state and the Maryland Technology Development Corp.

DSL service is also not provided in Kent, Queen Anne's, and Worcester counties on the Eastern Shore, which as a whole trails other parts of the state in computer use, the study said.

DSL allows subscribers to access the Internet without having to use a dial-up or cable modem, which can take minutes to download even small pages.

"We must begin the process of getting the lines laid, so that it will be more available, especially to the private sector and businesses," said Garrett County administrator Monty Pagenhardt. "Getting started is expensive, but we have the cooperation of the major telephone [and cable] companies."

Lt. Gov. Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, who presented "eReadiness Maryland: Assessing our Digital Opportunities" at a news conference last Thursday, called it the first step to "improving broadband access throughout the state."

"This study demonstrates our commitment to continuing to make Maryland a national leader in Internet access for business and homes," Townsend said.

She said the study gives a detailed map of the broadband infrastrueture in Maryland and a better understanding of how businesses and residents get on the Internet.

RESI, an affiliate of Towson University, reached 1,422 households in the telephone survey, and the Survey Research Center at the University of Maryland contacted 1,126 businesses.

They found that 64 percent of Maryland households own computers, above the 57 percent for the nation. But computer ownership fell to 49 percent in the three western Maryland counties and 56 percent on the Eastern Shore as a whole.

In contrast, the study said 74 percent of homes in central Maryland — Howard, Montgomery, Anne Arundel, and Prince George's counties — have computers.

Phillip Singerman, executive director of the Maryland Technology Development Corp., said Internet service providers have been hesitant to serve rural areas of the state because they question whether the demand justifies the expense.

He said they also fear that homeowners who can access the Internet with dial-up modems are not willing to pay for faster access. Many businesses see it as a necessity.

"This study, along with a follow-up study, will show that there is more demand than people believe," Singerman said.

The study also showed that computer use rose sharply along with income and education levels. While 87 percent of households with income above $50,000 had computers, and 75 percent of them surf the Internet, in households with income under $20,000, only 31 percent had a computer and just 17 percent use the Internet.

The same holds true for education levels. Of household heads with college degrees, 84 percent have home computers and 75 percent use the Internet. For those with high school degrees, the numbers drop to 47 percent and 32 percent, respectively.

Singerman said the study found 89 percent of Maryland companies connected to the Internet through at least one computer, and that businesses are much more likely than private homes to have high-speed access, Singerman said. But 41 percent of businesses are still using dial-up modems. The study said 14 percent of businesses use either DSL or a cable modem.

The remaining 45 percent of businesses had T-1 or other, faster connections, or their access type could not be determined.

Townsend said simply having a computer or a fast Internet connection isn't enough.

"Small- and medium-sized businesses need training on how to use the computers they have, and how to be more creative and innovative with their technology," she said.

The state plans to work with the private sector to develop a comprehensive system of high-speed data networks throughout Maryland, Townsend said. She called the information "a major step forward, but it is just the first step."

"There are challenges to creating universal access statewide, and it will require the engagement of citizens, businesses, nonprofit organizations, and local governments to review and analyze this information and apply it to the specific needs of each region," she said.

FSU Achieves Teacher Ed. Accreditation

Frostburg State University has achieved accreditation by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education.

FSU is one of the first institutions nationally to reach accreditation under new standards implemented by NCATE that dramatically change the way teacher education is evaluated, according to a university spokesperson. FSU is one of 36 schools to meet the new performance-based standards, out of more than 640 institutions that have either been accredited or are seeking accreditation by NCATE.

FSU, like all higher education institutions in Maryland with enrollments of more than 2,000 students, was required to gain NCATE approval by the state of Maryland under its Redesign for Teacher Education. According to Dr. Susan Arisman, dean of the FSU College of Education, when the new rule was enacted in the late 1990s, FSU had already set its accreditation drive in motion. A number of Maryland institutions have NCATE accreditation, but most have not yet been evaluated under these new guidelines.

RECEIVING AN EXCELLENT RATING — The Garrett County Memorial Hospital Family Centered Maternity Suite recently received an excellent rating for the fall quarter, 2001. As part of the hospital's commitment to excellent patient care and customer service, a random number of outpatients as well as all inpatients are mailed a survey to complete and return for tabulation. This survey contains questions dealing with all aspects of their hospital experience. Every person completing the survey for the entire quarter rated the FCMS 100% without any negative responses. "This is both remarkable and quite an achievement for the FCMS staff and physicians of that specialty area," said Donald Battista, GCMH president and CEO. Pictured above are several FCMS staff members. They are Twila Wood, Linda Moon, Lu Friend, Charleno Bennett, and Joyce Anderson. Not pictured are Donna DeBerry, Shirley Rounds, Bav Bower, Cindy Maust, Jennifer Layton, Millie Rodeheaver, Juanita Michael, and Mary Rinker.

As part of the NCATE process, FSU's various teacher certification programs had to achieve recognition from 14 different professional content associations, such as math, science, and health education, including the Association for Childhood Education International, from which Frostburg was one of the first two institutions recognized under ACEI's new performance-based standards.

NCATE and the national associations are putting new emphasis on not only what courses are taught in a teacher education program, but also on collecting the data that prove how well the content is learned. In the past decade, NCATE has moved from an accreditation system that focused on curriculum and what teacher candidates were offered to a data-driven, performance-based system dedicated to determining what candidates know and are able to do. The institution must provide evidence to that effect, Arisman explained.

"For students, NCATE accreditation increases the prestige of their degrees. Graduates can say proudly that they graduated from an NCATE institution," Arisman said.

FSU was last accredited by NCATE in the 1980s, but when the state of Maryland chose a different direction regarding standards, the accreditation was not renewed, Arisman said. "It's a credit to the quality of the program that we made it on the first attempt. It's a tribute to the faculty that they remained at such a peak of performance over the years even though they didn't go through the national [accreditation] process."

According to Arisman, a number of schools have expressed interest in looking at Frostburg's information as they go through the NCATE process themselves.

NCATE-accredited institutions must meet rigorous standards set by the profession and members of the public. Among those standards are the following:

•Teacher candidates must have in-depth knowledge of the subjects they plan to teach, as well as the skills necessary to convey those subjects so that students learn.

•The university must carefully assess this knowledge and skill to determine that candidates may graduate.

•The institution must have partnerships with elementary and secondary schools that enable the candidates to develop the necessary skills.

•Teacher candidates must be prepared to understand and work with diverse student populations.

•University faculty must model effective teaching practices themselves.

•The College of Education must have the resources, including information technology, necessary to prepare candidates.

Meeting the new NCATE accreditation standards also helps institutions prepare new teachers for new, more rigorous licensing standards now found in many states.

The U.S. Department of Education recognizes NCATE as the professional accrediting body for schools, departments, and colleges of education. On-site visits, document review, and accreditation decisions are all carried out by professionals from the education community, including teachers, school specialists, and teacher educators, as well as members of the public and education policymakers.

For more information, persons may call the College of Education at 301-687-4759. For more information about NCATE, persons may visit its web site at www.ncate.org.

Garrett County Chamber of Commerce UPDATE

Home of Deep Creek Lake

CHAMBER UPDATE: APRIL 2002

The regular monthly meeting of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce board of directors was held April 18, presided over by Chairman Jonathan Kessler.

The 2002-2003 Vacation Guide, produced by Genesis Publishing & Advertising, Towson, was distributed to board members, followed by a proposal on upgrades to the chamber web site by Kimberly Scott-Carl, owner of Genesis Publishing. Scott-Carl laid out a three-phase approach to making the web site more "user friendly" by incorporating concepts and images from the guide. Kessler noted that the need for web site upgrades had been previously discussed, and the board voted in favor of redesigning the chamber site following the steps outlined by Scott-Carl.

Chamber president Ken Wishnick advised that the new county map will be printed within the next two weeks. He also reported that 2,455 requests for the Vacation Guide were processed in March, coming from 49 states, excluding only North Dakota. Chamber members can obtain names, addresses, e-mail, and other inquirer information in a database by subscribing to this service.

Among the copies of articles distributed at the meeting was one on fishing by outdoor writer King Montgomery. "He is enthusiastic about Garrett County and has published several stories on our excellent fishing and sporting opportunities since his visit here last October," Wishnick said. He also pointed out an article from the Washington Post stating that Garrett County has been excluded from the 2012 Olympic proposal for games in the Washington, D.C., area. Originally considered for the whitewater events, Garrett was dropped in favor of Loudon County, Va.

Reporting on action taken by the social committee, chairman Karen Myers confirmed that the speaker for the chamber's annual dinner on June 6 will be Rob Clements, president of ClosetMaid, the company planning to bring over 700 new jobs to the Northern Garrett Industrial Park. It was also reported that this year's Autumn Glory Royal Court will be limited to a king and queen.

Hugh Umbel, chair of the Chamber Foundation Task Force, reported having a "very productive" meeting the previous week, which resulted in a recommendation that the board establish a chamber foundation. Such an organization, he said, could seek sponsors to endow funds and offer programs to improve the community. "Through a foundation, the chamber could reach out and really do something substantive for our area," Umbel said.

The board voted to begin working toward the establishment of a foundation, with the details to be discussed and decided upon at a future meeting.

Kessler asked treasurer Jim Murray to report on reserve funds held by the chamber. Kessler then expressed his view that most reserve monies should be expended and asked the board for options. Umbel suggested that these funds be used to endow the foundation. Murray stated that a smaller amount would be more prudent, maintaining adequate contingency funds in reserve. Myers and Kessler suggested that part of the reserves could be used to install an electronic flashing sign in front of the Visitors Center, which could display upcoming events and community information. The issue will be further discussed at the next meeting.

Kessler reported that former winners of the Heise Entrepreneurial Spirit Award (Kessler, Bill Sisler, and Olen Beitzel) met to narrow the 13 nominations for this year's award to a slate of three finalists to present on a ballot to the membership. Those chosen were John Marple, Karen Myers, and Hugh Umbel. The winner will be announced at the chamber annual dinner.

In other action, the board again chose Dave Thomas as the chamber's representative to the Maryland Chamber of Commerce board of directors, and approved Kelly Spurgeon's "Lake Escape" vacation rental as a new member.

The next board meeting will be held Thursday, May 16, at 8 a.m. in the Visitors Center in McHenry.

THE ACCIDENT COMMUNITY PLANNING GROUP recently held its annual Easter egg hunt. Eggs were hidden for children between the ages of 1 and 12 to hunt. The event was attended by more then 100 people this year. Refreshments were served, and the Easter Bunny was available for pictures. The group's next event will be a fishing rodeo, which will be held at the town pond on Saturday, May 4. The public is invited to attend.

Social Services Employees Help Set New Record

State employees set a new record for giving in 2002, raising more than $4 million for the Maryland Charity Campaign, according to John Merrill, local campaign coordinator. Maryland Charity is composed of more than 700 different charities to which state employees may contribute.

Locally, employees with the Garrett County Department of Social Services contributed $5,200 to the campaign. "In Garrett County there has been a significant increase in the number of staff who participate, as well as the amount of contribution," said Merrill.

Amy Helfrich, Md. Charity Campaign manager, said that statewide, the average gift increased from the 2000 campaign as well. "It was wonderful to see the goal thermometer shoot off the chart," she said. "I'm amazed by the generosity of state employees this year. The residents of Maryland contributed so generously to the Sept. 11 relief efforts, it was heartening to see that they had not forgotten about the very needy charities right here at home."

Merrill expressed his appreciation to the thousands of state employees who regularly contribute and to local merchants who donated gifts for the campaign's kickoff.

ELCA Women's Spring Assembly Held In W.Va.

Women of the ELCA, Monongahela Valley — Mountain Cluster of the West Virginia/Western Maryland Synod, held their spring assembly on April 20 at St. Johannes Lutheran Church, New Milton, W.Va.

The assembly opened with a welcome and greetings extended by the Rev. Linda Muhly, pastor, and Hazel Wysong, president of the host unit. Devotions were led by the ladies of St. Johannes.

The theme for the day was "Building on the Rock of Christ for 150 Years," wich related the 150-year history of St. Johannes Lutheran Church. The program was divided into three categories: A Strong Foundation, A Wise One Builds, and Living Stones, and featured scripture readings, hymns, readings that traced the growth of the congregation, and dress styles of each era. Historical materials shared during the program were taken from conversations with members, church records, and a history compiled by the Rev. Beryl Maurer in 1984.

Jane Hazer, cluster coordinator, presided over the business meeting. Greetings were extended by Linda Buckel, Grantsville, president of the W.Va./W.Md. synodical unit. Announcement was made of the synodical convention to be held in August; the fall retreat, scheduled for the first weekend in November; and the triennial convention, which will convene in Philadelphia July 8-14.

A video relevant to the synodical convention was shown.

Lunch was served in the church social room. Each received copies of the Women of the ELCA statement of purpose and the books of the Bible, and also a packet of note cards, printed with a picture of St. Johannes Church.

Afternoon worship opened with the hymn "I Know My Redeemer Lives." The message of the day, delivered by Pastor Muhly, challenged the group to assume a task, live a life of service, and leave a legacy.

The assembly concluded with a service of holy communion administered by Pastor Muhly, with Eppa Michels assisting.

Roll call was answered by eight of the 16 churches in the cluster. Total attendance was 51. Churches represented were: St. Mark's, Clarksburg, Holy Trinity, Elkins, Grace, Fairmont, and St. Johannes, New Milton, all in West Virginia; and Grace, Friendsville, St. John's, Red House, Emmanuel, Bittinger, and Zion, Jennings, all in western Maryland.

The offering received will be forwarded to the synodical unit treasurer. A special offering was received from congregational units for the synodical gift to the triennial convention.

Tentative plans were made to meet next year on the last Sunday in April at Emmanuel Lutheran Church in Bittinger.

Sex Offender Registry On-Line, Raising Some Privacy Concerns

by Laura A. Said
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Maryland officials posted the state's sex offender registry on-line Monday, allowing anyone in the world to look up the names, addresses, and pictures of more than 2,000 convicts. Maryland joins the District of Columbia and 29 other states that post information about their sex offenders on the Internet. The Maryland list — which had 2,282 individuals Friday — will be searchable by name, ZIP code, and type of crime.

The American Civil Liberties Union in Maryland expressed serious concerns about a web site listing sexual offenders who have already served their time. "This is an additional debt," to society, said Suzanne Smith, spokeswoman for the Maryland ACLU.

But a spokesman for the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services said the state is posting the registry "because the public wants it."

Leonard A. Sipes Jr. said that about 65 percent of the calls, e-mails, and letters to his office over the last several years have been requests for electronic access to the registry, which had been available by mail.

Federal law requires that states establish and maintain a sex offender registry, but does not require that the list be on-line.

Maryland's registry tracks both state and federal sexual offenders for a minimum of 10 years, and repeat violent offenders or sexual predators for their entire lives. The registry goes back to 1995 for sex offenses against children and 1997 for all other categories.

Sipes said that, in addition to public demand, the department put the registry on-line "to ask the public if they recognize anyone on the list." He said the department did not intend to "stir up hysteria," but it would like to know, for example, if someone sees a pedophile on the registry hanging around playgrounds.

Sipes said the department took about two years to determine what kind of on-line list to develop.

"Every web site in the country has been challenged in court," he said. "There is no consensus as to what is the appropriate method."

U.S. Justice Department Program Manager Devon Adams could not say whether every state with a web site has been sued, but she agreed that there have been quite a few lawsuits.

Besides information on offenders, the Maryland site will contain warnings against vigilantism and points for parents to discuss with children. It will also warn people against being lulled into a false sense of security if the list does not turn up an offender in their neighborhood.

Smith agreed that Maryland put a lot of thought into its on-line registry, but she still had numerous concerns about the web site. Smith said the ACLU is "very concerned" about giving people worldwide the ability to compile data on convicts who have "served their debt to society."

She called the effects of an on-line list "potentially stigmatizing," and worries that broad distribution of the information could lead to greater harassment of offenders. She also said it will make it harder for offenders to reintegrate into society or resolve the problems they had in the first place.

Smith also worried that information on offenders whose convictions later get overturned might remain on the Internet indefinitely.

"Obviously, everyone wants children to be safe," Smith said. "The question is, how do you do that?"

Sipes agreed that the list raises difficult questions, but said that they must be weighed against the need to inform the public about sexual offenders.

"The bottom line is citizens want access to information on sexual offenders and we are complying with that request," Sipes said.

He said the department expects a lot of public input and added, "We will be redesigning immediately."

The list will be updated weekly at first, and later daily.

Persons may find the sex offender registry for Maryland on-line at the Maryland Department of Public Safety web site, the address for which is www.dpscs.state.md.us.

Car Seat Check Set Saturday In Grantsville

A free child safety seat check will be held at Diehl's Ford in Grantsville on Saturday, April 27, from 11:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. Trained personnel will check seats for correct installation, appropriate seat for child's size and age, and manufacturer recalls.

"At previous seat checks in Garrett County, 9 out of 10 seats that were inspected had something that we could correct to make them safer," said Diane Lee, highway safety coordinator at the Garrett County Health Department.

The seat check is being sponsored by the Garrett County Health Department, in cooperation with the Maryland State Police and the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

The event is part of the Ford Commitment to Kids Project. "We feel that kids' safety is very important, and we care about the kids in our community," said Greg Diehl. Parents can also have their children's fingerprints taken for safety records.

The Maryland Legislature made a change to Maryland's child passenger safety law during the past legislative session. The new law requires children to be in a restraint until he or she is 6 years old. Although it will not take effect until October 1, 2003, it stresses the importance of keeping kids in restraints for a longer period of time. "The new law will cover kids up to 6 years old, " said Lee, "but experts in child passenger safety recommend using booster seats until kids are 8 years old, or at least 4 feet 9 inches. Kids smaller than that are usually not ready to fit into adult restraints."

Rental seats, from infant through booster seats, are available through the Maryland Kids in Safety Seats Loaner Program at the Garrett County Health Department. Appointments are available for individual seat checks or to discuss the rental program by calling 301-334-7730 or e-mailing leed @dhmh.state.md.us.

National Road Project Receives Federal Funding

Senators Paul S. Sarbanes and Barbara A. Mikulski announced this week that the federal Department of Transportation has awarded grant money to the Historic National Road project.

The project will receive more than $300,000 to develop and install a series of wayside exhibits along Maryland's portion of the Historic National Road Scenic Byway. The exhibits will be located in Baltimore City, and in Baltimore, Howard, Frederick, Washington, Allegany, and Garrett counties and will raise awareness of the road's history, as well as create a visual identity for the byway, according to Sarbanes.

"I'm proud of this federal-state partnership to protect Maryland's heritage and promote our tourist economy," said Mikulski. "Maryland possesses a terrific combination of natural beauty and American history, and these federal funds will allow us to preserve some of our most beautiful and cultural areas in Maryland."

Four other byway projects in the state also received funding — the Chesapeake Country Scenic Byway Interpretive Plan, the Lower Eastern Shore Heritage Committee, the Charles Street Corridor Management Plan, and the Chesapeake County Water Access Improvements program. More than a half of a million dollars was awarded to the five projects.

"Maryland has a rich cultural, historical, and environmental heritage," Sarbanes said. "Our scenic byways are one of the true treasures of our state, and these funds will help see to it that all who live in and visit Maryland will have an opportunity to enjoy its rich beauty and heritage."

Brakes Fail On Vehicle, Driver Injured Tuesday

The brakes failed on a work vehicle Tuesday afternoon along Route 219 South near Red House causing an accident and sending the driver to the hospital for treatment, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Wayne E. Shumar, 31, Thompson, Pa., was operating a work vehicle when he lost control of the brakes and hit two guard rails before coming to a stop, police said.

He was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released.

No charges were filed by deputies.

DWI/DUI ARRESTS

Several driving while impaired (DWI) or driving under the influence (DUI) arrests were made this week by sheriff's deputies. They were: Victor C. Moreau, 30, Oakland; Robert William Newton Jr., 38, Oakland; and Harold Roger Markley, 54, Oakland.

Ramp Cook-Off Set For Saturday At Swallow Falls

The annual Swallow Falls State Park Ramp Cook-Off is set for 1 to 5 p.m. this Saturday, April 27. The event will take place either in the park pavilion or the refurbished concession stand, both located beside the Swallow Falls Trail parking lot.

Ramps, a type of wild onion, are one of the first edible plants to appear each spring. Ramp feeds are ingrained in the folk life of the Appalachian region. At least 11 different dishes prepared with ramps will be available for sampling at the cook-off, including pesto, bread, omelette, soup, and ramp rings. A $5 fee will be charged for a drink and tasting, while raw and grilled ramps will be available for free.

Musical entertainment will be provided throughout the afternoon by the Glade Players, a local group composed of several hammered dulcimer players and a guitarist who play old-time, Irish, and Appalachian tunes. For more information on the event, persons may call the park office at 301-334-9180.

Man Convicted

Frostburg (Garrett County) pleaded guilty to second degree assault and was handed a 60-day sentence, all but two days of which was suspended, fined $155, and placed on one year of supervised probation. He had been arrested by state troopers in December after a domestic altercation at his home, during which he had pushed his wife, grabbed her by the neck, and pulled some of her hair out.

Opel also faced a second degree assault charge that was placed onto the stet docket. That accusation stemmed from an arrest three days prior to the above incident, during which he allegedly assaulted his wife.

Jack Alfred Kight Jr., 25, Mtn. Lake Park, pleaded guilty to DUI and giving a false name to an officer and was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, fined $428, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 50 hours of community service by Judge Finan. Sheriff's deputies who had arrested Kight for DUI filed the second charge after it was confirmed that the name he was using actually was that of his twin brother. He had maintained the falsehood for over three hours after being booked at the jail.

Devin James King, 19, Oakland pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ) by visiting Judge Paul Stakem, who also levied a $305 fine and placed King on 18 months of supervised probation. An additional charge of paraphernalia possession was not prosecuted. King had been jailed by sheriff's deputies in the wake of a November traffic stop in Deer Park. The odor of burnt marijuana was noted and King, a passenger, was among the vehicle's six occupants who denied ownership of two smoking devices bearing suspected burnt marijuana residue that were discovered in the car.

Robin Thomas Spector and Sean Paul Ferrigno, both 20-year-old residents of Keene, N.H., entered guilty pleas and were handed PBJs on identical charges of marijuana possession. Both men also received 30-day suspended sentences and $100 fines. The pair were arrested by state troopers in February after a traffic stop along I-68. The detection of the odor of burnt marijuana helped lead to a search that uncovered multiple bags of marijuana, weighing scales, and several smoking devices. Each man had also been charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute and possession of drug paraphernalia, but those charges were not prosecuted.

Jeffrey William Gilbert, 50, Oakland, was handed stet rulings by Judge Finan on charges of two counts of second degree assault and one count of resisting arrest, while additional charges of DUI and various traffic-related accusations were not prosecuted. Gilbert's December arrest by state troopers came during the course of a DUI traffic stop near Deep Creek Lake, when he reportedly grew combative and fought with a trooper who was trying to put handcuffs on him.

Barry Ray Livengood, 35, Oakland, was handed stet rulings on two counts of violating an ex parte order and one count of harassment. Those charges were filed in March when sheriff's deputies arrested Livengood for showing up at his estranged wife's home and workplace, and for calling her at home. Also stetted was a violation of ex parte charge filed by sheriff's deputies three months earlier when Livengood had allegedly called his wife from his own apartment. Deputies outside his door reported overhearing Livengood as he made the call.

Stencer Sheffield, 18, Washington, D.C., was handed stet rulings on charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. His October arrest by state police came after a traffic stop along I-68 led to a search that uncovered 15 plastic bags of suspected marijuana in a backpack, along with a quantity of rolling papers.

Kassandra Beth Weimer, 19, Oakland, was handed stet rulings by Judge Burnett on charges of second degree burglary and burglary conspiracy. GBI detectives jailed Weimer in January after she and another individual requested work applications at the Oak-Mar Motel. While the pair were filling out the forms in a back room, an employee observed one of them surreptitiously unlock a nearby window. Suspicions were aroused because the business had been burglarized two weeks earlier.

Jacob Eugene Lynch, 19, an inmate at the Garrett County Jail, was handed stet rulings on charges of second degree assault and second degree assault upon an inmate. He had been arrested in March.

Karen Ann McGeehee, 38, Mtn. Lake Park, was not prosecuted on a felony theft charge stemming from her March arrest by sheriff's deputies.

Patrick Dale Schrock, 21, Mtn. Lake Park, was not prosecuted on a marijuana possession charge stemming from his August arrest by sheriff's deputies.

Rob McBee, owner of Swanton Grocery, reported that even the smaller (10-15 lb.) birds had 10-10½ inch beards because of the "easy" winter.

Legeer Family Selected For Habitat House

When John and Elsa Legeer were first referred to Garrett County Habitat for Humanity (GCHFH) by a friend, they did not have high hopes. "We thought the program was mostly for young families just starting out. We were amazed and thankful that we were chosen as a Habitat partner family."

The Legeers, married for more than 30 years, moved here from Southern California in 1997 to be closer to family here in Garrett County. John, formerly a marine mechanic, is currently training to be a water treatment operator at the Alpine Lake Public Utilities at Alpine Lake in Terra Alta, W.Va. Both John and Elsa are ordained ministers, and hope to soon find a way to share and preach their faith in a local church.

Elsa, whose parents are from Puerto Rico, speaks fluent Spanish, and has tutored the language for many years. The couple have four children and seven grandchildren.

GCHFH partner families must not be able to obtain financing from a bank and must currently be occupying inadequate or substandard housing. In addition to these requirements, the family must be able to work 500 hours of sweat equity as required by the affiliate. They also have to demonstrate the ability to repay the interest-free mortgage loan they receive from GCHFH.

Executive Director Jeanne Blasher said the Legeers met the eligibility requirements for Habitat funding. "Due to the seasonal nature of John's former job, they were unable to obtain bank financing," said Blasher. "Also, the couple occupies substandard housing at this time, and there are health problems we needed to take into account, as well. We believe that John's mechanical ability and prior knowledge of basic construction, in addition to his willingness to contribute 'sweat equity' time to the construction of his new home, will certainly help the couple build and maintain their home, which is an important part of a successful partnership with Habitat," she added.

JOHN AND ELSA LEGEER, 42ND PARTNER FAMILY

The location of the Legeers new house is pending at this time. GCHFH receives government funding only for the purchase of land and infrastructure (wells, septic, roads, etc). Financial contributions from individuals, local organizations, businesses, churches, and partner family mortgage payments repaid to Habitat are the sources of funding for the work done here in Garrett County.

To make a donation or volunteer at the construction sites persons may call the office at 301-334-9431, ext. 112.

League Of Women Voters Schedules Annual Meeting

The evening's program will be dedicated to a wrap-up of the recently concluded 2002 Maryland General Assembly legislative session, which will be presented by Sen. John Hafer and Del. George Edwards. The Garrett County commissioners, members of the Garrett County Board of Education, and other county leaders will be on hand and will have the opportunity to update League members on developments in their respective areas.

The League's annual business meeting will be conducted at the close of the evening, and will feature a discussion of the annual budget and program of activities and events. League board officers will be elected as well.

Farm Business Planning Essential
by Don Schwartz, Extension Agent, Washington County, MD

No dairy farmer would build a new dairy facility without having a set of blueprints. Yet many farmers have not taken the time to develop a set of blueprints for building a profitable dairy business. Developing a plan forces the farmer to look into the future and visualize where he would like to be in five to 10 years. It will help him to determine where the business is today and what he needs to do to reach the goals he has set for his business.

Cow comfort, clean water, and health care are all controllable factors lending to farm profitability. Controlling mastitis in your herd reduces somatic cell counts, which can lead to considerable bonuses with some of the milk quality incentives now offered. Insuring that the ration is properly balanced, not only leads to better production and a more cost-effective feeding program, it helps to maintain milk components (fat and protein).

Know your cost of production. Use the records that are available to you to make management decisions. Evaluate your accounting system. If it does not allow you to easily calculate your cost of production and do enterprise analysis, consider changing to a system that does. Identify the various profit centers of your business. Determine which are profitable and to what degree. What changes should be made to improve the profitability of the money losers and what investment would those changes require?

Evaluate your facilities in terms of cow comfort. Are the majority of the animals lying down when not eating? Do animals have trouble getting in and out of the stalls? Are bedding levels adequate? Are cows waiting in the holding area too long? Is the ventilation system providing a good source of high quality air? Do cows walk around comfortably without slipping?

From the field to the feed bunk, this is a key area where many dairies can make improvements to their bottom line. Poor forage quality can cost a 100-cow dairy from $20,000 to over $100,000 per year in increased feed costs and lost production.

Farm Service Agency Reports

Eric M. McCartney, County Executive Director
300 Tunnelton St., Kingwood, WV 26537
304-329-1923

Preston County sheep and lamb operators may now sign up for the USDA Farm Service Agency's Ewe Retention Payment Program. The incentive payment of $18.00 a head will assist producers in competing with foreign markets and help stabilize the lamb market that is suffering from poor market conditions, said Eric McCartney, Preston County Farm Service Agency executive director.

The sheep and lamb operation must have purchased or retained ewe lambs for breeding purposes between August 1, 2001 and July 31, 2002, to qualify for payment. The ewe lambs must be retained for at least one (1) complete offspring lambing cycle. The sheep and lamb operation must also be engaged in the business of producing and marketing agricultural products at the time of filing the application.

Applications are available at the County FSA office. The incentive payments have two application periods. Applications for the first period (Year 3), which lasts from Aug. 1, 2001, through July 31, 2002, are due by Aug. 15, 2002. Applications for the second period (Year 4), which lasts from Aug. 1, 2002, through July 31, 2003, are due by Aug. 15, 2003.

The producer must also certify that each ewe lamb: is not older than 18 months of age; has not produced an offspring (see exception for this year only); does not possess characteristics of parrot mouth, foot rot or scrapie; and is identified according to state identification requirements that comply with a USDA Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service approved scrapie program for interstate movement.

There is an exception in this year only for ewe lambs that produced an offspring before the availability of the incentive payment. Producers are eligible for payment if the ewe lambs were not older than 18 months at the time of the birth of the offspring. This exception is for the first year of the program only.

The payments of $18 per ewe lamb will be subject to the availability of funds. If application amounts exceed the funding limit of $26 million, USDA's Farm Service Agency will prorate payments. Funds not utilized during the first application period will be carried forward to the next year.

The Lamb Meat Adjustment Assistance Program is a 4-year program started in 2000 to help stabilize the lamb market. To date, LMAAP has provided over $25 million in assistance. The program will now provide $26 million in incentive payments to help producers increase the supply of domestic lamb meat.

To file an application or to obtain further information, persons may call the Farm Service Agency at 304-329-1923 or visit the office located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza.

Warm And Dry Conditions Aid Planting Process

The combination of unseasonable high temperatures and dry conditions allowed Maryland farmers 5.5 days suitable for field work that were used to accelerate planting activities. With the exception of potatoes, planting progress is ahead of schedule. Green pea, tomato, and corn planting is now 23 percent, 17 percent, and 10 percent ahead of average, respectively. Cantaloupe, cucumber, and snap bean planting has begun with 14 percent, 10 percent, and 8 percent planted, respectively.

Warm temperatures also stimulated fruit trees to bloom. Apples are 39 percent bloomed, 15 percent ahead of the previous week, and peaches are 89 percent bloomed, 10 percent ahead of the previous week. Strawberries are 47 percent bloomed, 15 percent ahead of the previous week.

Small grains are rated in mostly good to excellent condition, with winter wheat rated 6 percent poor, 18 percent fair, 48 percent good, and 28 percent excellent. Barley is rated 2 percent poor, 14 percent fair, 60 percent good, and 24 percent excellent.

Scattered showers last week helped to maintain soil moisture. Topsoil moisture is 3 percent very short, 37 percent short, and 60 percent adequate. Subsoil moisture is 29 percent very short, 49 percent short, 21 percent adequate, and 1 percent surplus.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

One of the first things I noticed when I moved back home to Bittinger from Manhattan was how much my life would change, as the main topics of conversation here were gardens and whether your trees were budded yet, instead of what was going on on Broadway, etc. I was asked that last week and, yes, my big maple trees have some buds, but no sign yet of any new baby leaves. Trees are ahead of ours here in Bittinger in McHenry, Accident, and even north of Grantsville, with new leaves, but not on our farm here. One exception is the young wild cherry tree in front of our barn, which now has little frilly pale green/yellow leaves decorating the skyline. I even have one lonely yellow tulip, which is starting to bloom! It is exactly the same color as the fat yellow bird above it that is getting even fatter on thistle seeds. Boy, they can really eat a lot of seeds in a short time. The feeders were full the past weekend, but now are almost empty, so they can only use the bottom two feeding stations. There is quite a bunch of competition going on there.

Last week I saw hundreds of service trees and bushes in full bloom. I am a little worried about whether you can count the one bush in bloom before our last snow or if we are in for another. Yesterday we did get some frozen precipitation, which was a kind of sleet, or something mixed with heavy rain. I don't know whether you could count that or not, and we got a real good thunderstorm the other day, with one big lightning bolt that hit very close to the house; close enough to make my television pop. At least I did not lose my electric power. I don't like to be home alone in the night when the powers go off.

What else is news in Bittinger? I am not sure, but I do know that quite a few residents on Rock Lodge Road have already gotten out their lawn mowers and are beginning the chore of mowing. I can't remember when as many people were mowing their lawns in April as did last week. The first one I noticed was Donna Glotfelty, and not far behind, our "Pappy" Dale Glotfelty. There are still not many plowed fields yet, but no wonder, as much rain as we have gotten in the few weeks. I still believe that we are in good shape in terms of our ground water, judged by the flow of the springs, etc. I was a little surprised that the valley below Jennings and the brick factory on Casselman River were not flooded.

As I wrote that last paragraph, my dogs scratched on my front door asking me to please let them in because it started to drizzle rain/sleet, and when I glanced out of my window I saw almost new soccer balls in the lawn. No matter how many times I tell my girls that it is not good for leather balls or shoes to be left out in the weather, they can't seem to get it. So I struggled out myself, and it was pretty chilly, but I was surprised to see one tiny sprout of collard green I planted last week. Most people never try collard, but it is a leafy vegetable like spinach except it tastes like broccoli, which happens to be one of my girls' favorite vegetables. They don't like spinach, but they do love that broccoli, so maybe they will like collard. I hope so, because it is so easy to grow and so hardy that you can't kill it with a hammer, let alone a little snow.

I am so sorry that I did not get planted any peas or onion sets because they love cool weather, and as soon as we get through this little patch of winter-like weather, I am sure we will go back to unseasonably hot weather. I wish I could use a shovel so I could break some ground for my early garden vegetables. But I can't, so I will try to keep myself busy with my little nature dolls.

When I was outside I found a few good little rocks in my lane that are perfect for jewelry for them — a couple pieces of gravel with lots of fool's gold, a nice pebble of rose quartz, and several tiny white pebbles perfect for buttons, etc. I already did a couple nice dolls from daffodils. I wonder if any of the gold finches that fly into my picture window might lose a few of their bright yellow feathers. They would be perfect for the daffodil girls' hat trimmings.

After a few days of cool or cold weather this morning I was awakened at 6 a.m. by the sounds of a flock of Canada geese flying north. Most of the time we associate the geese migration with autumn, but of course, if they go south in the fall they will go the other way in spring. In Bittinger we have quite a few strays on our ponds and lake the year around. I don't think they used to do that when we had harsh winter weather all winter, November through April.

At the same time as the Canada geese go north, a flock of teenagers from around here turned around and came home to Bittinger after a concert band festival in Toronto, Canada, last weekend. The bus rolled in at Northern High School last evening, and coming home were my Claire, Robbie and Blakely Glotfelty, Matthew Bass, and chaperons Rodney and Marci Glotfelty. Trying to get any real facts from a teenager is not easy, but Claire told me that she thinks they placed third, among how many bands I don't know. She did know that she had fun, but was glad to be home. So I guess it was worth all the fund-raisers that I had to participate in to help raise money for the Northern Band Boosters for the trip. My freezer is fully stocked with frozen pizzas, and I have a whole bunch of wonderful bulbs for summer flowers, which are still unplanted. Maybe, finally, Claire will have some free time, instead of every evening band practices, to dig some new flower beds and help me plant all those bulbs.

You can't miss one great sign of spring, which is the horde of gold finches brightening my bird feeders and my lawn, which is truly green grass. Maybe the grass will get the ewes belonging to Jimmy Glotfelty to finally produce some little lambs. So far not one yet frolicking in that pasture. At the Hockmans' farm that little one with wanderlust still gets out on the road almost every time I pass. I always try to stop and give a gentle honk on my horn to try to encourage it to go back to its mother.

Several good-hearted girls were busy with the big job of cleaning up the litter along Rock Lodge Road, and it certainly looks much better. Thanks go out to them for the wonderful job. Quite a few of my readers told me that they agree with me about the slob habit of motorists in our beautiful county tossing out their trash. It is not just a Bittinger problem, but it is everywhere on our wild and wonderful mountaintops. Let's keep it as it should be. The less sign of human presence, the better.

I was both annoyed and hurt that no one seems to return my calls when I leave a message on their answering machine, but I found out last evening it seems that my phone is not ringing when an incoming call comes in. Why, I don't know, or how to fix it! My idea of appliance repair is just to hit it. It does sometimes work, but is not very dependable. It is a miracle if I get a live person to answer when I call around to track down some news for this column. I'll have to report that my brother-in-law, Kevin Bass, came down tonight and solved the problem, so I am back in business.

I did learn that a special service was held at Emmanuel Lutheran Church on Sunday when we received five new adult members and baptized four young people. It was quite an impressive service, and a luncheon was held following the service. New members are Ron and Marlene Mould, Beth Shaffer, and Pete and Susan Jackson. Megan, Amy, and Jennifer Shaffer and Garrett Jackson were received through the sacrament of Holy Baptism.

Only a few weeks to go until the Mother-Daughter Banquet sponsored by the Emmanuel Lutheran Church Women. It will be held May 3 at 6:30 p.m. at the Bittinger fire hall. I can guarantee you are in for a real treat as far as the dinner is concerned. I always stuff myself I think more than at any other time, except maybe at Thanksgiving. Reservations must be made.

Jena Cope, Cumberland, visited relatives in Bittinger on Tuesday. Included in her visit were Ferne Beachy, Ken and Harriett Buckel, Ralph and Ethel Buckel, and Beulah Moon.

Bonnie Buckel, Mt. Airy, visited her parents, Ken and Harriett Buckel, over the weekend. Ken is undergoing chemotherapy treatment at Ruby Memorial Hospital in Morgantown.

Hazel and Wayne Gomer, Hagerstown, visited Hazel's mother, Kathryn Bowser, over the weekend.

Ralph and Ethel Buckel were presented with a new great-granddaughter, Alyssa Leigh, daughter of Lee and Julie Buckel from Kent Island.

Cameras Placed On Garrett Co. School Buses

In an attempt to increase safety for children riding buses to and from school each day, digital camera systems were installed on three school buses in Garrett County this week.

"I am thrilled," said Art Refosco, Garrett County Board of Education director of transportation. "We have had a difficult year, with the fatality. Hopefully, putting these cameras on the buses will increase awareness and, thereby, safety for our school children."

The "Stop-Arm Sentry" will take photos the entire time the stop arm on the bus is activated. The photos will capture the license numbers of any vehicles that pass the bus when the red lights are flashing.

"Studies in North Carolina showed that drive-by violations were reduced by 66 percent when it was publicized that drive-by violators were being caught and prosecuted," said Diane Lee, highway safety coordinator for the Garrett County Health Department.

"Reports from bus drivers and law enforcement officers indicate that drivers are not complying with laws to protect our children's safety en route to school," Lee added.

Recent reports by one Garrett County school bus driver indicated that during last school year, she saw 120 incidents of drivers either ignoring or not seeing the flashing red lights. During this school year, the same driver observed 60 vi-

CAMERAS INSTALLED ON SCHOOL BUSES — Digital camera systems were installed this week on three Garrett County school buses. Shown above is David Hilliard of Alpha Communications, a subcontractor of BusVision, installing one of the digital recording systems. The camera will take photos of vehicles that pass the bus when its red lights are flashing. See story for details.

SUDDEN AND SEVERE were this morning's thunderstorms in Garrett County, which wrought some havoc for a few hours with flooding and power outages. Several roads, mostly in the southern part of the county, were closed because of high water. The situation along Memorial Drive just west of Harvey Winters Drive is shown in this photograph, taken at about 8:20 a.m. Violent lightening knocked out electric for some residents, and high winds brought a tree down across Fingerboard Road. As of about 10 a.m., the roadways were all passable again, according to a spokesman from the Garrett County Roads Department. Photo by John McEwen

DCL Watershed Zoning Ordinance Amendments Gain County Approval

Several months of discussion between county officials and Deep Creek Lake area home and business and various development interests culminated this week in the adoption of 29 amendments to the Deep Creek Lake Watershed Zoning Ordinance. The board of county commissioners amended the original 1997 document to ensure that its intent remains relevant to the changing physical and economic environment around the rapidly developing resource.

The 29 approved amendments were unanimously approved by Commissioners Fred Holliday, Ernie Gregg, and Wendell Beitzel, and one newly added provision outlining some of the pertinent duties of a building codes official was also approved, while seven amendments met with rejection. The amendments went into effect at the time of their adoption during Tuesday's commissioners' meeting.

The list of approved amendments includes the following items:

•A building's height is now to be calculated by taking the vertical measurement from the mean level of the ground abutting the building to a point midway between the highest and lowest points of the roof over any part of the building. However, the highest point of the roof itself may not exceed 50 feet above the lowest level of ground abutting the building.

•No principal structure shall exceed 35 feet or three stories in building height, but an appeal process will make it possible to request a special exception for the construction of multi-family residential structures or hotels up to 60 feet or six stories tall.

•Those height limitations outlined for "principal structures" in the preceding amendment do not apply to facilities including churches, broadcasting or equipment towers, barns, silos, or windmills, or roof structures such as tanks, ventilating fans, air conditioning equipment, or similar accessories required to operate and maintain a building.

•One off-street parking space is now required for every two bedrooms in all dwelling units, instead of the previous standard of two spaces per entire unit.

•Any lot created from this time forward must have frontage on an existing or planned public or private road.

•Under no circumstances may a terrace, deck, uncovered porch, or other similar feature extend closer than 5 feet from any property line, except for townhouses and other buildings that are lawfully attached along a property line.

•Construction, reconstruction, alteration, or movement of a structure, or a change in use of land or building, shall not be initiated until a building permit is issued by the code official and posted on the premises.

GCC Name Change Approved By Higher Ed. Commission

A name change for Garrett Community College has been approved by the Maryland Higher Education Commission. Effective Monday, July 1, the name will become Garrett College in accordance with the request submitted recently by president Dr. Steve Herman.

In the rationale for the change Herman cited the college's geographical location and proximity to West Virginia and Pennsylvania that have made it a regional college, the limited population base of Garrett County and declining high school enrollments, and the four signature programs that typically attract students from other counties and other states.

"Out-of-county and out-of-state students pay higher tuition than do Garrett County residents," Herman stated. "Many of these students find our unique land-based programs attractive, and we feel that a degree from 'Garrett College' would enhance career opportunities for them in the national marketplace. Revenue gained from increased out-of-state enrollment will help the college hold the line on tuition and support educational services for the local population." The GCC board of trustees has recently decided not to raise in-county tuition for the next fiscal year.

Herman also pointed to the quality of GCC's programs that he said offer "as high a credential as one could achieve in these fields." He feels that graduates with that kind of credential from Garrett College will find more doors open to them.

Rob Michael, chairman of the board of trustees, affirmed his approval of the name change, and said he sees the college mission expanding beyond the community of Garrett County and nearby West Virginia and Pennsylvania, considering the Adventure Sports program that now attracts students from all over the United States and the international students from the country of Estonia.

Yet Herman assures that the college's primary mission is servicing the educational needs of Garrett County. "The new name preserves our ties and alle-

Keyser's Ridge House Destroyed By Accidental Blaze Friday

An electrical failure is believed to be the cause of a fire that destroyed a two-story wood-frame house near Keyser's Ridge early Friday evening.

Volunteers from the Grantsville, Accident, and Addison (Pa.) fire departments were summoned to the residence of William Wright at 4:51 p.m. after fire broke out in the family room of the house, located at 104 Oak Drive and owned by Marian Rodehea-ver.

According to a report from the office of the Maryland state fire marshal, Wright was alerted to smoke in the house by a smoke alarm. Upon investigation, he saw fire in the family room. After unsuccessfully attempting to extinguish the fire, and sustaining minor burns in the process, he exited the house and alerted neighbors, who called 911.

Firefighters brought the fire under control in about 30 minutes. Deputy State Fire Marshal Steve Wendling responded to the scene and determined that the fire was the result of an electrical failure which began in wiring in the area of an old stereo. He estimated the loss to be $225,000.

Wright was treated for his burns at the scene by members of the Northern Rescue Squad. A family dog perished in the blaze.

Approximately 40 firefighters responded to the scene. Deep Creek and Salisbury volunteers were placed on stand-by status.

GCC Finalizing Plans For May 17 Commencement

Final plans are being made for the 30th annual commencement of Garrett Community College on Friday, May 17, according to Dr. Lillian Mitchell, dean of academic and student affairs. The commencement will be held in the college gymnasium beginning at 10:30 a.m., with Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, former superintendent of Garrett County Schools, serving as the keynote speaker.

Approximately 100 students are expected to receive diplomas at this year's ceremony, the majority in career advancement programs. Forty-eight students have applied for Associate in Applied Science degrees, 11 in Adventure Sports, 12 in Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology, five in Agricultural Management, and three in Office Technology. Seventeen students are expected to graduate in the Business and Information Technology programs, and 12 students expect to receive certificates.

A total of 40 students expect to receive associates in arts degrees in the transfer programs, 14 in General Studies, six in Math/Science, five each in Social and Behavioral Sciences and Elementary Education, four in Fine and Performing Arts, three in Secondary Education, two in Early Childhood Education, and one in Business Administration.

Some special activities will be included in this year's ceremony to commemorate GCC's 30th anniversary. Pipe Major Jerry McGee of the GCC Pipes and Drums is writing a special song dedicated to the college for the pipe band to play. Each person will receive a booklet reflecting people and events in GCC's 30 years of service to this community. This book is being compiled by a committee consisting of Patsy Baker, Deloris Edgar, Linda Fike, and Joan Crawford.

County May Receive Health Clinic; Adventure Sports Project Under Way

The Garrett County commissioners held their monthly staff meeting this week, hearing reports from 15 departments and agencies. Among the issues discussed were a health clinic, the Adventure Sports Complex, the circuit rider's activities, and Garrett Community College's name change.

Health Department

Rodney Glotfelty, health officer of the Garrett County Health Department, reported that his department and Garrett Memorial Hospital were working together to bring a health clinic to the area. "It will be a community effort to put a clinic in place," said Glotfelty. He noted that much planning would be needed, however, to make it a reality.

"We're willing to help you," said Commissioner Wendell Beitzel. He said the clinic was needed for low-income working residents who cannot afford health care, yet do not qualify for medical assistance.

The clinic, an initiative of the Bush administration, would serve the under-insured and offer primary and preventive health care. Glotfelty has sent a letter of intent to the federal government. A formal application requesting $650,000 will be sent later. The grant is renewable each year, he said.

The county qualifies for the funding because of the large number of under-insured residents and its lack of physicians. The clinic would serve residents of surrounding counties, as well as Garrett Countians. Glotfelty said there was "a reasonable chance" of receiving the funding.

He stressed that the new clinic would not be connected with the Health Department. The department may, however, contract with the clinic to provide such services as dental and mental health care for its clients.

Economic Development

The Adventure Sports Center at McHenry could be completed by Memorial Day 2004, said Jim Hinebaugh, director of Garrett County Economic Development. Construction of the public/private enterprise is scheduled to begin next spring and be completed in phases.

During the first phase, a man-made, recirculating white-water course, amphitheater, and adventure sports complex will be con-

Swanton Area House Sustains Fire Damage

A unoccupied Swanton area house sustained an estimated $5,000 in damages from a fire Saturday afternoon, the cause of which remains under investigation by local investigators of the Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office.

Volunteers from the Deer Park Community VFD were summoned to the one-story wood-frame structure, located on the 500 block of Mt. Zion Road, at 1:11 p.m. after being called to extinguish what was believed to be a woods fire. The call was made by a nearby resident. The fire was brought under control in about 20 minutes.

The owner of the house was unknown when the notice of investigation was released by the fire marshal's office.

Deputy State Fire Marshal Steve Wendling is investigating the incident, and asks persons with any information to contact him at 301-387-0437.

Woman's Refusal To Sign Leads To Conviction

A New Jersey woman who pleaded guilty to refusing to sign a citation at the request of a Maryland State Trooper drew a $400 fine during her Garrett County District Court hearing last week.

Veronica Lynn McMillon, 29, Sewell, was also handed a probation before judgment (PBJ) ruling by Judge Ralph Burnett after she entered a second guilty plea to a charge of resisting arrest. The charges stemmed from McMillon's November arrest after a traffic stop along Interstate 68.

The defendant had been observed speeding just before a state trooper following from behind used his lights and siren to direct her to pull off the roadway. As she was slowing down and making her way onto the shoulder, the trooper reportedly observed McMillon toss from her window a lit cigarette, which struck the hood of the police cruiser.

Once the vehicle was stopped, the trooper informed McMillon that he would need her signature on a traffic citation and another citation charging her with throwing an object from a moving vehicle. She refused to sign the second citation, even after several requests and warnings, and her refusal led to the arrest. While she was being arrested on the scene, she struggled with two state troopers who were placing handcuffs on her wrists, an action which drew the resisting arrest charge.

The State's Attorney's Office declined to prosecute a second count of resisting arrest, the throwing an object from a vehicle charge, and several traffic offenses.

In other District Court news, a West Virginia man received a PBJ after he plead guilty to a marijuana possession charge.

Timothy Ray Jarrell, 23, Frametown, was also handed a 30-day suspended sentence, a $100 fine, one day of unsupervised probation, and 20 hours of community service. Jarrell's March arrest stemmed from a traffic stop along I-68 that took place after a state trooper detected the odor of burnt marijuana emanating from his car.

Jarrell voluntarily turned over a small amount of marijuana before a vehicle search subsequently located a bag of marijuana hidden inside a leather Bible case, plus a packet of rolling papers. An additional charge of possession of drug paraphernalia was not prosecuted.

Deandra Grant Bussey II, 25, Fairmont, W.Va., pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a PBJ along with a 30-day suspended sentence, a $300 fine, one day of unsupervised probation, and 20 hours of community service. State troopers jailed Bussey in March following a traffic stop along I-68.

When the odor of burning marijuana was detected coming from his vehicle, Bussey voluntarily turned over a bag of the drug. A subsequent vehicle search located another bag of marijuana and a hollowed-out blunt cigar stuffed with marijuana. An additional charge of paraphernalia possession was not prosecuted.

A stet ruling was handed to Long Stretch area resident Terry William Garlitz, 48, who had faced two counts of second degree assault. The charges stemmed from Garlitz's February arrest by state troopers in connection with a domestic altercation at his home. He had allegedly struck two family members during the incident, and troopers noted alcohol as a factor in his behavior.

DUI Hearing

A driving while intoxicated (DWI) hearing of last week resulted in a guilty plea from defendant William Gustave Schaidt III, 36, Md. Judge Burnett handed Schaidt a PBJ, a $355 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 40 hours of community service.

DJJ YOUTH HELP DNR CLEAN PARKS — Residents of the Department of Juvenile Justice's Savage Mountain, Meadow Mountain, and Backbone Mountain youth camps played their part in the April 19 observance of Earth Day by taking to the woods of Potomac Garrett State Forest to remove trash and other man-made debris. The project was carried out under the direction of the Transitioning, Attitude, Skills, and Knowledge (TASK) program, a cooperative effort of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources and the Department of Juvenile Justice, with Potomac Garrett State Forest manager John Denning identifying the areas to be cleaned. Some of the hard-working youths are shown above removing a small portion of the 25 tons (yes, that's "tons") of collected trash that had been illegally dumped in one of the most pristine forests in the state. These trash deposits included refrigerators, mattresses, and large amount of garbage and construction debris, according to Denning. A motivating Earth Day program was presented by Bill Pickerell of the Backbone Youth Center staff. The participants were treated to a barbecue, which was served at the Backbone Center by DNR and DJJ staff members. Contributions to the barbecue meal were donated by Team One Chevrolet, Schaffer Ford, Markwood Convenience Store, Oakland Wal-Mart, Midway Discount Liquors, Frostburg Sheetz, and Frostburg Food Lion. ## Oakland Man Charged After Vehicle Mishap

An Oakland man was charged with two drunk driving offenses after he was involved in a single-vehicle accident late Monday night, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Melvyn Douglas Sines II, 38, was operating his 2000 Chevy truck along Bethlehem Road near Eagle Rock Road when he lost control and struck an embankment, some shrubbery, and a tree, police said.

He was charged with driving while impaired (DWI), driving under the influence (DUI), and negligent driving.

In another incident, two vehicles were involved in an accident Saturday morning along Gorman Road at Pine Drive.

Robert Alton Swinson, 54, Oakland, operating a 1986 Chevy van, made a left turn without signaling while the second vehicle was along side, causing a collision. The second vehicle, a 1988 Subaru driven by Kathleen Anne Corcoran, 50, Bayard, W.Va., struck a tree.

Corcoran was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she was treated for her injuries.

Three Injured Slightly In Oakland Crash

Three Terra Alta residents were treated and released at Garrett County Memorial Hospital as a result of a two-vehicle collision in Oakland this past Thursday afternoon, April 25. Oakland police officers charged one of the drivers involved in the mishap.

At approximately 3:20 p.m., June Carolyn Anderson, 64, failed to stop at a red light controlling her entry from northbound Third Street into its intersection with Memorial Drive. Her 1999 Oldsmobile Cutlass struck a 1993 Chevrolet pickup truck that was attempting to traverse the intersection from westbound Memorial Drive into the CVS Pharmacy parking lot. The truck's driver, James Richard Jackson, 82, Rowlesburg, W.Va., had the green light in his favor, according to the police report.

Anderson and her two passengers, Ilene Johnson, 70, and Ethel Lanton, 93, were transported to the hospital by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad. Jackson, the driver of the truck, escaped injury. Personnel from the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the scene.

Anderson was charged with failing to obey a traffic signal.

GCSO Charges Passenger After Vehicle Accident

Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to a single-vehicle accident Tuesday around 5:15 p.m. and arrested the passenger and have charges pending against the driver.

Dwight L. Baker Jr., who was the passenger and owner of the vehicle, was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where he was treated for his injuries. Baker was arrested and charged with theft, allowing an uninsured and unregistered vehicle to be driven on the highway, and outstanding warrants.

Baker is currently incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail on $10,000 bond.

Charges are pending against the driver, Daniel L. Plum.

The incident occurred in the 1800 block of George Washington Highway, south of Oakland.

Terra Alta Man Exonerated Of MDOP Charge

A West Virginia man who had been accused of malicious destruction of property (MDOP), among other charges, was deemed not guilty during a Garrett County District Court hearing last week.

John Wayne Strawser, 24, Terra Alta, was arrested by Maryland State Police troopers in November after Thomas Mulliken, a Deep Creek Lake area resident, filed a charging statement at the District Court Commissioner's Office.

Mulliken claimed Strawser had turned a car around in the driveway of his Mayhew Inn Road residence, and in doing so had allegedly knocked over his mailbox intentionally. The accuser claimed that he recognized Strawser as the vehicle's driver and had called out to him as Strawser left the scene.

The defendant was also deemed not guilty of reckless driving, negligent driving, and spinning a vehicle's wheels on a road surface.

Correction Noted To Rabies Clinic Schedule Details

A reporting error in last week's issue incorrectly stated the dates of the upcoming rabies clinic in Friendsville and Bloomington. Those two clinics will be offered from 5 to 6 p.m. on the following dates: Wednesday, May 8, at Friendsville Elementary School; and Thursday, May 9, at the Bloomington fire hall.

That pair of rabies clinics will conclude a six-clinic schedule, and will be preceded by the following clinics: from 5 to 6 p.m. tomorrow, Friday, May 3, at Accident Elementary School; from 10 a.m. to noon on Saturday, May 4, at the Garrett County Health Department, located at 1025 Memorial Drive; from 5 to 6 p.m. Monday, May 6, at Grantsville Elementary School; and from 5 to 6 p.m. Tuesday, May 7, at the Gorman fire hall. The cost of vaccination is $5 per animal.

Three Injured As Driver Nods Off Along I-68

A Pennsylvania couple and their 1-year-old child were injured slightly in a single-vehicle accident early Monday morning when the man fell asleep behind the wheel and lost control of their vehicle, according to Maryland State Police at McHenry.

The 3:31 a.m. accident took place along the eastbound Interstate between Friendsville and Keyser's Ridge when Michael Scott Crossgrove, 27, Lititz, apparently nodded off. The vehicle crossed over the roadway and struck a guardrail, injuring the driver, his 26-year-old wife, Rebekah Crossgrove, and their son. State troopers said that serious injuries were avoided because the couple were both wearing their seatbelts, and the boy was properly secured in a child's safety seat.

All three subjects were transported by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where they were each treated and released. The Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department also responded. No charges were indicated in the information released to the media.

In other state police accident investigations of this week, a Friday morning mishap in McHenry slightly injured an Oakland woman.

Grace Bowman King, 87, was traveling on southbound Garrett Highway at approximately 7:45 a.m. when an aggressive driver began following too closely to the bumper of her Ford Tempo, gesturing all the while. The report stated that King, concerned about the safety of such actions, activated her right turn signal and pulled off to the shoulder to slow down and let the aggressive driver pass.

As King was taking this evasive action, a third driver, Troy Lynn Savage, 31, Elk Garden, W.Va., assumed that she was preparing to make a right-hand turn off the highway. He proceeded to pull out from the eastbound access roadway where he had been stopped waiting for traffic to clear, and inadvertently pulled into the path of the car driven by King, who was not turning off the highway. King's sedan struck Savage's Chevrolet Cavalier in the side.

State police summoned the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad to the scene, and she was transported to Garrett Memorial Hospital for a quick medical check and released. The Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company assisted at the scene. No charges were filed by the investigating trooper.

A Sunday morning single-vehicle accident this week did not injure the driver; however, Virginia Mae Holliday, 64, Fort Hill, Pa., was charged with driving while under the influence (DUI), driving with a revoked license, and negligent driving.

At approximately 4:37 a.m. Holliday reportedly drove her Subaru Legacy sedan through a barbed wire fence and into a field along Friendsville-Addison Road. She was released from police custody following the arrest.

Lighthouse Ribbon-Cutting To Be Highlight Of Garden, Flower Show

Garrett County Lighthouse Inc. will hold a ribbon-cutting ceremony this Saturday, May 4, at noon to celebrate the official grand opening of its new wing. The ceremony will take place during the day-long Garrett County Garden and Flower Show, to be held on the Lighthouse grounds from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Lighthouse is located at 20 East Oak Street in Oakland. Parking will be available at the site or at the Oakland Parking Lot, from which a shuttle service will operate. Admission is free, and food will be available for purchase.

"We're very excited about the ribbon-cutting," said Debbie Jo Adams-Noroski. "A lot of dedicated people who care about this community came together to help make the new wing a reality."

The $500,000 project was funded by a Federal Home Loan Bank of Atlanta (FHLBA) Economic Development and Growth Enhancement loan subsidy, which was handled by First United Bank & Trust. Representatives from the banks, county officials, medical practitioners, and civic leaders are scheduled to be in attendance for the ribbon-cutting event.

Lighthouse provides a range of mental health services, life skills training, and crisis intervention. It serves area residents in the low to moderate income range, a spokesperson noted.

"You really cannot put a dollar figure on the value of their work," said Dave Roth, a commercial loan officer with First United. "The entire county should be proud."

In addition to the noontime ribbon-cutting, a number of activities and events are slated for the entire day. Lighthouse is hosting the garden and flower show in conjunction with the Maryland Cooperative Extension, the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland, and FCE Homemakers.

Helping to make the day a success will be members of the Mountain Laurel Garden Club and the Preston County, W.Va., Master Gardeners, who will be on call all day to answer gardening questions. Many gardening items, plants, and flowers will be on sale. Doris Uphold of Country Garden Expressions and Julie of Julie's Greenhouse will also be in attendance at the show to answer questions and offer their wares.

A number of activities for children are planned, including a visit from the "Firesafe House" from Cumberland. The Firesafe House is equipped with a non-toxic smoke generator, a thermostatically controlled hot door, an emergency ladder, and other features. It is used as a teaching tool for children and adults to help them understand the characteristics and dangers of fire in a home.

Cumberland firefighters will lead participants through the Firesafe House, which includes a kitchen, living room, and a bedroom, complete with an escape ladder for practicing exit drills. Children will also be taught how to dial 911 on an actual telephone.

The Department of Natural Resources and staff from the Discovery Center will hold a special Children's Nature Program from 10 until 11 a.m., and Charles Strauss of Accident will preside over the "Nature Room," which will include an active bee hive. Jon Boone will present a program at 10:30 a.m. about local birds and wildflowers. Musical entertainment is planned as well.

The public is encouraged to attend.

to help fund promotional events? How about this instead? A foundation set up under the auspices of the people, wherein grant money is used for some of the things mentioned above. Further, that the board be made up of non-members of The Club and that the members of the foundation, namely, the people, have exclusive say over how the money is used. In other areas of the state and, indeed, the country, this works very well. It is known as community involvement, something that seems to be a foreign concept to the Deep Creek Lake commissioners. Oops! I meant Garrett County commissioners.

Three Card Monte, shell games, cons, flim-flams, I have seen them all. They have one thing in common; things aren't what they appear to be. If politicians claim to be doing something for your benefit, beware; there is usually a catch. Take it with a grain of salt; in Garrett County, make that a cup of salt.

George Falter
McHenry

To the Editor:

I am tired of reading George Falter's negative rantings and ravings, and was about to send you a letter to suggest that The Republican limit his editorial space to once every few weeks to give us all a break. However, after reading his comments last week about the ill-conceived $9 million in public monies to be spent on the proposed adventure sports complex on top of Wisp Mountain, I've changed my mind. Maybe Mr. Falter does have something important to say and maybe the county commissioners are keeping something from us.

As best I can recall, there were a few brief mentions of this major development in the past—something about making a white-water course and building a museum and somehow tying this to the 2012 Olympics. With Washington axing Garrett County out of the Olympic bid, how can the commissioners justify a $9 million expenditure? Who would use this facility with real white water nearby?

I just learned that there are four people who bought the Wisp Resort, and they are planning to build 3,000 homes near this new "adventure sports center." Rumor has it that these are the same people who donated the land for this. Maybe Mr. Falter is right and this is all a boondoggle. Doesn't this seem designed to help these "donors" sell their homes? How does the county benefit from a $9 million expenditure? Does the county really know what the impact of bringing many thousands of more people to Deep Creek Lake will be? Why isn't this being discussed in open meetings with plenty of opportunity for citizen input? This is a serious investment by our county government and it seems like it is a backroom deal!

County residents deserve to be heard and to get more information before $9 million is wasted on a "sweetheart" political deal.

To the Editor:

Our public school system continues to be closely examined. Education experts and government leaders have suggested all kinds of ways to strengthen our education system. One of those ways is by showing respect and support for our teachers.

On the whole, our public school teachers are doing an outstanding job. They perform daily miracles in their classrooms, which we take for granted. We have asked them to shoulder a major responsibility, and we often seek their help with non-teaching tasks.

Our teachers' dedication and expertise form the cornerstone of our nation's education system. They are there for our children, often under trying circumstances and with less than adequate resources and support. Without the hard work of teachers, the scientists, artists, and political and social leaders in this country would not be among the best in the world.

Americans are considered to be among the best-educated citizens in the world. And for that, we have our teachers to thank.

May 5-11 is National Teacher Appreciation Week. Few other professionals touch so many people in such a lasting way as teachers do. National Teacher Appreciation Week is a time to recognize the contribution that educators make to our community and to thank those special teachers who have made a difference in our lives.

Allow me to close by mentioning just a few of the very special teachers who have touched my life in very significant ways. (Delegate) Joanne Benson, my 4th grade teacher who taught me about courage and strength of character; Jane Avery, my high school theater teacher who allowed me to explore ingenuity in a safe environment; and Jane Gibson who to this day models the art of humility and kindness. And, while he was not my teacher in the sense of the word here, I need to thank my husband, Doug Oxford, who has invested more than 20 years caring for and teaching students at Southern High School and who is admired by many of them.

Please take the time to write or call or take out to lunch a special teacher in your life.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

Hats off to the Oakland Little League officers for unanimously supporting a new policy this year to declare all Little League playing fields tobacco-free! While this may not be a policy that all parents and coaches are thrilled about, think about what a kid-friendly decision it is.

1) As our youth move up through the baseball or softball leagues, the fields are tobacco-free at the high school and college level anyway. Why not start in the younger leagues?

2) Kids have come to associate baseball with spit tobacco instead of baseball, hotdogs, and apple pie. Our kids think that most major league players chew tobacco, when in fact only a minority do — and most of those are open about their wish that they had never started. Keeping tobacco away from the baseball fields helps to change the belief that baseball and spit tobacco go hand-in-hand.

3) Our kids will be protected from secondhand smoke in the dugouts, in the bleachers, and around the concession stand.

So on behalf of the Garrett County Tobacco-Free Coalition, Garrett County Health Department, and myself as a tee-ball parent and coach, thanks to the officers for making a very kid-friendly decision. And thanks to the rest of the Little League parents, coaches, and supporters for joining together to support this new policy. I hope it will prove to be a relatively pain-free policy change that adults who use tobacco can agree to support for the kids' sake.

In other areas of the county, the Kitzmiller Little League already adheres to tobacco-free playing field rules because all their games are played on school property. A Little League organization on the northern end of the county is also considering the idea of tobacco-free fields. Good things are happening for Garrett County youth.

Sincerely,
Kendra Todd

To the Editor:

It is wonderful to live in Garrett County where there are people who will go beyond the norm of daily activity and do something "extra." One such person is Ray Miller of the Pleasant Valley Community Center.

On Friday evening, April 19, the Historical Society had a fund-raising dinner at the center. I took photographs of various people involved in the evening's program to illustrate an article about the dinner in The Glades Star, quarterly publication of the society. In the confusion of leaving the center in a rainstorm, I accidentally left my camera behind, and didn't miss it until the following Monday. I contacted a number of people who were the last ones to leave the building and even searched the hall for the camera, but to no avail. Finally, someone suggested that I call Ray Miller, which I did and explained to him what the camera looked like and when I had left it at the center. He replied that he would ask various people who might have some knowledge of where it could be.

On Tuesday evening, April 30, Ray Miller called to say, "I found your camera."

During the week after I had contacted him, Ray located the camera and even took time out of his busy dairy farming schedule to go and pick it up.

Thank you, Ray Miller.

To the Editor:

I'm writing to express my appreciation for Special Olympics. It has truly been a blessing to be involved with the entire group. For those who have made this possible for us to participate, I'd like to thank you.

My youngest son has participated in bowling, biking, swimming, skiing, tubing, and fun social events. Soon he'll have the opportunity to learn track and field activities, weight training, swimming, and bocce.

My older children were able to be a part of these activities as well and, as coaches, they were able to earn their service learning hours. They also made new acquaintances and acquired character building traits, such as patience and respect for those who are less fortunate.

Many readers are probably unaware of the assistance given to these athletes. We received equipment and ski passes from the Wisp. We had coaches to assist the athletes from GCC Adventure Sports. That was just for ski season. Many other volunteers are working regularly on behalf of our athletes, and training takes time.

I would also like to thank the Maryland State Police and those who participated in the Dunk at Deep Creek, and all of you who have donated money to Special Olympics.

Residents Advised Of Water-Testing Solicitations

The Garrett County Sanitary District has issued an advisory to local residents in regard to a telemarketing campaign. Numerous calls have been made to the agency about phone solicitations from individuals wanting to test the water at local residences.

Ron Petrella, Sanitary District administrator said, however, that the calls are not being made by anyone through his office. Though Petrella acknowledges that the calls may be legitimate, he stresses that Sanitary District personnel are not involved. He notes that Sanitary District employees wear identification badges and travel to homes in properly marked vehicles.

Calls have also been made to the Sheriff's Office about the telemarketing testing campaign.

Non-commercial indoor residential facilities may be permitted by special exception in residential zones and permitted in other areas.

• Medical or dental offices or clinics are changed from permitted to special-exception status in residential areas.

• Off-premise advertising signs are changed from special exception to not permitted in residential zones.

• Several amendments applied to maximum height and separation distances for accessory structures, including: On lakefront lots within the lake residential zone only, accessory buildings separated by a distance of 5 feet from any other structure must not be located closer than 40 feet from the rear property line, 25 feet from the front property line, and 5 feet from either side property line.

Not adopted were recommendations concerning non-commercial parking garages, proposals for density changes, for-rent and for-sale sign regulations, and changes in the classifications of sawmills and outdoor recreation areas.

Another Stigma...

We often comment on the various stigmas with which our society is afflicted, and another perfect example came to light this week through a news story from the Pittsburgh area that received some national attention. It seems that a middle school nurse in that area decided to send letters home to the parents of overweight/obese children, to share her concern about the long- and short-term effects of their condition, and to offer some advice on providing for them a healthier diet and some exercise.

There was immediate outrage from many of the parents who received these letters. They described them as undeserved, unwelcome criticism of their children, as well as a slap in the face as to the quality of their parenting skills. The nurse has since vowed to never, ever send out such letters again.

Of course, if there existed some kind of hazard in a school that could be dangerous to the health of students — water contamination, the presence of asbestos, a case of meningitis, or any number of other situations — and information were not sent home to parents, woe to the administration of that school. Parents would go berserk, and heads would surely roll.

Yet, obesity has taken the number one spot as the greatest health risk in our country, and the number of obese children has tripled in just the past 20 years, as they consume tons of fast food and spend way too much time in front of a television screen or computer monitor. Scores of us are dying every second because of some kind of health problem related directly to our being significantly overweight, or at least to our poor diets. The abuse of our bodies can take many forms, not only the use of tobacco, drugs, or too much alcohol, but also in what kinds of food we consume and whether or not we exercise. Poor diets and lack of exercise are cutting lives short and greatly reducing the quality of life, as well as costing us billions of dollars every year.

But we have this stigma about being overweight. We wrongly believe that our weight somehow equates with our value as human beings, so when that nurse sent those letters home, the parents interpreted her message as a value judgment of their child, not to mention a value judgment of them as parents. An far better response would have been, "Thank you for your concern, we welcome your advice, and we would like to work with you and the school to help not only our child, but all of the children in the school, learn how to take better care of themselves and thus live happier, healthier lives." Fat chance.

THE MYSTERY OF THE CLOTHESBASKET

by Beth L. Bowers

Sometimes I wonder if it is just me or does every person, especially mothers, have an endless pile of laundry. I think dirty clothes defy the simple laws of nature. I honestly think the dirty garments reproduce on their own.

Take the simple job of doing laundry. No big deal. I feel I have somewhat mastered the concept. I can even accomplish one load before leaving for work and finish the second while cleaning up the kitchen after work. Quite impressive, if I do say so myself. But it isn't that simple.

The scenario (which happens every time, I swear): I successfully launder and fold all the clothes, which isn't as simple as you would think, since the 3-year-old loves to help "fold" clothes and the 9-month-old can't help but drool all over the piles before wadding them up and throwing them. (Already I am tired. No wonder I have just had my second bout with mono.)

I take the basket upstairs to put the clothes away. Naturally, I have to refold all of them because of my "little helpers," but I let them help because I like that fact that they are so excited about helping me. Now I can feel my sense of accomplishment as I put away the last pile. I am one of those people who writes lists, but not only do I write lists, but I write lists for my lists. The joy in a list for me is checking off the items. I digress.

As I put down the empty, clean basket, what do my eyes see? Yep, you guessed it, a pile of dirty clothes where the basket usually resides. Now even though I am glad the clothes are in the area of the basket, living with all boys this is a big deal, but where did these clothes come from? I know they weren't there when I started.

So the next time I did laundry I tried what I thought was a fail-safe method. Tyler, 3, thought this was a great idea because he got to spend Saturday morning "nakey." I stripped him and his brother down to their respective underwear and diaper and declared to my husband, "If you want it laundered, take it off now."

You would have thought this would have worked, but as I finished and placed the basket on the floor, there was, you guessed it, another pile....

A Closer Look At # ZONING

Editor's note: The controversial issue of zoning continues to come to the forefront in Garrett County, and with increased development, will most certainly remain a heated issue for months, or years, to come. The following is the first in a series of informational articles written on the subject of zoning. The writer, Gortner resident Bill Welch, is both interested and knowledgeable in this area, and has utilized numerous sources to support his writing. The first article is on the history of zoning, which actually dates back more than 2,000 years. Welch also invites the public to submit questions about zoning to him, c/o The Republican, P.O. Box 326, Oakland, MD 21550, the answers to which he will incorporate into future articles.

by Bill Welch

1) What is zoning? 2) What are legitimate public powers over private property? 3) What are legitimate landowner rights related to the public interest? and 4) How did we get where we are today in land use law? Individual answers to numbers two and three will differ, but easily available, accurate information tends to facilitate both public discussion and well considered decisions by officials. Both are needed as our area experiences rapid changes.

Many have opinions on zoning, but a significant number of opinions are based on equally undesirable, but diametrically opposing, concepts. One group believes government can and should determine property use to protect property values and open spaces. Their polar opposites believe that privately owned property rights can and should approach the absolute. One group would prevent the farmer from developing her farm while the other group would turn a blind eye to junkyards accepting barrels of PCB-laden waste, but if asked, both groups would reply, "Oh, I didn't mean that!"

Unrestricted land use was accepted in frontier America as it is on all frontiers, because where cultures clash, survival and peace take precedenee over housekeeping issues. However, regulation of land use in towns and cities probably predates the Twelve Tables, Rome's first codified law (circa 450 BC), which formalized the Roman government's right to control specific appearance factors on private property. Rome's property laws appear not to have been related to the public health since most of Rome's sewage still ended up in the streets four centuries later.

Some colonial American towns regulated locations for hard use activities (e.g., slaughterhouses, tallow chandlers) and frequently banned businesses regarded as nuisances (e.g., taverns, brothels). Early American property use regulation was exclusively related to public health and nuisance issues. It wasn't until the twentieth century that American property use law found its way back to Roman purposes.

Property use issues have been contested before government officials for at least 2,400 years. One supposes there was a property use case somewhere in America in 1776. In the nineteenth century state courts did a considerable business in property rights law. Before the 1960s American courts tended to support the heritage of the town, state, or federal district in which a case was heard, and the U.S. Supreme Court generally upheld lower courts, most often by refusing to hear appeals of land use cases.

In 1916, New York City enacted the first modern zoning law separating "incompatible uses" and establishing specific controls on how and where buildings could be built. The overarching issues facing New York City's government were skyscrapers blocking sunlight and protecting the value of skyscrapers by keeping smokestack industries away from them. The "wedding cake" skyscraper look was a compromise that let some sunshine hit the streets without prohibiting vertical population growth. However, Romans might have written the New York law, as its primary purpose was protecting property values (ensuring growth in tax revenues) and the public health benefits of sunshine, wind, and rain were afterthoughts.

In 1926, in the case from which modern zoning (Euclidean Zoning) gets its name if not its purpose, the Supreme Court ruled that zoning law is constitutional. The case was Village of Euclid, Ohio, vs. Ambler Realty Co. The court ruled that zoning is constitutional, provided it is intended to protect the public health, welfare, and safety. Justice Sutherland's opinion referred to apartments as "mere parasites" (as compared to single family dwellings in the hierarchy of dwellings), and those two words are the slender federal nail on which proponents of zoning as a primary property value protector hang their hats to this day. Subsequent rulings have upheld protecting property values as a legitimate purpose of zoning, but the back trail leads to those incautious words as clearly as the Youghiogheny River's source can be traced to a spring just below the highest point on Backbone Mountain.

Note: While many sources were used researching this series, John Nelson, director of the Garrett County Zoning Office, and his staff deserve special thanks for their help locating information and filling in the blanks here and there.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Recently The Republican published an exchange of letters between George Falter and W.L. (Wild Bill) Welch, in which Welch made several erroneous claims concerning my representation of John Hinebaugh in the "Fousek affair."

Firstly, Mr. Welch speaks of matters relating to my relationship with Mr. Hinebaugh of which, assuming he is not a long-distanee mind reader or the invisible man, he has no personal knowledge. I didn't "dismiss" Mr. Hinebaugh as a "gadfly" (although this is the only type of fly to which I am favorably disposed). I have known John for almost 25 years and have always considered him a responsible guy, who, when he saw something he believed to be right or wrong, was willing to give of his time and his resources to address it.

I disagreed with John when he supported charter government for Garrett County, and my reasons were published in various letters to your paper. (Adopting charter government for Garrett County is a little like buying the U.S. Tax Code because you received a W-2 from your part-time job at McDonald's.) But, I respected John's point of view and he respected mine.

Mr. Welch's letter claims that I "came on board for pay and positive public exposure" and insinuates that I would not have been willing to represent John unless he had produced overwhelming evidence "eliminating professional risk" against the county.

In reality, when John first met with me concerning this matter neither he nor I had any "evidence" whatsoever (well, we were pretty sure of certain solar activity). All he knew was that more than a million dollars in county roads equipment had been purchased and that he had not been able to get information on the details from the commissioners. He had been stonewalled and was not a happy camper. John had filed, on his own, a request under the State Access to Public Documents law with no response forthcoming. His request to me was to file suit to pry loose the elusive documents.

The first suit basically requested the court to order the commissioners to provide the documents. That case was settled when documents were produced and the county agreed to pay Mr. Hinebaugh's attorney's fees, which were minimal. Mr. Welch says I "came on board for pay or positive exposure." Nope. I did so to represent a client and because I felt strongly that the county's conduct was intolerable. After we received the documents, we then had what I considered to be sufficient evidence that the law had been violated and that the commissioners, through Mr. Fousek, had purchased the roads equipment without the required public bidding process. The whole transaction, in my view, was as questionable as a pat on the back from an Afghan warlord.

Anyway, I then filed a suit, on behalf of John, which, among other things, requested damages for the county from each of the commissioners personally, requested the transaction be declared null, and that the court block payment of county funds for the equipment. That second suit was based on the information obtained as a result of the first suit. Such a suit is known in the law as a Taxpayer's Derivative Action. It resulted in the county "freezing" the payments for the equipment.

During the second suit, however, additional "papers" turned up. Mr. Fousek said they had been in a desk drawer and overlooked. What? They could have turned up in the West Wing of the White House, in an empty cigar box perhaps. Anyway, that resulted in a third suit asking for damages against the county for violation of the agreement in the first suit in not giving us these important public documents to which we were legally entitled.

All these suits were settled when the commissioners assured us we had (finally!) all the documents and offered to "retire" Mr. Fousek, and a new and strengthened county law was adopted by the Maryland Legislature, through the good offices of Delegate George Edwards, which sets forth a more complete procedure for bidding and makes the commissioners responsible should they fail to follow it.

Thereafter, John and I learned that although Mr. Fousek had "retired" as a result of the agreement, the county had given him other lucrative positions while he was collecting on the sweetheart retirement deal, had paid him for questionable comp time and vacations without documentation or proof and that he had also set up a "consulting business" that was submitting bills to the county for his running of the Roads Department. Further documents were obtained concerning all these matters, including Mr. Fousek's very high salary and the compensation and retirement agreement he signed with the county. These documents revealed other amazing facts (it's sooo nice to be loved), all through legal requests filed by me on behalf of John and Loch Lynn mayor Charles Tressler.

My letters revealing the amazing facts were published in The Republican, which caused a public outcry. This eventually sparked then State's Attorney Jim Sherbin to request an investigation by the state prosecutor, who eventually charged Mr. Fousek with a number of crimes.

In some quarters, I know I did receive "positive public exposure." In others, my role in this was seen as far from positive. In fact, my family and I received hate mail, phone threats, and I wound up with some powerful enemies. Such is the price of citizenship! But John Hinebaugh and I, as well as Charlie Tressler, acted because we believed what we were doing was in the best interest of the county.

Although I have enjoyed Mr. Welch's letters for their wit and see him as a concerned citizen (not to mention gadfly), I cannot allow his incorrect presentation of the facts to stand unchallenged.

Sincerely,
Bob Watson

P.S. Bill, this is not intended to start a new exchange of letters, which I definitely don't recommend!

To the Editor:

I read with interest your news article of April 11, 2002, page C-1, concerning Mr. Kirk Overfield's "acquittal" for violation of the Maryland Custom Home Protection Act, as owner of K.C. Construction. You need to get your story straight. Overfield's case was not acquitted, it was only dismissed. And, it was dismissed without prejudice, allowing the issue to be brought forward again to the court.

The state's attorney failed to present crucial evidence, which the Garrett Bureau of Investigation, prior to trial, had labored many months to gather against Overfield. GBI had fully informed Ms. Welch's office in detail of their findings. The state's case, in court, was negligent at best, and this allowed Overfield to walk away from justice, for now.

Journalism is a noble profession, but accurate reporting is part of the job. A correction is needed.

Sincerely,
Anthony Lambros
Fallston

Mr. Lambros:

I maintain that our reporting of this court case was absolutely accurate, for I have in front of me the news release from the state's attorney's office from which our story was written. It says that Overfield "was acquitted of charges of failing to escrow monies provided under a building contract," and further, "Judge Jim Sherbin granted a defense motion for acquittal..."

Also, the precise wording on the court document (#3516) is as follows: "At the conclusion of the state's case, the defense made a motion for judgement of aquittal as to all counts. Motion granted. Case dismissed."

So, our story is already straight, and I believe that, in this case at least, the nobility of the journalism profession is intact.

The people of Grantsville and the surrounding area deserve to be applauded for their fund raising on behalf of a new Grantsville library. The sense of community and caring that has been exhibited by the massive amount of money raised is truly wonderful. It shows that the library is a place that is not only used, but also highly valued by many people.

I am sure that communities around the country will look at "how Grantsville did it" as a model for their own fund-raising efforts. Everyone involved should be congratulated.

To the Editor:

"The Recreational Trail System Plan for Deep Creek Lake, sponsored by the Garrett County commissioners (my emphasis), will receive $35,000 to acquire rights-of-way and construct a trail from Deep Creek Lake State Park to the Wisp Mountain Resort. Is it only me, or do others think that there is something wrong with this picture? How can this be when there is no money available for all of the other really important things like recreational opportunities for the youth in this county, upgrading the libraries, assistance for the elderly, and myriad other needs that are currently not being met? Have they no shame?

And then there is this. Garrett County Community Action Community will receive $473,625 including "$170,000 to acquire property for townhouse construction for low- and moderate-income residents." What does this really mean? Leaving out the gory details and cutting directly to the chase, it means, according to a GCCAC official, "providing affordable housing for people employed in jobs created around the lake; that's the whole purpose." Total estimated cost: $4 million for 40 units, and you know how those estimate things go. When I asked if low- to-moderate income Garrett County families would have first preference, the answer was — well, now people, what do you think? Of course it was NO. By the way, the commissioners have known about this for a long time and have yet to hold a public meeting on the issue. They did have a little publicized hearing on this last year, but nothing since. What do you think, folks? Are there other areas in the county that might have a need for low- to-moderate income housing, or should DCL get first priority on this money?

And this. According to the recent editorial in The Republican the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce has approximately $185,000 left over from the construction of their Taj Mahal building at Deep Creek Lake "as the construction was covered by other governmental grants." Weren't they recently asking the commissioners for more of our hard-earned tax dollars? And now they want to set up a foundation

To the Editor:

I am writing to you because I want to tell you how I feel about our Earth being trashed. I am tired of picking up after other people! I feel like a maid! I would like to have a clean Earth. I would like for people in our county, including me, to pick up the trash. We should also recycle things that we can.

If we don't do these things, we won't have our home, the Earth. How will we use and enjoy our Earth when we have trash up to our knees? That is why we should not litter and should take care of our Earth.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

I would like to inform all Monte Carlo owners, 1970-2002, to check out these two superb sites: www.montecarloclub.com and www.montecarloss.com.

Anybody who is interested in starting a Monte Carlo chapter in the tri-state area and are from Allegany, Garrett, Bedford, Somerset, Grant, Mineral, and Preston counties, please contact me, Walt Walters, at 301-895-3827, e-mail: waltswashnwax@earthlink.net or y'all can write me at 1182 Springs Road, Grantsville, MD 21536. I highly recommend joining the NMCOA (National Monte Carlo Owners Association) even if you are not interested in wanting to participate in a local chapter.

The knowledge, wisdom, and endless information that I personally have acquired through the folks on these sites have provoked me to continue to do my homework and research on Monte Carlos. If I don't know an answer to someone's question, I start E-mailing, writing, and/or call people to find that particular answer. If I don't know something on a Monte, then I'm not afraid to ask. How about A...S...K? Ask, Seek, Knock!

In closing, here are some things I've learned. There were a little over 3,200 '70 Monte SSs and a little under 2,000 '71 Monte SSs made. The SSs had big blocks. When Monte SSs were reinstated in '83 there were only white and blue SSs manufactured. 1986 saw the introduction of the Aerocoupe SS and this was a special deal with an aftermarket company and only 200 were made that year. 1987 Aerocoupe SS production was up to 6,052. 1988 was the last year for rear wheel drive Montes. In 1995 Monte came back, but with V-6 front-wheel drive, and there were also 400 Brickyard models made. This year, 2002, there will be 3,333 Dale Earnhardt Montes set to come off the production line for those who want to remember one of NASCAR's great performers. Enjoy the sites.

Sincerely,
Walt Walters

LIFE OR SOMETHING LIKE IT

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:44 - Released 4/26/02

This film is an example of what you get when you pair a formula writer with a formula director. You get a formula movie. Life Or Something Like It, while not a spectacular film, clearly displays the workmanlike instincts of its creative team, instincts which neither inspire greatness nor fail altogether. Director Stephen Herek (Rock Star) and writer John Scott Shepherd (Joe Somebody), teaming up with the very capable Angelina Jolie, turn out a serviceable romantic comedy which will float at the box office for a few weeks before fading into cinematic oblivion to become a video store shelf warmer.

Jolie plays ambitious and self-absorbed Seattle TV newswoman Lanie Kerigan, a health & fitness nut and control freak whose life as a plain little sister changed when she adopted a platinum blonde hairstyle and began wooing the local news audience with her easy charm. When Lanie discovers she's up for a big network job in New York City, she is ecstatic, but in order to build a better demo tape, she's assigned to work with the slobby and carefree Pete (Edward Burns), with whom she shares a healthy mutual animosity. Their discomfort at this assignment stems partly from the fact that their lifestyles are so different, and partly because they slept together one drunken night way back when. Their first story is about a homeless street psychic named Jack (Tony Shalhoub), who, after predicting hail and an unlikely football win by the Seahawks over visiting Denver, abruptly informs Lanie she's going to die next Thursday. At first Lanie dismisses the comment, but when both the other predictions come true, she begins to worry. With possibly only a week to live, she begins to question her life choices, and wonders, like Ebenezer Scrooge, if changing her current path will alter the outcome.

Johe is certainly as charming in this role as her character is supposed to be, and as superficial. She begins to show a bit of depth in the scenes where Lanie tries to reconcile with her estranged sister (Lisa Thornhill) and seemingly oblivious father (James Gammon), but her time on screen with Burns is pure Hollywood. Burns, by the same token, is adequately likeable in a role with much less depth than the one he played in Saving Private Ryan. The chemistry between the two is exactly enough to get by, but neither actor is bending over backward to convince. Compared to these two, Shalhoub easily crafts the film's most interesting character; it's just too bad he's hardly ever on the screen. Also present is Stockard Channing as a snooty Barbara Walters type, but her screen time is also severely limited.

Although this film makes a weak attempt to wax philosophical about making meaningful choices and being true to oneself, its creative team is really not up to the task of any such serious discussion. And Jolie; well, she's still trying to find her niche. ★★★½

MURDER BY NUMBERS

Rated R - Running Time: 2:01 - Released 4/19/02

A taut, emotional thriller of the Silence Of The Lambs variety is Murder By Numbers, which combines the talents of Iranian-born arthouse director Barbet Schroeder and novice writer Tony Gayton. It stars Sandra Bullock as a detective who discovers there is more to a routine murder case than first meets the eye. The character is not your typical good cop; she's got various issues and makes some questionable decisions, but Bullock generally pulls it off so that we can at least identify. The film also stars two young men, Michael Pitt (Dawson's Creek) and Ryan Gosling, who are impressive as the film's two villains, although the occasionally overwrought script sometimes asks them to do some pretty outrageous things and the final reel gets more unvelievable as it unspools. Also present is Ben Chaplin, who continues his characterization from Lost Souls; i.e., bored, confused, and unaware of what movie he's in.

The film, which despite its title and poster design really doesn't have much to do with numbers, centers around two California high school students, awkward genius Justin Pendleton (Pitt) and his charming and popular friend, Richard Haywood (Gosling), who decide to see if, by careful planning, they can kill someone without being caught. Their desire to do this is founded on Justin's philosophical conjecture that the only way to really experience freedom is to commit crime without facing the consequences. After meticuloualy studying forensics and criminal investigation, they select a victim at random and do the deed, not only being sure to avoid leaving any evidence of their guilt, but introducing other clues designed to throw the authorities off the trail.

The authorities in this case are veteran criminal profiler Cassie Mayweather (Bullock) and her new partner, Sam Kennedy (Chaplin). Although Cassie is both experienced and intuitive, she seems to be suffering from some kind of emotional/psychological problem related to an event in her past which occasionally clouds her judgment. As the case progresses, she and Sam interview Justin and Richard; they seem innocent and their prearranged clues work perfectly, drawing Sam into suspecting another man (Chris Penn), who apparently took his own life soon after the murder. But Cassie can't get Richard's oily charm and arrogant attitude out of her mind, and despite protestations from Sam and the chief (R.D. Call) to let is rest, she continues the investigation on her own hunches and at her own expense, partially spurred on by the images that plague her memory.

This is generally an effective movie; it is overly long, and the pace sometimes seems to slow to a standstill, but director Schroeder ensures that the tension is always there. The script by Gayton goes from being intense and dark to overcomplicated, and sometimes seems too intelligent for its own good. Bullock's character is complex; she's not exactly the kind of protagonist we can always get behind, and this is an important point—the film suffers from the lack of lixable characters. Helping marginally to counteract this is 17-year-old Agnes Bruckner, who plays a small but crucial role as the girl whose connection to both boys helps Cassie put it all together. Chaplin, meanwhile, is easily the least engaging person in the flick; even though he's supposed to be one of the good guys, he's as wooden as ever. The literal cliffhanger ending is far too overblown to be convincing, but most of what comes before it deserves praise. ★★★★

Opera Singer Robert Mosley Dies Tuesday

Robert Mosley, who performed for audiences in major opera houses internationally as Porgy in Porgy and Bess, Amonasro in Aida, and the title role in Rigoletto, and was also a guest soloist locally with the Garrett Choral Society on several occasions, died Tuesday, April 30, in Wilmington, N.C., after a long illness.

Mosley's wife is the former Rita Shrout, a native of Mtn. Lake Park.

During a career that spanned several decades, Mr. Mosley received standing ovations night after night in major international productions and tours, portraying Porgy, Amonasro, Valentin in Faust (opposite Beverly Sills), the male lead in Wagner's The Flying Dutchman, Joe singing "Old Man River" in Showboat, and other major roles. He sang opposite such other soprano stars as Leontyne Price, Grace Bumbry, and Camilla Williams.

At Mosley's Town Hall debut, New York Times critic Richard Freed wrote: "One could not have expected that Mr. Mosley could so effectively lighten the huge voice just heard with such effect in the Verdi area... uncommon taste, judgment, and perfect sense of style... The aural image of Ezio Pinza was strongly evoked."

Upon hearing his voice as Porgy in Solingen, Germany, a music critic from Osservatore Roma, a leading Italian journal, wrote, "This is the greatest Wotan voice I have ever heard."

Despite early struggles, Mr. Mosley persevered in what seemed like an impossible dream for a black youngster from Pittsburgh — to someday sing at the Metropolitan Opera in New York City. He studied with voice teachers, soloed with church choirs, and eventually won the national Metropolitan auditions. Conductor Leopold Stokowski heard of this young singer and cast him in the leading role in Carl Orff's Carmina Burana, a role so wide in vocal range it was usually portrayed by two different singers. His performance led to other engagements as soloist with many leading symphony orchestras, including Chicago, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and the New York Philharmonic, as well as most of the opera houses in the United States, including Seattle, San Francisco, Boston, Houston, New York City Opera, and finally, the Met.

After singing 62 performances in the title role in Rigoletto, 86 as Amonasro, 30 as Tonio in Pagliacci, and 475 performances as Porgy — more than any other living bass baritone — Mr. Mosley finally realized his dream of starring at the Metropolitan Opera in 1984. Maestro James Levine chose him to portray Porgy at the Met in the historic first performance there of Porgy and Bess as grand opera. Over the next two seasons there, Mr. Mosley would win wide acclaim as Porgy in 30 performances.

"As well as a great artist, Bob was, to all who knew him and sang with him, a generous, honest, kind-hearted human being," stated a family friend. "He was a pioneer in breaking the barriers for black classical singers, and he will be remembered with gratitude by the many young artists of all races with whom he was always willing to share his knowledge, encouragement, and unconditional support."

He had just recently completed the first draft of his autobiography, titled I'm on My Way, which relates his struggle to achieve his dream.

After moving from New York City to Kure Beach, N.C., in 1994, Mr. Mosley attended Trinity United Methodist Church in Wilmington. He continued to sing for church services, as well as for fund-raisers and benefits.

Besides his wife Rita, he is survived by two sons, Herman A. Mosley and Robert W. Mosley; two daughters, Robbin Nelson and Kim Caudwell; three grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, and numerous nieces, nephews, and cousins.

A memorial service will be held at Trinity United Methodist Church at 1 p.m. Saturday, May 11, with Rev. Skip Williams officiating. The family will receive friends at the church one hour prior to the service.

Mrs. Mosley requests that expressions of sympathy take the form of donations to the Robert Mosley Musician Grant, c/o Judith Cantor, CPA, P.O. Box 97682, Raleigh, NC 27624. This fund will be used to provide financial aid to struggling musicians in the form of tuition scholarships, as well as for private study, and will be available to all musicians across the country in need.

Jones Honored As 'Republican Of Year At SGCRWC Meeting

Oakland resident Mary Jones has been named the 2002 Republican of the Year by the Southern Garrett County Republican Women's Club. Jones, wife of retired Judge Lewis Jones, was honored during a recent SGCRWC meeting at the Mountain Glade Adult Day Care Center. "Mary has been very instrumental in making our community, county, and state a better place to live and work," club president Bea Crosco said as she presented the SGCRWC charter member with a plaque denoting the honor.

A native of Preston County, W.Va., Jones earned a bachelor of science degree in education at West Virginia University before taking a position as a high school teacher in the Preston County School system. She and Jones were married in 1939, and the couple will be marking their 63rd wedding anniversary in September. They make their home in Oakland.

Over the years Mary Jones immersed herself in a variety of volunteer service activities. She was a Brownie Troop leader for five years; served as the first curator of the Garrett County Historical Society (GCHS) Museum; was the only woman member of a committee appointed by Judge Neil Fraley to examine the establishment of a Juvenile Court for Garrett County; and served as county chairperson for the political campaigns of Charles McMathias and J. Glenn Beall Jr.

Jones has also dedicated much of her time to promoting the public library system in Garrett County. She is a life member of the Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library, and held has held the positions of secretary-treasurer, vice president, and president of the Ruth Enlow Library board. She also served on the library's original building committee. During the SGCRWC award ceremony, current County Commissioner Wendell Beitzel saluted Jones's recent successful efforts in working to maintain the name "The Ruth Enlow Library."

Jones's commitment to community service has been recognized by a number of organizations in a variety of ways. She served as the chairperson of the "Song of the Oaks" Oakland Centennial Pageant in 1949; was named 1952's "Citizen of the Year" by the Oakland Girl Scout Troop; was honored by the Business and Professional Women's Club for her GCHS work in 1969; was recognized as an honorary member of the Southern High School Quill and Scroll in 1970 for her work as curator of the GCHS Museum; and was awarded life membership in the Preston County Historical Society for her "exceptional generosity" in 1999.

Jones maintains a number of memberships in community civic organizations, including as a charter member of both the SGCRWC and the Youghiogheny Glades Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution; Past Worthy Matron of the Order of the Eastern Star's Oakland Chapter; member of the Green Schools committee; and life member of the GCHS, the Rowlesburg Area Historical Society, and the Gamma Phi Beta sorority.

A 62-year member of St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Oakland, Jones is a charter member of the church's WSCS (Women's Society of Christian Service), now known as the UMW (United Methodist Women). She has also served on St. Paul's administrative board, parsonage committee, and historical committee.

A number of local dignitaries and guests were on hand to honor Jones, many of whom made statements honoring her for her years of selfless service in the community and on a personal level. Del. George Edwards recalled how his wife Linda always talked about how Lewis and Mary were so supportive of her during a pageant sponsored by First National Bank. Joanne Glotfelty remarked how both of the Joneses had brought dignity and service to the community, and longtime personal friends Tom and Sara Kuhn spoke of their friendship with the couple, noting with humor that they enjoy the same religion, politics, and sports teams.

Approximately 40 people total were on hand for the event, which included a covered dish buffet meal. A number of Republican Party-affiliated elected officials — many of who are seeking re-election — and their wives were present, including: Senator and Mrs. John Hafer; Delegate George Edwards; Commissioner Wendell Beitzel, Commissioner Fred Holliday and his wife Joan; Sheriff Dick Sanders and his wife Joan; Clerk of the Circuit Court Dave Martin; Register of Wills Joseph DiSimone; Judges of Orphans Court Clifford DeWitt and George Zimmerman; candidates for Judge of Orphans Court Wayne Wilt and current Tax Assessor Jim Margroff; and about 20 club members, associate members, spouses, and guests.

The SGRWC welcomed two new members, Nancy Jordan and Janet Mosser, during the same meeting as Leona Beckman presided over the induction ceremonies. Commissioner Beitzel distributed campaign bumper stickers supporting GOP gubernatorial candidate Robert Ehrlich. Del. Edwards drew the winning raffle ticket, and received a Republican T-shirt which had been donated by club member Nita Roberts.

Persons interested in joining the SGCRWC may call 301-334-2147.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

This morning I took a trip back in time to 30 years ago this morning. After the day when less than 50 days were left in the school year, "The Nightmare Club" started to go into full swing. Cindy Beachy and I, plus our little sisters, Sally and Carol, were members. Since the junior members did not have rideable ponies, the early adventures mainly involved just Cindy and me. The first priority was investigating the water in our creek (we used to call it the "criek") and starting our annual slate of dam and bridge building. We used some the basic primitive techniques. For the bridge we just started with rocks and mixed clumps of mud and grass or plant roots with the rocks.

I remember one time I chose a clump of marsh grass and marsh marigolds, and as I picked it up I saw a big gray snake coiled under it. Of course, I did the same thing I always do in any close encounter with snakes. I screamed like I was attacked by some wild animal. I did the same thing when we saw a bobcat in a tree near the place just over the fence line between our two farms. Of course, the bobcat didn't bother us, not with our brave dogs who surrounded the tree and barked like crazy, but we dropped everything and ran back to my house. We ripped our shorts when we jumped the barbed wire fence.

The "line fence" was an important landmark, as it was the place we crossed the creek near a very red apple tree with the most delicious apples and what we named "The Apple Tree," which was almost to the Stephenses' place below "The Big Hill," where the last snow always lingered under its shadow. Just across the creek and up the hill from the woods was "The Black Berries Patch."

This time of the year I go crazy just to see "The Violet Bog," which was a tiny bog where thousands of big purple violets grow out of the sphagnum moss. Just down from "The Violet Bog" was the "Bear Log," which was an old rotten log with lots of claw marks on it. It was near by the area with lots of big rocks. "The Rocks" was a hazard for riding ponies, but great for dens for wild animals. The bear marks on skunk cabbage leaves in the spring along the creek are always abundant. Once I saw a bear's bowel movement there, which was bigger than my head. I guess skunk cabbage has a good laxative quality.

We gathered big handfuls of the earliest wildflowers for our mothers and grandmothers. One of my favorites we called "cowslips," but the correct name is trout lily. My Aunt Dorothy told me when she was a girl they called them marsh marigold cowslips. I doubt that anyone told us that trout lily was called cowslip, but I guess we named them by ourselves. After all, the little yellow lily-shaped flowers looked like a dress or skirt. We did not have any real field guides, and I relied on the World Book Encyclopedia for all my reference needs.

Of course, we also had some of our chores to deal with in the spring, like shedding out our ponies so, instead of their looking like buffalos, their coats were sleek and shiny. We had to prepare for the Garrett County Horseman's Association Spring Horse Show. We also loved it when new ponds formed in our fields from the spring rains.

I can still remember when springtime was a time to look forward to lots of good times, and I knew I could find a wonderful world in my woods, I still feel I think of the same thing, but find it impossible this year. After 20 years of married life, which is now over, and I can't roam in my beloved woods, I still long to go there, even if it is impossible now. I always found peace in those woods. I need to go now more than ever to pick violets, not to give to my mother, but for my nature dolls that could earn me some extra money. After about a week's search to find a service tree that I could reach and get a branch of those little frilly white flowers that would be perfect for cuffs and collars for my dolls, I finally found a few small trees near the Glotfelty cemetery when, for once, the ground was dry enough to drive off the road.

We did have some good April showers so I guess we can expect plenty of May flowers, and we should have enough ground water that not many springs in Bittinger will dry out this summer. The last few days we had a cold wind blowing all the time, at least on our farm. There is need for more fuel oil for some heat, but must wait until after the first of the month. I guess that the ewes had a feeling that those few warm summer-like days that we had would not last very long, so they still keep their baby lambs snug and warm inside them. There are no days that I get out that I don't look for that real spring when I see a few lambs frolicking in the pasture at Jimmy Glotfelty's.

Last Saturday when it was somewhat dry I took a chance to go into the woods in my car, which is the only way I can. I know that along the little road between Accident-Bittinger and Rock Lodge Road lots of violets grow, as well as wild myrtle with bright purple little flowers. I took a chance that I would not get stuck in a few mud holes in that road. I didn't get stuck, but when I stopped to dig a few violet plants, my car refused to start again. Since my battery was dead, my cell phone refused to work, so I was truly stuck. I managed to walk on the rough, uneven road to Accident-Bittinger Road. I was able to stop two cars, but both drivers drove off without helping me. Finally I flagged down Jason Long, who is a senior at Northern High School. He at least tried to jump my car, but he was unsuccessful. He did take me home though. He was a real good neighbor. Thank you, Jason!

Pappy Dale did succeed in starting my car, but he had to give me a lecture that I can't go on back roads alone. I am sick to death that I always have to be dependent on someone to help me to do little things that I want to do. It was so scary and nightmarish that I guess I will have to obey him.

Even though I was a bad girl on Sunday morning (not going to church), still my girls did, and when they came home they were bearing a couple nice presents for me, which were a bag of cookies and muffins from Cindy Stanton and a beautiful banquet of daffodils and orange and yellow striped tulips from Ethel Buckel. So I guess I can't really say that no one cares about me. I do treasure my friends. I had scads of friends when I was on top of the world, but when the chips are down things do change.

Maybe some of my friends are only temporarily away, as some old friends showed up today at my place. One of the most sassy birds of all, a red winged blackbird was sitting on top of my bird feeder screaming at all the rest of the birds and a couple of barn swallows just back from somewhere in South America. One was a young adolescent, and he was upset because it was too cold today to suit him. He seemed to say, "You must be out of your mind when you said we would go to a real nice place where you grew up. This place is cold and too windy for my taste!" Then he screamed, "You can say this is where I was born, but I remember my first home was filled with sweet green hay, but this barn is almost empty, and where are all the flowers I remember? There are no signs of any roses or those nice white fluffy flowers that used to grow everywhere?" Dad said, "Oh, those were Queen Anne's Lace and they will come in a few months, and so will those pink and red roses too. The barn will get filled up again. Even though we do not have our family back yet, they will come back soon."

Finalists For Heise Award Named

KAREN MYERS

HUGH UMBEL

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce received 13 nominations for the 2002 Heise Entrepreneurial Spirit Award, from which three finalists have recently been selected. Named for Helmuth and Evelyn Heise, founders of the Wisp Ski Resort, the award recognizes one business owner each year who has shown similar entrepreneurial qualities. The criteria for nomination include a "can-do" attitude, willingness to take risks, involvement in the community, high ethical standards, and demonstrated leadership.

This year's finalists are John Marple, Karen Myers, and Hugh Umbel. The slate was narrowed to three finalists by a committee of past Heise award winners Jonathan "Smiley" Kessler, Bill Sisler, and Olen Beitzel. "The three finalists will be presented to the general membership for a vote," said Chamber president Ken Wishnick.

Marple was nominated for "foresight and tenacity in growing his business," which is one of the oldest on the shores of Deep Creek Lake — Johnny's Bait House. Having started out with a one-room operation and selling minnows from the back of a pick-up truck, Marple built his business into a "landmark" enterprise. He was also recognized for "fair and honest dealings" with fellow business owners and customers, which have earned him respect within his community. Marple is a past Autumn Glory Honorary Golden Ambassador.

Myers was cited for working tirelessly within her own businesses and for Garrett County through her commitments to the Deep Creek Lake Promotion Council and the Chamber of Commerce. She was praised for her "consideration for local citizens and the environment" while helping achieve the county's "visions for economic development." Myers was described as a leader driven to help the county grow and prosper.

Umbel was singled out for investing his personal time and capital in the development of his businesses. Praised for the "high quality construction of his projects" from the Willows to Market Square, Umbel was said to have earned respect for taking risks in opening the lake area's first supermarket and reopening the Foodland in Grantsville Plaza. As a member of the Chamber of Commerce board of directors, he chairs the Chamber Foundation Task Force.

Ballots will be mailed shortly to chamber members, and the winner will be announced at the annual chamber dinner on June 6.

Name Omitted In Honor List

In an article in last week's paper listing the Northern High School students named to the honor roll list for the third grading term, a name was omitted. Kayla Kamp, 10th grade, was named to the regular honor roll list.

In Memory of my husband
Harold Lipscomb
August 29, 1935 - May 2, 2002

Two years ago a golden heart stopped beating and the gates of Heaven opened for you to come in. It broke my heart to see you go, but you did not go alone, for a part of me went with you. I know your pain and suffering is no more, because there is no pain or suffering in heaven, just love and happiness.

When that gentle breeze blows in my face or the gentle rain falls on me, I know it's just you telling me to be strong and it's OK to cry now and then. I know you are my heavenly angel who watches over me night and day. Some day we will be together again. Until then I love you and miss you.

Your loving wife forever,

Music At Penn Alps Celebrates 10th Season; Line-Up Announced

This summer, Music at Penn Alps 2002 celebrates a decade of presenting eclectic, high-quality musical programs to the tri-state area. A variety of concerts are slated throughout the summer, culminating this year with the addition of a special International Piano Festival in September.

Concerts for the regular series will take place at 7:30 p.m. on selected Saturday evenings, beginning June 1 and ending August 27, in the Great Hall, which is adjacent to Penn Alps Restaurant and Crafts Shop in Grantsville.

The Astral Trio will open the season on June 1 with a classical program of Beethoven, Brahms, and Snostakovich, performed by three young, prize-winning musicians. Violinist Colin Jacobsen will join cellist Clancy Newman and pianist Anna Polonsky for this performance.

Cellist Kangho Lee, accompanied by his wife, pianist Minyoung Lee, will perform 20th century works on June 8. The winner of several competitions, Lee has appeared with leading orchestras in the United States and Europe since making his orchestral debut with the Seoul Philharmonic at age 12.

Performing as the "New Minstrels of the Rhine," Armin Hadamer and Susanne Koehler will offer a smorgasbord of traditional American music reflecting German influences. The duo specializes in songs and stories of the Mid-Atlantic region and Appalachian Mountains. They will perform on June 15.

A taste of the Big Apple will come to Penn Alps on June 29, when Songfellows perform a post-9/11 tribute, "New York: A Celebration in Song." Now celebrating its 10th season, this quartet of male choristers originated in New York's Metropolitan Opera. Ross Crolius (bass), Greg Davidson (tenor), Mukund Marathe (tenor), and Jared Stamm (baritone) sing works from every stylistic period and genre.

Two prominent members of the National Symphony Orchestra will join an accomplished accompanist to kick off the July concerts at Penn Alps. Concertmaster Nurit Bar-Josef will join Principal Violist Daniel Foster and solo and chamber pianist Audrey Andrist on July 6 for a performance of classical works.

Hailed as one of America's outstanding young ensembles, the Cassatt String Quartet will perform in the Great Hall on July 13. Muneko Otani (violin), Jennifer Leshnower (violin), Tawnya Popoff (viola), and Caroline Stinson (cello) have appeared at such venues as Carnegie Hall, Tanglewood Music Theatre, and the Kennedy Center.

Marissa Regni, principal second violinist of the National Symphony Orchestra, will combine talents with chamber pianist Kathryn Brake on July 20 for an assortment of classical music. Regni also performs with the acclaimed Manchester String Quartet. Brake previously appeared at Penn Alps in 2000 with cellist Glenn Garlick.

Oboist Vladimir Lande and his wife, pianist Irina Lande, will return to the Great Hall on July 27. They previously appeared in June 1999 as two-thirds of Trio Latre, and Mr. Lande appeared with guitarist William Feasley as half of the D'Amore Duo in 1998. Mr. Lande is principal oboist for the Baltimore Opera and artist-in-residence at St. Mary's College. Mrs. Lande is on the faculty of the Peabody Institute.

The only group of its kind in the mid-Atlantic region, the Washington Cornett & Sackbutt Ensemble, will fill the Great Hall with the sounds of brass on August 3. Featuring compositions from 15th-century wind band music to sophisticated baroque chamber works, the ensemble seeks to explore and promote the musical legacy of the cornets and historical trombone.

Prize-winning South Korean pianist Min Soo Sohn will share his talents with the Penn Alps audience on August 10. He is the silver prize winner of the 2001 Cleveland International Piano Competition and recipient of a full scholarship from the New England Conservatory. In South Korea, he won four first-place prizes in various competitions.

Jazz and classical music will be featured August 17 when the "first chairs" of the Garrett County Community Band appear in the Great Hall. Conductor and pipe major Gerald McGee, clarinetist Gino Maurieci, flutist Susan Peterson, and trumpeter Tom Simpson, all who frequently perform in the local area, will be featured.

The regular season closes on August 24 with the Unfortunate Rakes from nearby Winchester, Va. Michael DeLalla (voice, guitar, and bodhran), Chas. Foster (bagpipes and pennywhistle), and Bruce Wilkin (voice, fiddle, and tenor banjo) will perform music reflecting the far-reaching influences of the Celtic tradition in Ireland, Scotland, the Shetland Islands, Brittany, and Canada.

In September, Music at Penn Alps will present an International Piano Festival to support the recently established Alta E. Schrock Memorial Fund. Pianists from Portugal, Argentina, Taiwan, Israel, Key West (Florida), the Baltimore/Washington area, Morgantown, and Frostburg will donate their talents. Performances will take place throughout the month on Saturdays at 7:30 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m. All funds raised will be used to purchase a new piano for the Great Hall.

Music at Penn Alps is sponsored by Sincell Publishing Co. Inc., Penn Alps Restaurant and Craft Shop, corporate sponsors, and the support of individuals. Penn Alps is located east of Grantsville on Old Route 40 between exits 19 and 22 of Interstate 68.

Teen Book Club Sets Discussion Of Mystery Novel

The Teen Book Club of the Ruth Enlow Library will host a discussion of The Body of Christopher Creed, an award-winning mystery novel, for 2 p.m. Saturday, May 18, at the Oakland library. The book won the 2000 Printz Honor Books Award for excellence in literature for young adults and is a favorite of library patrons, according to library associate Keela Pfaff.

The setting for Carol Plum-Ucci's novel is Steepleton, a town that "could have dealt with a runaway, a suicide, an abduction, or even a murder," according to the book jacket. "Other towns survive them. But the thing about Chris Creed's disappearance is that he was just plain gone. .

"Chris Creed grew up as the class freak — the bullies' punching bag. After he vanished, the weirdness that had once surrounded him began spreading. It was as if a darkness reached out of his void to grab at the most normal, happy people — like some twisted joke or demented form of justice. It tore the town apart.

"For 16-year-old Torey Adams, Creed's disappearance becomes a major turning point in his privileged and sheltered life. The only apparent clue — a cryptic e-mail message written 24 hours before Chris turned up missing — draws Torey into the mystery and sets him on a path filled with terror and pain. In his search for the truth, Torey slowly discovers that some mysteries are not meant to be overcome."

Lending copies of The Body of Christopher Creed can be reserved by calling the library at 301-334-3996.

Teen Book Club discussions are open to all interested teens and young adults, and one does not have to have fully completed reading the book to participate. The club will not meet during the summer, but updates on future discussions will be published on the library's web site at www.relib.net. The library also facilitates a book club for students ages 9 through 11, and a third club for adults.

Callahan To Perform At Flowery Vale

Garrett County native Kristin Callahan, whose voice is noted for its wide range and expression, will make her return to the stage of the Flowery Vale Senior Center this weekend for the Accident area's annual variety show, set for 7 p.m. this Saturday, May 4.

A number of area residents are slated to perform at this year's installment of the annual variety show, and free refreshments will be provided by Aid Association for Lutherans Branch #585. Admission is free, although donations will be accepted to help support "nonACCIDENTal Images," a photography exhibition and competition that will take place as part of this year's July 4th Accident Homecoming.

A former Accident resident who now lives in the Finzel area, Callahan has recorded a demonstration CD of four songs of other musicians' material, and is currently writing several original compositions of her own.

Callahan has performed in a number of settings in and around the county, including as one of the headline acts for the 2001 Autumn Glory Kickoff Banquet and at last year's variety show at Flowery Vale, where she drew standing ovations on both occasions. She also gave several well-received recital performances while studying voice under the direction of Mary Mickle.

Some of Callahan's future performances include summer opening act appearances at a Garrett Lakes Arts Festival event in McHenry and at an installment of the Little Youghiogheny Music Festival in Oakland.

Callahan is a 1999 graduate of Northern High School, and currently attends Allegany College of Maryland in Cumberland.

Two Artists To Be Guests At May 11 Reception

The Garrett County Arts Council will host a public reception for guest artists Donna Whitford-Housel and Wiley-Lewis on Saturday, May 11, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Gallery in Oakland. The artists' exhibit, titled ArtMix, will be on display at the gallery through June 22.

Donna Whitford-Housel, a nature and wildlife artist from Bedford County, Pa., studied oil painting and drawing at the Foundry Art Studio in Everett, Pa. Her work has appeared on the front cover of Pennsylvania Bird magazine. In recent years she turned her attention to pastels, colored pencil, and scratch board, and the gallery display in Oakland includes works in all three of these media, as well as oil.

Whitford-Housel's abiding interest in nature is evident in her choice of subject matter and in her meticulous attention to detail. "While placing emphasis on some of the creatures with whom we must share our resources," she notes, "it is my intention to reflect a lifelong admiration of the beauty that is found within our natural surroundings." The Oakland exhibit includes her portrayals of leopards, tigers, zebras, bison, eagles, and "a very self-assured black lab," according to a gallery spokesman.

Wiley-Lewis, the Somerset, Pa., artist sharing the special exhibit space with Whitford-Housel, paints primarily in oils, but also works with watercolors, graphite, and colored pencils. Her works are on display in many private and corporate collections throughout the United States, as well as abroad. While representational style work has been her primary focus as an artist, she's included both abstract and representational works in the Oakland exhibit, using oils and watercolor on canvas and slate.

Wiley-Lewis notes that she didn't begin painting or drawing seriously until 1983 when "circumstances in my life brought home the full realization that we all run out of tomorrows.... Since beginning, I have steadfastly made use of my brushes, paints, and pencils."

"ArtMix is the perfect name for this intriguing collaboration," said Steve Schlosnagle, executive director of the Garrett County Arts Council. "We hope the public will join us to mix with the artists on May 11."

Additional information is available by calling the Garrett County Arts Council at 301-334-6580.

"Battle Of Bands" In Oakland To Feature Prizes

The Southern Garrett Youth Alliance will sponsor a "Battle of the Bands" event for high school age acts from 6 to 10 p.m. Saturday, May 18, at the Mtn. Fresh Pavilion in the Oakland town parking lot. The event is open to the public, and any high school students who would like to compete may do so by paying a $20 entry fee. Spectator admission is $3 per person.

Cash prizes or gift certificates will be awarded for the first, second, and third place winners. The audience will pick the winners by voting for their favorite band, and votes will be $1 each. The first place winner will be invited to play at the "School's Out Blow Out Dance/Karaoke" event, set for Saturday, June 1, which will take place at a time and location yet to be determined.

To book a performance slot or obtain more information, persons may call the Youth Alliance's Yvette Nutter at 301-334-1223.

Southern Band Spring Concert Slated Tuesday

The annual spring concert of the Southern High School band will be presented next Tuesday, May 7, in the school cafeteria, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

According to Richard Clever, director, the following pieces will be presented: "Southern Star" by David Gorham, "Psalm and Celebration" by Bruce Pearson and Chuck Elledge, "Fantasia for Band" by Vittorio Giannini, "Celestial Celebration" by James Curnow, "The Lord of the Rings" by James Burden, "Satchmo" by Ted Ricketts, and "The Movies" by John Higgins.

The winter percussion unit will also present its show from this past season in the school gymnasium immediately following the concert. Band awards for the 2001-02 school year will be presented during the concert intermission.

Barbara Feldon

On stage, Feldon has performed in the Circle in the Square production of Past Tense, the off-Broadway musical Cut the Ribbons, and her own one-woman show, Love for Better or Verse. Over the years, she has developed a number of poetry and prose readings: Great Love Poetry, The Poetry of Pablo Neruda, Jane Austin, and Virginia Woolf.

Because of her interest in the women's movement, she hosted The Eighties Woman on the Lifetime Network from 1982 until 1984. She has served on the boards of the National Women's Caucus, Screen Actors Guild, the Orchestra of St. Luke's, and the Poetry Society of America. She lectures on women's issues and is an avid supporter of Girls Inc., a national organization devoted to helping under-privileged girls develop options.

Her book of essays, Living Alone — And Loving It! is being published by Simon and Schuster in January 2003. She has often performed as a voice-over artist as well.

Lenora Eve is making a return to Garrett County where she has performed many times as a singer. A native Texan, Eve received degrees from Midwestern State University and North Texas State University. She lived for two years in Detmold, Germany, where she performed as a guest artist in numerous operas and concerts with the Landestheater Detmold.

Eve relocated to New York City to continue studying and also to teach. While there, she has performed with the Amato Opera in such roles as Suzuki (Madame Butterfly) and Cherubino (The Marriage of Figaro). She then began touring the United States and Asia with The Sound of Music, which starred Marie Osmond as Maria. Eve then went on tour with State Fair, starring John Davidson, and with the Broadway tour of The Sound of Music, starring Richard Chamberlain. Upon her return to New York, the singer made her debut at Carnegie Hall as the alto soloist in Haydn's Lord Nelson's Mass.

Currently Eve is teaching and performing in New York. This summer she will perform as Vi Petty in Buddy, the Buddy Holly story.

Art Weiss is a native of New York City, having grown up in Brooklyn and the Bronx. He left premedical studies to become a piano and music theory major at the Manhattan School of Music. After playing jazz around New York and traveling with several shows, he began a two-week engagement with his trio at the New York Playboy Club. This brief engagement became a 14-year job.

He continued his career as an accompanist and musical conductor for many performers, most notably magician Harry Blackstone, singers Marlena Shaw, Marilyn Maye, Julius LaRosa, and comedienne Liz Torres.

He is currently active as an accompanist for several singers on the New York cabaret circuit. He combines an active career as musical conductor, vocal coach, and performing pianist with musical composition. He has been accompanying Feldon for several years.

Friedman and Friends concerts are sponsored by the Sincell Publishing Company and the Sprenger-Lang Foundation, as well as by many patrons. The next event will be the classical chamber music concerts on Sunday, Aug. 25, and Monday, Aug. 26, featuring violinists Erick Friedman and Lus Sun, violist Jesse Levine, cellist Jesus Castro-Balbi, and pianist Ian Hobson.

Donations for the nonprofit concert series are still being accepted, as the funding needs have not yet been met. Checks may be made out to "Our Town Theatre Special Projects" and sent to Our Town Theatre, 121 Center Street, Oakland, MD 21550.

Rams Continue To Mow Down Foes; Record 13-0

Systematically mowing down opponents is what the undefeated Southern High School varsity baseball team has done all season, and this past week was no exception, as the Rams flattened host Preston on Friday, 13-1, topped visiting Hampshire on Saturday, 8-3, annihilated Beall the same day, 19-1, in a Western Maryland Interscholastic League encounter, and recorded a 5-0 WMIL victory over visiting Northern on Tuesday with a no-hitter tossed by Bryson Meyers.

The four victories stretched the Rams' overall record to 13-0 and their WMIL mark to 6-0. They were slated to play a make-up game at Northern yesterday, but that contest was once again postponed because of wet field conditions.

Tobi Stoner dominated the Preston High batters on Friday, as he struck out 13 of them and combined with reliever Rick Reams on a three-hitter.

Meanwhile, the Rambats produced a dozen hits, including home runs by Reams, Steve Skipper, and Bryson Meyers.

Meyers also had a pair of singles, Skipper had a double to go with his homer and recorded two RBI, and Reams had a single besides his home run. Chad Panther finished with a pair of singles.

Getting a double apiece for the Knights were Kevin Keener and Tim Street.

The contest was called after six innings because of the 10-run rule.

The Rams spotted Hampshire a pair of runs in the top of the first inning of Saturday's morning game, but tied the score with two runs in the bottom of that frame, and then took the lead for good with three runs in the third.

Giving the Trojans their brief 2-0 lead was Bryan Wright, who hit a home run that also plated Josh Pearce.

Panther led off the Rams' half of the first with a walk, and Reams matched Wright's effort by smacking his first pitch over the fence.

Kevin Goralski accounted for the Rams' three runs in the third, as he, too, put the ball over the outfield fence.

The Rams added three insurance runs in the sixth when Panther smacked a two-run homer and Joel Helbig added a run-producing single.

Reams had a double to go with his homer, and Panther also hit a single.

Wright had a home run, double, and a single for the Trojans, who actually outhit the Rams, 10-9, and Pearce finished with three singles.

Getting the win on the mound was Bryan Hauser (4-0), who struck out six, walked two, and allowed only one run after the first inning.

The Rams wasted no time taking complete control of the game against Beall in the afternoon, scoring a dozen runs in the first inning and finishing with 19 hits, while Dennis Tressler held the Mountaineers to just three hits.

Panther hit two doubles and a single for the Rams, Reams, Goralski, and Skipper each doubled and singled, and Fitzwater singled three times for four runs. Goralski's hits also yielded four RBI.

Tressler struck out five in going the five-inning distance. Jeff Custer accounted for two of Beall's hits, a double and a single.

Beall, which dropped to 4-9 overall and 1-6 in the WMIL, committed eight errors.

Meyers not only recorded a no-hitter against the Northern Huskies on Tuesday, but nearly had a perfect game, as he retired the first 15 batters he faced. Breaking the streak was Derek Workman, who drew a walk in the sixth inning. Dan Ellis reached base later in the inning on an error, but Meyers got out of trouble by striking out the side.

The Rams took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Panther led off with a single and later scored on a sacrifice fly by Goralski.

The rest of the game's runs were scored by the Rams in the bottom of the second, which included a run-producing single by J.J. Bolyard, a bases-loaded walk, an error that plated a run, and an RBI on a fielder's choice by Stoner.

Dan Vagnetti performed well on the mound for the Huskies, as he allowed only five hits by the potent Ram offense and kept Southern scoreless through four innings.

Panther and Bolyard each finished with two singles for Southern.

The Huskies dropped to 9-8 overall and 2-5 in the WMIL standings. Northern is slated to host Fort Hill today and entertain Allegany on Monday, which is also the same day for the 1A West Region playoffs drawing.

The Rams, who will get a bye in the first round of the playoffs, are scheduled to host Keyser today in a 4:30 start, travel to Beall on Friday, entertain Fort Hill on Monday, and host Bishop Walsh next Tuesday, which will wrap up their regular season.

A CLASSIC PITCHER'S DUEL unfolded in Oakland Tuesday as the Southern High School varsity baseball squad downed the visiting Northern Huskies in a contest much closer than the 5-0 final score reflected. NHS junior Dan Vagnetti, left, gave up just five Ram hits and was handcuffed by a four-run SHS second inning that included a bases-loaded walk and an NHS fielding error. Southern senior Bryson Meyers, above, got the best of the Huskies by retiring the first 15 batters and recording 11 total strikeouts on his way to a seven-inning, complete game no-hit win. Ram baserunner J.J. Bolyard is shown below diving back to the bag as Northern first baseman Trey Brenneman gathers in Vagnetti's pick-off attempt. Southern upped its area-leading record to 13-0, while NHS fell to 9-8. Northern is slated to host Fort Hill in the Cove today, while the unbeaten Rams defend their streak at home this afternoon against Keyser's Golden Tornado.

Huskies Pound Orioles, Split With Spartans, Fall To SHS

Two wins in five outings this week leaves the Northern High School varsity baseball team back where it was two weeks ago — one game over an even .500. The Huskies have a 9-8 mark after a busy week that opened with a 15-0 demolition of Salisbury, a doubleheader split with Bishop Walsh that saw NHS lose 4-3 before taking a 5-4 nightcap, and a Tuesday afternoon 5-0 loss at Southern. (See SHS account for details.)

Northern's bats roared to life in a big way this past Thursday at Salisbury as the Huskies launched 13 hits, including a pair of doubles by Greg Whittemore. NHS scored seven runs in the leadoff inning, one in the second, three in the fourth, and four in the fifth and final stanza of the 15-run victory, shortened to five innings by the 10-run mercy rule.

The Huskies also got a pair of RBI singles from both Bryan Lenhart and Landon Southerly, and two-run singles from Torrey Poholsky and Chad Carr. Lenhart drew the starting assignment on the mound, and he and relief pitcher Cliff Everett combined to limit their Oriole hosts to just four hits.

Both halves of Friday's homefield twinbill with Bishop Walsh came down to a one-run difference, and each game was decided in the final inning. The Spartans rallied from a 3-2 deficit in the opener by scoring once in each of the eighth and ninth innings to two runs for the tying and go-ahead scores in the bottom of the sixth.

Play began in the first game with Northern holding claim a 4-3 win; in game two the Huskies fought their way back from a 4-1 deficit with one run in the fourth, one in the fifth, and a 1-0 advantage, gained in one inning of play on April 9 before rain forced umpires to suspend that contest. Picking up where they left off, the teams played through a scoreless second stanza before each scored once in the third to make the score NHS 2 - BW 1.

The Spartans knotted the score in the sixth inning, then a bases-empty home run blast by Whittemore put Northern up 3-2 in the top of the eighth. NHS starting pitcher Dan Vagnetti worked his way through two outs in the bottom of the eighth before a Spartan RBI single tied the see-saw contest yet again at 3-3. The tiring pitcher was lifted after the conclusion of the inning with nine strikeouts to his credit.

Whittemore drew a tough streak of luck when summoned to the mound for ninth-inning relief duty. After he struck out two batters, another batter reached first on an infield error (one of three in the game for the Huskies), then stole second before scoring on a single hit back through the box.

Bishop Walsh recorded nine hits during the contest to NHS's four. Whittemore accounted for two RBI with his home run and a single, and Lenhart singled twice.

Northern turned the tables in the second game to rally for its own win. NHS got off to a 1-0 lead in the second stanza before the Spartans jumped on the scoreboard with four third-inning runs. The Husky hosts scored one run in each of the fourth and fifth stanzas to pull within one at 4-3.

With one out in the sixth inning, Northern's Whittemore singled to get to first base. That was as far as Lenhart needed him to go, for the senior NHS backstop followed by stepping into a BW pitch and cracking a two-run homer that gave his squad a 5-4 lead. Complete-game Husky pitcher Jason Rice shut the Spartans down in the top of the seventh to clinch the one-run victory.

Northern garnered eight hits to BW's seven throughout the contest. In addition to Lenhart's home run, NHS got two singles apiece from Whittemore and Poholsky. Rice struck out seven on his way to upping his record to 4-1, a fine varsity showing for a sophomore.

The Huskies' published schedule shows two 4:30 p.m. homefield games lie ahead, one against Fort Hill this afternoon, and the other against Allegany Monday. No make-up dates have been announced, making the Alco contest the tentative season finale. The tournament draw for the Class 1A West Region playoffs will take place this coming Monday afternoon, and the post-season competition will get under way next Friday, May 10.

Bobcat Tennis Team Caps 13-3 Year With Win

The Frostburg State University men's tennis team, anchored in part by two Garrett County natives, turned in a 7-2 win over visiting Villa Julie College of Stevenson Saturday afternoon in Frostburg. The triumph garned the Bobcats an excellent 13-3 regular season mark.

Senior Dave Butler, a Grantsville resident who graduated from Northern High School, went out in style with wins in both singles and doubles action. He took a 6-1, 6-0 victory in No. 4 singles play before combining with classmate Sean Shillinger to edge their Villa Julie counterparts 8-7 (7-4). Butler tallied a 56-39 overall record during his Bobcat career.

Sophomore Justin Stephens posted a 6-0, 6-1 victory in top seed singles competition. The Oakland resident and Southern High graduate went on to pick up a default win at the No. 3 doubles spot with FSU teammate Terrence Killen.

As a team, Butler and the FSU squad have mounted a 45-16 record over the past four seasons, the second-best tally over a comparable span in the Bobcat program's 48-year history.

Bosley's Lightning Strikes Twice In Perfect Wins Over Marion, Huskies

Achieving a perfect game — every batter up, every batter out — is one of the rarest feats in all of sports, but Southern High School mound ace Jennifer Bosley made it look easy twice this week as the Rams cruised to a pair of big wins.

After tossing an April 19 no-hitter at North Marion, as reported last week, Bosley blanked the visiting North Marion squad this past Friday with seven innings of perfection in a 9-0 SHS win, then the senior silenced Northern's bats for a 10-0 six-inning perfect-game win Tuesday. The Rams have already run away with the area crown by tallying a 14-1 record heading into the final week of the season.

"Ooohs" and "Aaahs" could be heard from both sets of stands during Friday's homefield win over a strong Marion squad that had brought 14 wins into the contest. In the top of the opening stanza, the first visiting batter dinked a grounder back to Bosley for an easy leadoff out, the second batter struck out, and the third batter chopped another grounder back to the box, only to be gunned down at first by Bosley to bring the first inning to a close.

From then on, she and catcher Gina Reeves played a game of throw-and-catch as Bosley whiffed every single batter she faced to record an eye- and mitt-popping 18 straight strike-outs. For the day, Bosley struck out 19 of the 21 batters she faced. "Jennifer and Gina make a good combination," SHS coach Dave Bosley commented. "Gina is a steady catcher behind the plate, and does a great job at pulling in Jennifer's rising fastball, which can sometimes end up at the batter's eye level."

The Rams' offense played a strong game to match their pitcher's showing, as Southern's batters cranked out 13 hits on their way to nine runs. SHS scored five times in the fourth inning after Bosley led off with a double and advanced to third on a wild pitch. She scampered home on an RBI ground-out by catcher Gina Reeves, then Southern reeled off four straight singles through the lower half of the batting order for its next four runs. The Rams added five more runs in the sixth stanza.

Reeves tallied a pair of singles to drive in two runs for the contest, and Autumn Uphold, Megan Burner, and Megan Bernard each drove home one run with singles.

The train just kept on rolling Tuesday against Northern, as Bosley struck out 13 of the 15 batters she faced for the third perfect game of her varsity career, and her fourth no-hitter of the 2002 campaign. She sent the first nine Husky batters packing back to the dugout after striking out, then the leadoff NHS hitter of the fourth inning lofted a flyball to short leftfield that Melissa Flanagan gathered in with ease. The next batter grounded out to third baseman Autumn Uphold, one of the best fielders in the area, and from then on Bosley struck out every Husky she faced.

While serving up a stingy diet to Northern's batters, Bosley helped herself to a serving of hits at the plate by racking up a double, two singles, and two RBI. Uphold contributed a two-run single, and Southern tallied seven hits overall while drawing eight walks from NHS pitchers Valene Snyder and Jolene Brenneman.

To date, Bosley has recorded a 13-0 record, and has given up just 18 hits and struck out 189 batters in 89 innings of work. She has issued just nine walks and three earned runs, and her ERA is a microscopic 0.26. The two-way player also the most potent Ram force in the batter's box, as she leads the team with a .435 batting average and shares the team lead of 10 RBI with battery mate Reeves.

Rounding out the top batting averages for Southern are Autumn Uphold at .408, Ashley Liller at .400, Reeves with .359 (a near-.100 point increase over the last 2½ weeks), Burner with .304, and Erica Green at .303.

The Ram batters appear to have found their stride in time for post-season play, which looms ahead after the regular season closes this week. SHS travels to Beall today, then closes out with a three-day homestand Monday through Wednesday against Westmar, Allegany, and the Mounties. Southern will be the top seed for the upcoming 1A West Region Tournament, and has already earned a bye for the first round. SHS will make its playoff debut on Monday, May 13.

Husky Netters Sweep BW, Beall; Now 8-1 On Way into Final Week

In showing why it is considered the cream of the area's tennis crop, the Northern High School girls' varsity tennis team swamped Bishop Walsh Monday and Beall yesterday, both 7-0 margins. The flawless showings boosted NHS's record to 8-1 heading into the regular campaign's final week.

Monday's match contained an even share of huge triumphs and narrow wins for the visiting Huskies. Heather Lander and Ashley Robinson got the ball rolling by opening 8-3 wins in top- and second-seed singles play, respectively. Third-seeded Miriah Fletcher wiped the slate clean in her outing with an 8-0 sweep, then No. 5 seed Christie Flockhart and No. 6 seed Amber Weimer each recorded 8-6 victories.

The top slot in doubles competition was taken by the NHS duo of Rachel Bruch/Nicole Sisler, who downed their No. 1 seed counterparts by an 8-6 tally. Northern's second-seeded doubles pair, Andrea Green/JenniferLowdermilk, thumped the No. 2 BW seed 8-2.

The Huskies' Abby Sisler took an exhibition match with ease, taking an 8-1 win.

Yesterday's contest was more a massacre than a match, as Northern's singles unit pulled off three straight 8-0 sweeps by Nos. 3 through 5 seeds Flockhart, Weimer, and Bruch. The top two seeds, Lender and Weimer, easily staked the Huskies to an early 2-0 lead with respective 8-2, 8-1 victories. In top-flight doubles play, Sisler and Green took an 8-1 win, and second seed team Lowdermilk and Annie Donaldson rolled to an 8-2 triumph.

The Huskies are slated to host Allegany today at 4 p.m. Barring any other rescheduled dates that were not announced, the Huskies have already netted the best record in the area prior to heading into Class 1A West Region playoff competition.

Northern's success so far this year is underscored by the fact that the squad's only loss came by a narrow 4-3 margin to Preston earlier last month. Since then the Huskies have been on fire, and NHS coach Linda Wengerd's pre-season goal of a Region title for the Northern program appears to looming closer, volley by volley.

NHS Stymied By Rams, Fall To Sentinel Rally

A quick start for the Northern High School girls' varsity softball team yesterday seemed to mire down in the Huskies' muddy home diamond, as what had been an early 4-1 lead over the visiting Fort Hill Sentinels was turned on its head in what became a 12-6 loss for NHS. The defeat came on the heels of Tuesday's 10-0 loss to Southern and perfect-game pitcher Jennifer Bosley. (See SHS account for details.) The action leaves the Huskies with a 2-8 mark heading into the regular season's final week.

After Fort Hill opened with a one-run leadoff inning, Northern exploded for three runs in the bottom of the stanza and one in the second to stake itself to a three-run lead. The Sentinels roared back to snag the lead with a four-run third and two-run fourth, making the score FH 7 - NHS 4. Undaunted, the Huskies scored twice in the bottom of the fourth to pull to within one run, but a five-run Sentinel sixth inning put the game away for the guests.

Amanda Frantz slugged a two-run home run for Northern, and added a single. Brooke Butler contributed a double and two singles, and Bridget Frazee tallied a pair of singles to highlight the Huskies' 10-hit effort. NHS's Valene Snyder huried the first four innings before Jolene Brenneman was called in for relief work in the fifth. Northern's pitcher, who limited the Sentinel line-up to just seven hits overall, were hampered by seven walks and four Husky errors.

Northern is slated to host Hyndman at 4:30 p.m. today, then travels to Bishop Walsh Tuesday for the season closer. The West Region Class 1A playoff drawings are set for Monday, and post-season play will get under way for NHS on Friday, May 10.

Southern JVs Still Unbeaten; Top Alco, Cats

Southern High School's junior varsity baseball team continued to keep pace with the SHS varsity, as the younger Rams maintained their unbeaten record with three more victories this past week. Coach Tom Bosley's team crushed visiting Allegany in both ends of a doubleheader on Saturday, 22-11 and 10-1, and held on for a 2-1 win over Westmar yesterday, al-so in Oakland. The Rams are 13-0.

The Rams trailed Allegany, 7-2, in the third inning of Saturday's opener, but then erupted for 10 runs in the bottom of the inning to take the lead for good. Scott Wildesen assumed the mound in the top of the third when the Campers had the bases loaded, led 6-2, and had only one out. He allowed only one more run before retiring the side.

After going up 12-7, the Rams scored 10 more runs in the fourth inning to have the game called in the fifth because of the 10-run rule.

Wildesen aided his own cause with a double and a single for three RBI, and Chad Everd hit two singles for three RBI. Leading Allegany's offense were Rick Dalverny with a two-run homer, Garrett Mathews with a double and a single, and Tim Lease with two singles.

Billy Reams tossed a five-hitter for the Rams in the second game, allowed only one earned run, struck out 12, and walked just one for the complete-game victory. Wildesen stroked three singles, and Jason Weeks provided a double and a single, and also scored three times.

Wildesen and Reams combined on a four-hitter yesterday to get the hard-earned win over visiting Westmar. They struck out nine in the process.

All three of the runs in the game were unearned, as all three were scored on wild pitches. With the score knotted at 1-1 in the fifth, the Rams picked up the winning run with three walks and a wild pitch.

Pitching well for the Wildcats was Russell Miller, who gave up only three hits and fanned five.

The Rams are scheduled to play a doubleheader at Northern on Saturday, with the first game to get under way at 11 a.m.

What changes with electric choice and what doesn't?

A. You'll get to choose your electricity supplier, while delivery over poles and wires remains the same.

In the past, your entire electric service was provided by your local electric utility. With electric competition, the three main parts of electric service – generation, transmission and distribution – are separated. As the market develops, you will be able to choose the company that provides the generation of your electricity. This company is called an electricity supplier. Transmission and distribution services include the actual delivery of electricity over poles and wires and will continue to be provided by your local utility. Your utility is now called your electric company. They are the ones to call if the power goes out, just as you always have. Got questions about electric competition? UP AND OVER for a first place in the girls' high jump last Thursday is Southern High School's Nikki Raynovich, who is pictured clearing the bar at 4'10". The Southern girls dominated the four-team meet with a total of 146.5 points to defeat Preston, Northern, and Union. The shot below is of the boys' 300 hurdles. WINNING A PAIR OF RELAYS for the Southern girls' track team last Thursday was the team of Miriam Sincell, Brittnay Friend, Eileen Mouyard, and Robbin Gregg, who took first place in the 400 and 800 events. Above, Sincell and Friend complete a successful hand-off of the baton, which is a crucial aspect of relay races. The event was a disaster for the Northern Huskies' team, as is shown in the photo below. HEAVING THE SHOT PUT in these photos are Northern High School's Joe Garlitz, pictured above, and Southern's Ben Friend, below. Friend finished third in the event with a distance of 33'7", and Garlitz was fifth. Garlitz's teammate Tom Menges won first place with a distance of 42 feet even.

Lakers Lose Five Of Seven, But Top Allegany

It was still a losing week of action overall for the baseball team of Garrett Community College, as the Lakers won only two of seven games, but one of those two wins was a huge 12-11, 10-inning victory over arch rival Allegany College of Maryland on Tuesday at McHenry.

The Lakers dropped both ends of a doubleheader last Thursday to the junior varsity of host Marietta, 7-5 and 11-7; split a twinbill with Essex CC on Friday, winning the first game, 13-6, and losing the second, 11-9; and were topped twice by visiting Montgomery Germantown on Saturday, 13-2 and 5-1, before recording the big win over Allegany on Tuesday. The results left the Lakers with a 10-21 record.

Leading the Lakers offensively in the first game against the jayvees of Marietta last Thursday were Josh Bosley, who hit a solo homer and a single, and James Funk and Ryan Wetzel, with two singles apiece.

Dean Altavilla had a solo shot and a single in the second game, Funk rapped a double and two singles, and Brian Rockwell and P.J. Ross each hit a pair of singles.

In the win over Essex on Friday, Funk ripped a three-run homer, Bosley was 3-4 with two doubles and a single, and Wetzel provided a two-run home run and a single to help Mike Berry earn the win on the mound.

Bosley hit a three-run homer, while Joe Walker and Kurt Skasik each hit a double and a single for the Lakers in the second game. Essex won that contest on a three-run homer by Camacho in the eighth inning.

Montgomery Germantown tagged Laker pitcher Chris Fisher for 16 hits in Saturday's first game, with Jim Pichler getting a double and two singles, and Stevenson and Dean adding three singles apiece.

Walker had a solo homer and a single for Garrett, while Funk, Jeff Straface, and Bosley each had a double to account for the Lakers' total of only five hits.

The second game was almost as lopsided, with Germantown recording 11 hits off Laker Josh Fitzwater, while the GCC bats managed just three off winning pitcher Thiveault.

Pichler and Massino each homered for the winners, while Rockwell hit a solo shot for the Lakers.

It was a two-run single in the bottom of the 10th inning that ultimately gave the Lakers their one-run win over visiting Allegany on Tuesday. The score was knotted at 9-9 at the end of nine innings, and it appeared that the Trojans would record the win, as they scored a pair of runs in the top of the 10th.

The slugfest featured a total of 29 hits, including seven home runs and two grand slams, and the Lakers also turned a triple play.

Garrett recorded the triple play in the top of the second after AC had taken a 1-0 lead. Derek Megargell led off the inning with a single, advanced when Dan Miller reached on an error, and came home on a double by Randy Dicken.

With runners Dicken at first and Miller at second, Dennis Hine bunted and was thrown out at first, Dicken was thrown out attempting to reach third, and Miller attempted to score, but was tagged at home plate for the third out.

A two-run homer by Scott Kintz in the top of the third gave the Trojans a 3-0 lead, but the Lakers rallied with a solo homer in the bottom of that inning by Josh Bosley. Then in the bottom of the fourth, Garrett scored six more runs, four of which were via a grand slam by Bosley, to put the Lakers up 7-3.

Altavilla hit a solo homer in the seventh, and Garrett went into the top of the eighth leading 8-4, but that's when the Trojans scored five runs behind a grand slam by Nick Gozzard to take a 9-8 lead.

However, the Lakers tied it at 9-9 with a second solo shot by Altavilla, sending the game into the extra frame.

One of the Trojans' two runs in the top of the 10th was scored on a solo homer by Megargell, but the Lakers rallied for three runs and the win in the bottom of the inning on the strength of Wetzel's two-run single.

"Obviously, this game could have gone either way," stated GCC coach Ed Wildesen, "which is the way a lot of our games with Allegany go, but we were fortunate to get the win this time."

Bosley also had two doubles, while Wetzel and Funk each singled twice.

Gozzard drove home five runs with his grand slam and a single for Allegany, Kintz and Miller each singled twice, and Hine had a double.

The loss dropped Allegany to 27-10.

The Lakers are scheduled to play a single game at Baltimore City CC this Friday. Region XX tournament action will begin next week, and will be hosted by the Lakers.

TURNING A TRIPLE PLAY was a highlight of Tuesday's big victory by the Garrett Community College Lakers over rival Allegany College of Maryland. Part two of that play is captured above, as Laker second baseman Joe Walker snares the ball thrown by first baseman Jeremy Shaffer, pictured right, and catches Allegany's Randy Dicken between second and third. See story for complete details of the play. The slugfest had a total of 29 hits, but Laker Mike Berry, pictured at left firing a pitch, emerged as the winner on the mound. The game went into the 10th inning, and after giving the Trojans a two-run lead in the top of the 10th, the Lakers rallied for three runs and the win in the bottom of that inning. # Panther WMIL Player Of Year, First-Team All-Area

CHAD PANTHER
WMIL PLAYER OF THE YEAR

Chad Panther, who led the Southern High Rams to Western Maryland Interscholastic League and area championships this past season, was voted the WMIL Player of the Year by a vote of the league's coaches, and was also named to the All-Area first team.

Also named to the first team All-WMIL were Panther's teammate, Dennis Tressler, and Josh Repac of Fort Hill, Dan Diehl of Allegany, Ryan Harper of Beall, and Bobby Alkire of Westmar.

Among those named to the second team were Ricky Reams of Southern and Jason Rice of Northern High School, while Northern's Aaron Mitchell, Jensen Long, and Josh Swandol all received honorable mention.

Tressler was also named to the All-Area second team.

Panther, who was one of the most outstanding guards in the history of the school, averaged just under 13 points per game, a team-high 4.7 assists, and was the team's third leading rebounder with 4.5 per outing. The 5-11 senior hit 50 percent of his shots from the field (119 for 238) and 70 percent from the foul line (85 of 122).

In WMIL games, he was the league's third leading scorer, hitting 13.5 points per contest, and was seventh in foul shooting, converting 31 of 44 for attempts for 70 percent.

Tressler, a 6-4 forward, was the area's runner-up in foul shooting efficiency, and was the top shooter in the league games, hitting 21 of 26 attempts for 80.7 percent. He was the seventh-leading scorer in the league with 11.3 points per outing, and like Panther, hit 50 percent from the floor.

The duo led the Rams to a 21-4 overall record and a perfect 10-0 mark in WMIL games this past season.

As a starter for the past two years, Panther has led the Rams to a two-season 43-8 overall record, the best two-year mark in the history of the school.

The son of Ed and Dawn Panther was also named first-team All-Area in both football, last fall, and baseball, last spring.

"Chad is strong in every area," Coach Tom Bosley said. "He handles the ball well, rebounds, scores, and passes very well. Plus, he is one of the most unselfish and most coachable players I've ever had. He's just the ultimate team player."

This is the third year that a Southern player has been voted among the top five All-Area players. The other two were Chad's brother Nathaniel in 2000 and Chad's cousin Bryan Panther in 2001.

Tom Bosley's teams have won the area title twice in the past four years, and won or shared the WMIL mark four of the last five seasons.

FINISHING A CLOSE SECOND In the Gene Scaletta Memorial Basketball Tournament held recently at Westmar High School were the 7th grade all-star girls' basketball team from Southern. The team got off to a rocky start when they lost their first game by three points to Keyser. Once they dropped to the losers' bracket, they won five straight games (winning three by one point) to earn the right to play in the championship game against a strong undefeated Petersburg team. Petersburg edged out Southern with a final score of 23-21. The team is coached by Mike Stephens and Oren Yoder, both service club team coaches. Pictured above are team members, in the front, from the left, Amanda Perry, Britney Scheffel, Ashley Rohrbaugh, and Sarah Stephens. Standing are Britney Boyce, Coach Stephens, Adrienne Yoder, Natalie Rohrbaugh, Jessica Petrella, and Coach Yoder. The three players who received special awards are pictured below. In the back are Yoder and Rohrbaugh, both named to the all-tournament team. In the front is Stephens, who was named the tournament's most outstanding player.

GC Athletes Rise To Mount Summit Challenge Event

Nine Garrett County residents were among the 500 participants from five states who accepted the 20th annual Mount Summit Challenge, a recent 3½-mile uphill walk/run that began in Hopwood, Pa. The athletes traveled on eastbound Route 40 as they climbed 1,200 feet to the finish line at the top of the Fayette County mountain.

Oakland's Suzanne Wilburn claimed the third place overall female trophy in the Walkers Division with a time of 44:12. Other local walkers included Heidi Qualls (55:35), Colleen Nordeck (first place female, 50-54, 48:90), Janet Hardesty (first place female, 55 and over, 48:15), David Nordeck (49:39), and Jim Preston (third place male, 60 and over, 52:31).

Nikki Brown of Oakland placed second in the 20-29 Female Runners category with a time of 34:45. Also receiving second place in the 40-44 age group was Becky Cosner (35:34) while Kathie Brown placed fourth in the 55 and over Runners Division (47:08).

The Mount Summit Challenge was sponsored by the Fayette Striders, along with the Uniontown law firm of Radcliffe, DeHaas, and Monaghan and MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Driving). Part of the proceeds of the race went to the Fayette County MADD Community Action team to aid in the efforts to prevent drunk driving accidents and deaths.

GARRETT "MOUNTAIN GOATS" TOP OUT IN PA. — These intrepid Garrett County runners and walkers don't look any worse for wear after taking part in the recent Mt. Summit Challenge, a 3½-mile uphill road race in Fayette County, Pa. They were among 500 participants from five states who put their shoe rubber to the road along eastbound Route 40 from Hopwood to the top of the mountain. Shown kneeling from the left are Nikki Brown, Suzanne Wilburn, and Becky Cosner. Standing are Kathie Brown, Jim Preston, Janet Hardesty, and Heidi Qualls. Not pictured are Colleen and David Nordeck. Local legend has it that the Challenge, now in its 20th year, was born late one night when two nearby tavern patrons put down a friendly wager and ran out the door to see who could make it up the mountain first. (No word on that result or, more importantly, who was the first one to get back to the tavern.)

ROARING KNOB
by Donna Butler

Forty-four race teams braved threatening weather for Roaring Knob Raceway's recent "shake down, tune up" day. All are anticipating a run for the track championships.

The quest for those titles will begin May 4. Roaring Knob Raceway will present the 2002 season opener with a 5-division racing program. On the card will be the Fayette Tire Late Models, the Caney Valley Sport and Marine Hot Stocks, the VitaLink-QCOL Classic Lites, and the Fort Necessity Garage Modified and Stock Four Bangers.

Champs for the 2001 season were Jeff Ferguson in the Late Models, John Redshaw in the Hot Stocks, and Mike Hay in the Classic Lites, with Jason Boncoski and Danny Leonard in the Modified and Stock Four Cylinders, respectively. All are expected back to defend their crowns.

The Best Appearing Car awards will be presented. Fans will choose the winners by voting for their favorites.

Sign-up will be held for the Appalachian Timber Products Junior Pit Crew. Club dues entitle youngsters 12 and under to a membership kit and access to various games and prizes. This week's activity is a sack race.

Roaring Knob Raceway Park is located two miles west of the Youghiogheny Lake, just off Route 40 along Fearer Road. The gates open at 5 p.m., warm ups go trackside at 7 p.m., and racing action begins at 7:30 p.m. General admission is only $10. ### INTERSTATE 79 SPEEDWAY

The 2002 season opener is now on the record books. Shinnston, W.Va.'s, Robbie Scott took advantage of lap traffic and took the lead on lap 23 from Chad McDougal in the Late Model main event. McDougal led the first 23 turns of the oval when he and Scott tangled after getting into lapped traffic. McDougal hit the ute tire in turn 4. Scott took the first feature event of the 2002 season. Bobby Hill, Butch McGill, Frank Wilson, and Paul Wilmoth finished in positions 2 through 5. Nolan Dalton was the Timberwolfe hard charger by advancing eight positions. Heats were won by McDougal and Scott.

Steve Wilmoth of Clarksburg led the Semi Late feature wire to wire. He started on the outside pole and never looked back in the caution-filled event. L.C. Powers and Jeff Kesling followed Wilmoth to the finish line. Steve Cook and M.T. Hall rounded out the top five. Heats went to Kesling and Wilmoth.

In the AMRA Modifieds, Vic Vandergrift, Fairmont, W.Va., won the season opener. Deck Defibaugh, Louie Krushansky, Shawn Davis, and Dave Defibaugh were next at the checker. Heats were picked up by Vandergrift, Krushansky, and Deck Defibaugh. The consey was won by Ron Parrish.

Pennsylvania driver John Redshaw made his first-ever visit to Interstate 79 Speedway pay off when he won the Pure Stock feature event. Chuck Bloom, Jim Byers, Steve Sickles, and Joe Loudin filled out the top five. Heats were won by Jay Martin, Bloom, and Byers.

Kevin Pifer of St. George, W.Va., won the 4-Cylinder division. David Gabbert was second and Tom Simpson was third. Bob Moore and Chris Waugh rounded out the top five. Heats went to Pifer and Kenny Rowback.

Train Pull Set To Benefit MD Special Olympics

The Allegany County Sheriff's Office Train Pull 2002 will be held May 18, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the Western Maryland Railway Station, Cumberland.

Each team will compete in two different categories. In each, a rope will be attached to a Baldwin 2-8-0 Steam Locomotive, which weighs in excess of 500,000 pounds, over 250 tons.

The first category is a "fastest pull" competition in which members of the team line up next to the rope, and once the rope is taut, each team will show how fast it can pull the locomotive 12 feet.

The second category is a "lowest team weight pull." In this, each team is allowed a maximum of 3 minutes to pull the locomotive 12 feet. The team is then weighed collectively, and the lowest combined weight determines the winners.

Only 20 teams can enter the competition, and the cost to register a team is $1,000. Individual members can share the cost at $50 each, or teams can seek donations/pledges from local businesses to support the Special Olympics Maryland/Allegany County.

Team members will each receive an event T-shirt and a team photo with the locomotive. The first, second, and third place winners in each category will receive a team trophy. Last year, the event raised more than $14,000 for the local athletes in Allegany County.

The Special Olympics Maryland/Garrett County will be presenting a team, and local residents and/or businesses are challenged to produce teams as well. Registrations must be received by May 10.

Other upcoming events involving the Special Olympics include Spring Games on May 4, in which eight Garrett County athletes will be participating in the track and field events, and the Summer Games to be held in West Virginia.

For more information, persons may contact Jason Schriml at 1-800-541-7544, ext. 3026, or Chad Brown, Western Maryland district director, at 1-800-541-7544, ext. 3050, or 301-895-3793.

"STAND BACK, WE'RE RAMP JUDGES" — That admonition surely wasn't necessary during Saturday's annual Ramp Cook-Off at Swallow Falls State Park. Tasting judges Kevin Dodge and Becky Wilson appear to have this corner of the park all to themselves as they down ramp dish after ramp dish — and the pair probably haven't been too popular at work this week either. First-place honors went to Tom Carr for his ramp pesto dish, while Joe Hanson took runner-up with his double ramp "un-ringa." Other delectables included dandelion greens with rampa, ramp potato salad, ramp butter, ramp rolls, venison with rampa, and ramp breakfast wedges. (Sounds like a Grandpa Jones supper menu...) "Most" of the first-time tasters found their introduction to ramps to be a positive experience, according to a contest spokesperson. Photo by Thomas Eichhorn.

BPW RAISES FOUNDATION FUNDS — The Garrett County Business and Professional Women's civic organization worked to raise funds for the BPW Foundation recently, with the money going to help support college scholarships for local women. These three BPW members — shown from left, Linda Fike, Jo Donaldson, and Rebecca Sanders — pooled their efforts with teammates Peggy Jamison and Donna Sites to account for the highest team fund-raising tally of the drive. Mildred Dunbar was the individual who raised the most donations by selling the most raffle tickets. The doll raffle prize had been donated to the BPW by Hobby House Press of Grantsville.

structed. The white-water course, similar to an Olympic course in Australia, would be the first in the U.S., said Hinebaugh.

An ice rink, roller rink, and indoor swimming pool are planned for the second phase. Commissioner Ernie Gregg noted that at the Maryland Youth Forum held at Garrett Community College last week, area youths listed ice and roller rinks, and swimming pools as recreational facilities they wanted constructed in the county.

Hinebaugh stressed that the complex would be available for county residents to use, not just vacationers. "I'll lobby hard for reduced rates for residents," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg.

He added that no county money was involved in the project. A $2 million grant from the state Economic Development Administration will be used for the first phase of the project. The EDA may also grant another $1 million in two years, said Hinebaugh.

An expanded report about the complex will appear in a future issue of The Republican.

County Circuit Rider

Mike Mullan, the new circuit rider working out of the Garrett County Economic Development Department, reported that he was "getting up to speed" with his new position. He helps muncipalities with their problems and economic development.

He is currently helping Kitzmiller obtain a bank, since M&T closed its branch office, and is working with town businesses to put in an ATM machine.

Mullan is also organizing a group of Accident residents to assist the town council with its sewerage up-grade project. He suggested that the town raise sewage rates to help pay for the $3 million project and disconnect illegal connections.

Additionally, he is acting as a liaison between the Sanitary District and Deer Park, helping residents with their questions/concerns about the town's water project.

Garrett Community College

Garrett Community College's new name — Garrett College — will become effective July 1, said Dr. Steve Herman, president. He said alumni may use the college's new name on their résumés.

Their transcripts will also have the new name and seal. It is a long-standing practice among colleges to allow alumni to use their former institutions' latest titles, the president said.

The college's 30th anniversary celebration will take place at commencement, later this month, he added.

Commencement

The public is invited to attend the commencement, and the reception for the graduates following the ceremony in the Student Center.

On Who's Who

Miller is a member of the Glade Mennonite Church and is a Red Cross blood donor.

She resides in Bittinger with her parents, Bill and Phyllis, and her two sisters, Tiffany and Lindsay.

New Arrivals

A son was born April 16 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital to Amos H. and Stacy L. Friend Sisler, Terra Alta, W.Va.

This trip was coordinated by Deputy Chuck Nolan in addition to the other D.A.R.E. activities. The middle schoolers are shown above with Nolan and Panther, on the far left.

If you are interested in purchasing a 50th anniversary issue, please send or drop off $2, cash or check, and your mailing address to Southern High School Acorn, c/o Heather Savage. Papers can be ordered until May 3, and mailing of the 50th anniversary issue will follow in the second week of May. All proceeds from sales support the SGHS Acorn and Journalism program.

MOTIVATING SHS — Bobby Petrocelli, a motivational speaker who travels all over the country, spoke to students at Southern High School recently. He told his story of triumph over a great tragedy that took the life of his first wife after a drunk driver lost control of his truck and drove it into Petrocelli's house in the middle of the night, injuring Petrocelli and killing his wife, all within a matter of 10 seconds. His message is about the importance of good decision making, and that 10 seconds can change your life forever. He also talked about the importance of forgiving and letting go of anger. The Southern High School Peer Helpers made arrangements for his visit with funding from the Southern High School Alumni Association and Garrett Partnership for Children and Families.

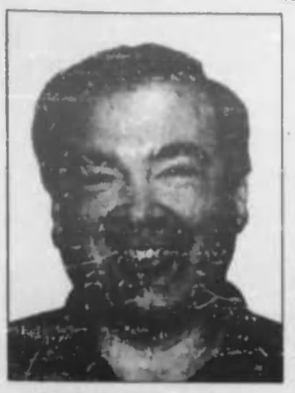
Chamber Members To Vote On Board Representatives



BOB BROWNING

SHERI MORTIMER

JONATHAN "SMILEY" KESSLER

JIMMY RAILEY

DENNY GLOTFELTY

JUDY DEVLIN

KEITH HANDYSIDE

BETSY SPIKER

The candidates for seats on the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce board of directors have been announced and ballots have been sent out to all chamber members. Of the eight vying for five slots, two are incumbents. Each has made a statement outlining reasons for accepting the bid and the challenge.

Incumbent Bob Browning, owner and operator Deep Creek Outfitters Inc. for 23 years, noted the positive impact an effective Chamber of Commerce can have on the community and stated his commitment to represent and promote all parts of Garrett County. Browning represented the chamber on the Deep Creek Lake Advisory Board, and served as vice president of Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company, as a member of Deep Creek Watershed Board of Zoning Appeals, as vice chair of the Garrett County Airport Commission, and a board of directors member of the former Deep Creek Business Association.

Jonathan (Smiley) Kessler, owner of Smiley's Fun Zone and also an incumbent, stated his willingness to continue serving as a board member to complete a number of projects, including the county recreational trail system and an enhanced chamber web site. A member of the chamber executive committee and chairman of the chamber board, Kessler is also a member of the Deep Creek Lake Property Owners Association and the Garrett County Zoning Appeals Board. He has served on the Western Maryland Economic Task Force and the tourism study task force, among others.

Denny Glotfelty, co-owner of Double G RV, McHenry, said he volunteered to serve on the chamber board to help improve community and county recreational and business opportunities. His experience includes 15 years as the Garrett County Promotion Council director, plus service as president of the Deep Creek Business Association, and as a board member of the Garrett County Sanitary Commission.

Keith Handyside retired to Garrett County to run his business, Black Bear Tavern. Noting the difficulty in maintaining a year-round business, he said he would contribute his corporate experience to the local business community to encourage growth. He worked in broadcast/television for 30 years at WGBH in Boston and NBC in New York, among others.

Sheri Mortimer, a part owner of Deep Creek Brewing Company and Gregory Mortimer Builders, said that as a board member she would help promote local businesses and also work to bring new businesses to the area. A chamber member, Mortimer also served on the Garrett Memorial Hospital Special Gifts Committee and is involved with House of Hope and Habitat for Humanity.

Jimmy Railey of Railey Realty is a third generation Garrett County native who has operated a business here for more than 20 years. He said he believes that all businesses should work closely together for the well-being of local economy and the community. He noted his support of chamber and community efforts as a member of the chamber board's Lake Affairs Task Force, as a sponsor of the Autumn Glory Royalty, and as the major contributor to fund the county map.

Judy Devlin, owner of Book Mark'et and Antique Mezzanine, said she would work to strengthen the link between Oakland and the rest of the county. As a business owner for 20 years, she said she has interactions with visitors, residents, and second-homeowners in the area. Devlin served on the former Deep Creek Lake Promotion Council for seven years, is a founding member of the Greater Oakland Business Association, and is a current, active member of the GOBA/Main Street Program.

Betsy Spiker of Long and Foster Realty and Mountaineer Log and Siding said she believes business people should take an active role in economic development. Affirming the value of tourism-related businesses, Spiker said she would work for economic growth. She has volunteered at the chamber for special events, at Christian Crossing Thrift Shop, and in the Adopt-a-Highway program, plus served as a member of the Garrett County Board of Realtors. She is acting chairman of the Builder Liaison committee, a member of the advisory board for Long & Foster Realtors, and a member of the Million Dollar Circle and the Chairman's Club at Long & Foster.

The deadline for voting in the chamber election is May 16. For more information persons may call the chamber at 301-387-4386.

Oxford Youth Leadership Award Winner

Local student Erin Oxford has been selected as this year's Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership Award winner and ambassador from Southern High School. Oxford received the award for her leadership potential and concern for the community.

"I have observed outstanding qualities from Erin during the last year and a half that I have known her," said the Southern staff member who nominated her. "She always has creative ideas, mature solutions to problems, and sincere concern for her school and community."

Oxford will attend the HOBY seminar from today, May 2, until May 5, at the Hunt Valley Inn, Baltimore. Student delegates from each high school in Maryland will attend sessions intended to develop leadership within their local communities.

In February, the award winner was in Washington, D.C., at the U.S. State Department, where she was selected to "job shadow" in the Office of Deputy Secretary of State — Richard Armitage — as part of the America's Promise program. The program is headed by Secretary of State Colin Powell. Oxford also recently attended the Model United Nations sessions at Frostburg State University.

The young leader has been involved with the Garrett County Youth Council and the Adopt-A-Highway program. She will be a presenter at the Elks Teen Issues Forum later this month. Additionally, as president of the local Best Buddies chapter, Oxford is scheduled to attend the organization's national conference in Houston, Texas, this summer.

Oxford, a sophomore, is an active member of the Southern Garrett Marching Band, Concert Band, Garrett County Honor Band, and Winter Percussion. She is also vice president of her class.

As a student in the Honors Program at Southern, Oxford has won numerous academic awards, including Minds in Motion, Marching Minds, Presidential Academic Award, and Who's Who's Among America's High School Students. She plans to attend a four-year college and possibly have a career in child psychology or education.

She is the daughter of Douglas Oxford Jr. and Susan Athey-Oxford, Oakland.

Proulx To Run For Position Of GC Sheriff

Mark Proulx, a Republican, has announced that he has filed for sheriff of Garrett County. A long time residence of Garrett County, Proulx said he wants to bring community oriented policing back to Garrett County by increasing police visibility in all communities.

If elected, he said he plans on having town meetings to stay in better touch with citizens. After talking to numerous residents in all parts of the county, Proulx said he feels that citizens want a greater presence in their neighborhoods.

If elected sheriff, he intends to initiate sectored patrols, ensuring that all areas of the county are adequately patrolled. "I believe that good law enforcement is a cooperative effort and partnership between the citizen, local government and the sheriff's office," Proulx said. Team work is the best way to make our communities a safer, crime-free place to live."

He also intends to establish a mentoring program for troubled youth in hopes of giving young persons a better chance of staying out of trouble. Proulx said he would like to foster friendships with area young people in hopes that they will come to the sheriff's office to discuss potential problems before they arise. "I hope to use the office of the sheriff to guide young people into one of the many sport, recreational, or scholastic programs offered here in Garrett County," he said.

Proulx stated that domestic violence would be a top priority of the sheriff's office. He said he hopes to work closely with women's organizations to ensure the safest possible atmosphere for area women and children. "All people have a right to live violence-free lives, and the sheriff's office will always strive to protect those who can't protect themselves," he said. "As a former police officer and criminal investigator, I have seen the ravages of family violence and hope to help families overcome the problems associated with domestic violence."

Proulx plans on working closely with the county commissioners to ensure that an adequate and fair budget is prepared. As a board member of Oakland Little League, Proulx has worked closely with the commissioners to secure grant monies for area youth. He hopes to use this relationship with the commissioners to better serve the citizens of Garrett County.

Proulx is a past Garrett County sheriff's deputy, Oakland City Police officer, and U.S. Army counterintelligence specialist. For the past five years, Proulx has operated a private investigation firm and security consultation business.

He is a former member of the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad and currently serves on the board of directors for Oakland Little League.

"I look forward to meeting all citizens of Garrett County, and hope that all citizens will feel free to approach me with their concerns," he said.

The 38-year-old currently resides in Oakland with his wife Nancy of Friendsville and daughter Amanda.

Local 4-H'ers Vie For Public Speaking Awards

Local 4-H members, their parents, and volunteers met last month at Garrett Community College to participate in the county's Communications Event, also known as the Public Speaking Contest. Numerous local youth participated in the event, and several awards were presented.

Presentations by the youth ages 6 to 16 were in three categories. In the first, prepared speeches that the 4-H'ers write and practice prior to the event are heard and judged. The second category is for extemporaneous speeches that require the youth to select a topic at the site. They then have 15 to 30 minutes to plan and present their speeches. The third option is to prepare and present a 30-second radio spot to promote 4-H participation. See photo for participants and their awards.

All 4-H members named as champions and reserve champions were eligible for the Regional Public Speaking Contest held on April 20 in Hagerstown. Participants who received champion or reserve champion in more than one category were allowed to only represent Garrett County in one of them. The results of the regional competition have not yet been reported.

Judges for the county event were Gail Dever and Evelyn Silkey, and the youth assistant was Lois Dever. Overall coordinators were Rick McCrobie and Dawn Lohr, AmeriCorps workers from the Extension Office.

Kellie Martin may turn sleuth for Lifetime

By Taylor Michaels
©Tribune Media Services

Kellie Martin

Q: What has that wonderful Kellie Martin been up to lately? I last saw her on ER. I enjoy her acting, but I also have a granddaughter whose looks and mannerisms resemble Kellie's so much! –Lorraine Fiedler, Baltimore, Md.

A: Your question is a timely one, because Martin, 26, is preparing to return to prime-time television as the title character in Fiona, a new summer Lifetime mystery series pilot adapted from Warren Adler's popular Fiona Fitzgerald novels. Mario Van Peebles and Laura Ceron (ER) co-star in the series about a rookie detective in the Washington, D.C., Metropolitan Police Department; no premiere date yet.

Martin was honored just last month by the National Down Syndrome Society Association of Los Angeles for her work in raising awareness and understanding about this condition.

Q: Several weeks ago you said The Mole 2 was coming back. Is that still true, or has it been dumped for good? –Marge from Charlotte, N.C.

A: ABC publicist Melissa Tetalman reports that The Mole 2 is still very much alive but has been pushed back to (probably early) summer. As of this writing, producers are debating whether to re-air the first three episodes or re-edit them to cram their essential information into a single show.

Q: There is a definite trend toward more main TV characters smoking. The worst is Becker – here is a doctor smoking! How can we reverse this trend? –"Irish Coffey" via e-mail.

A: Some help is on the way. Director Rob Reiner, who once depicted a group of adolescents smoking in his nostalgic movie hit Stand By Me, is joining others in Hollywood to try to buck this trend – and you are right, Irish. In both films and TV, characters that smoke seem to be on the rise.

In the case of Ted Danson's character on Becker, the smoking is quite obviously a character point further underscoring the man's contrariness and disdain for what he views as political correctness. Critics dismiss that defense, however, saying it's an easy out, that something else could be substituted for that dangerous habit.

I for one suspect that much of the smoking you see reflects the fact that so many actors themselves smoke – and light up on camera just to become more comfortable. More information is available online at tobaccofree.org and smokefreemovies.ucsf.edu/.

April: Month Of The Young Child

FOLIC ACID PREVENTS BIRTH DEFECTS

(Excerpted from WebMD.com)

It was in the 1950s that scientists first suggested a link between diet and the congenital malformations known as neural tube defects, which include anencephaly (part or all of the fetal brain is missing) and spina bifida (the tube that encloses the spinal cord fails to properly close, often resulting in paralysis). They also noticed that babies conceived in the winter and early spring — when fresh fruits and vegetables were less available — were more likely to be born with spina bifida.

In the early 1990s, researchers found that if women who had previously had a baby with a neural tube defect took folic acid before they conceived and in early pregnancy, their risk of having another child with the same problem decreased by more than two-thirds. More recent studies found that if women take daily folic acid supplements, they significantly decrease their risk of having a baby with congenital heart defects. Still other research has linked a genetic defect in the mother that makes it hard to metabolize folic acid with a higher risk of giving birth to a baby with Down syndrome.

Neural Tube Defects Can Be Culprits

Neural tube defects occur in one or two of every 1,000 live births in the United States, which adds up to about 2,500 babies each year. Because the neural tube develops very early in the embryo's life, usually within two to four weeks after conception, these defects could occur in an embryo before you even miss your period or realize you're pregnant.

Secure Folic Acid Scurces Early...

That's why it's important to take folic acid for at least a month before you get pregnant. Folic acid is the synthetic form of folate, a B vitamin found naturally in many foods and important for the formation of red and white blood cells. Foods rich in folate include green leafy vegetables such as collards, turnip greens and Romaine lettuce; broccoli and asparagus; liver; beans; citrus fruits and juices; whole-grain products; and wheat germ.

Under the FDA's folic acid fortification program, which became effective in January 1998, manufacturers are required to add from 0.43 micrograms to 1.4 micrograms of folic acid per pound to enriched flour, bread, rolls and buns, farina, corn grits, cornmeal, rice, and noodle products. A serving of each will provide about 10 percent of the recommended daily allowance for folic acid. Nutrition information on food and dietary supplement labels can help you determine whether you're getting enough.

...and Often

Unfortunately, many women between 19 and 50 consume much less than the recommended 400 micrograms of folate per day that would prevent neural tube defects, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Women who have had a child with a neural tube defect should be taking twice that much. A person eating a typical well-balanced diet will consume about 200 micrograms of folic acid every day — ½-cup of vegetables and beans, for example, contains 30 to 150 micrograms of folate. But the body doesn't absorb a lot of that, and it's not sufficient for women who are trying to conceive or in early pregnancy.

Synthetic Folic Acid—Take Enough, but Not Too Much

A recent report from the National Academy of Sciences Institute of Medicine indicates that the synthetic folic acid may be better absorbed than folate found in foods. Therefore, women of childbearing age — even if they're not planning to get pregnant — should take folic acid supplements daily. Take one that contains at least 400 micrograms of folic acid before pregnancy and 800 micrograms per day during pregnancy. Do not exceed 1,000 micrograms of folic acid per day as it may mask certain blood problems.

Do Your Part for Your Baby's Good Start

Many factors can affect a pregnancy — genetics, the environment, diet, behavior — and folic acid alone will not ensure that you'll have a healthy baby. But if most or all women of childbearing age get enough of this important B vitamin, the rate of congenital malformations will decline.

The environment is pleasant enough. Bright fluorescence illuminates the workplace while the air is cooled silently and humidified efficiently. Yet, after several hours, there is a sense of confinement... a yearning for a walk in the park, or maybe a picnic. Indeed, we read in Psalm 56:4, "In God I have put my trust; I will not fear what flesh can do unto me." We all experience difficult times when we feel a stifling sense of isolation that all of the pleasures of mankind cannot relieve.

There is a spirit in the out-of-doors that rejuvenates us... that makes us feel rested and strong; happy and optimistic. As it flows through us, it is as though God is whispering... "Here I am to refresh your body and your spirit. Together we are larger than life."

Worship in God's house this Sabbath. He is there waiting to free your soul and refresh your spirit. It's even better than a walk in the park.

Use of Ginseng in Diabetes Studied

Products containing the herb ginseng are popular in many areas of the world and are used by millions of Americans. Interestingly, there are few published scientific studies of this root of the Panox ginseng shrub However, ginseng has enjoyed the reputation of being a cure-all good for everything from cancer, to stimulating sexual desire, to decreasing fatigue and increasing energy, to lowering blood cholesterol levels

According to a Diabetes Care report, ginseng may help persons who have the type of diabetes that does not require insulin injections. This kind of diabetes, called type 2, is most common in adults. It often can be controlled with oral medicines, exercise and careful attention to diet

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

FAITH THAT WORKS

May 5, 2002

Background Scripture:
Galatians 1 through 2.
Devotional Reading:
Acts 13:26-39.

There was a time when I had great difficulty in reconciling the Pauline doctrine of salvation by faith, not works, with the seemingly contradictory teachings of Jesus. For two examples among many passages, Jesus says. "Not every one who says to me 'Lord, Lord,' shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of my Father who is in heaven" (Mt. 7:21) and "'Truly, I say to you, as you did it not to one of the least of these, you did it not to me.' And they will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous into eternal life" (Mt. 25:31-46).

The key words in these two passages are "does" and "did". The kingdom of heaven will be peopled by those who do the will of God. Those who "go away into "eternal life" are those who did some act of service to "one of the least of these." This appears in sharp contrast with Paul's insistance that "we know that a man is not justified by works of the law but through faith in Jesus Christ ..." We are saved by faith, says Paul, not what we do

I have come to understand, however, that the teachings of Jesus and Paul on this matter are not so opposed as they might appear. Actually, Paul did not say that we are saved by faith, but by grace, something that is implicit in Galatians but explicit in Romans 6:14. "...since you are not under law but under grace" "Grace to you" is the greeting that begins all Paul's letters and this grace of God in Jesus Christ is the dominant theme that runs through them. Since, none of us can save ourselves, it is only by God's grace that we are justified. Faith gives us the impetus to accept this grace, so the classic expression is: saved by grace through faith. Both the teachings of Paul and Jesus are compatible at that point.

IT'S ALL GRACE!

When Paul says, "it is no longer I who live, but Christ who lives in me; and the life I now live in the flesh I live by faith in the Son of God" (Gal. 2:20), he is saying that whatever he does that is regarded as a good work, it is really the grace of God living in him, not some righteousness of his own, that gives him the power to do the good work. Since God is the source of the grace, Paul cannot claim the good work to justify him.

When I was a ninth grade student, one of my courses was the Print Shop. This was back in the days when printers still set type by hand. Each letter had to be selected from the case and placed in the right sequence on a form. When the line of type was finished, we had to justify the line, which meant spacing out the letters and punctuation marks so that the type completely filled out the line. Otherwise there would have been unsightly gaps in our work.

In a sense, Paul's concept of "justification" is like that, if we remember that it is God who justifies the line of our words and deeds, filling in the gaps and spaces that

Q. I have a set of eight clear glass tumblers, all with Walt Disney designs from "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." Each has the Disney logo, and I've been told that they were given away as premiums during the late 1930s. Do they have any value? — *Joanne, Decatur, Ill.

A. You don't have to be goofy to be attracted to Walt Disney collectibles. Most of the earlier ones were marked either "Walt E. Disney" or "Walt Disney Enterprises." In 1940, the logo mark was changed to "Walt Disney Productions" and continued until 1984, when it evolved into "Walt Disney Company."

Recent online auction results of Disney collectibles have included a Bambi ceramic bank from the 1940s ($150); a vintage Mickey Mouse toothbrush holder ($95); a Snow White milk pitcher circa 1965 ($175); and a World War II-era Pinocchio puppet ($375).

A hairy problem

Q. We have a year-old Heeler/Border Collie cross female that constantly sheds lots of hair. I have tried different food for periods of three months, and none seem to help. Her coat is shiny, and her health seems fine otherwise. Perhaps this type of dog has a natural hair loss that exceeds other dogs'? I would appreciate any suggestions you may have. Thanks! — *Suzanne S., via e-mail

A. If your collie cross is long-haired, then shedding will be a constant issue, unfortunately. A quick check of sources on border collies reveals that this breed is famous for shedding.

All dogs shed their fur. This is particularly noticeable in fall, when dogs' coats thicken in preparation for winter, and in spring, when the extra fur is shed. Short-haired breeds may, in fact, shed more than some long-haired dogs, though short hair is often less noticeable on your couch than long hair.

Truth is, the only dogs I've ever met who didn't seem to shed were the well-dressed pooches at a local dog show. And this illusion occurred because their owners hovered near them at all times, comb and clippers in hand.

If your dog is happy, eats nutritious food (you obviously watch her diet closely) and gets plenty of exercise, the shedding may be perfectly normal. However, a trip to the vet to rule out parasites or any other health or skin problems wouldn't hurt.

Comb out your collie's fur every day after her walk (twice if you can), brushing against the lay of the fur and close to the skin, then smoothing her fur down. Bathe her no more than once a week with a shampoo approved for dogs. Treat her for fleas, if necessary. And consider a monthly professional grooming, if it's in your budget.

Good luck — while your collie may have a hairy problem, she probably has many admirable personality traits as well. And she may not mind the extra grooming too much!

THE SUN — In early May, the sun shines for 13.9 hours each day, which grows to 14.8 hours in late May. May begins with 6:19 a.m. sunrises and ends with 5:52 a.m. sunrises. During May the sun's peak height rises from 65 degrees to 72 degrees. (45 degrees is ½ way up while 90 degrees is directly overhead.) During May sunsets advance from 8:12 p.m. to 8:40 p.m. May 1 is a cross quarter day, marking the mid point of spring. Spring is the second longest season, summer being the longest and winter being shortest. As we approach the end of spring in late May, the daily change in sunrise and sunset times begin to shrink. In June there will be little change in both of them.

THE MOON — May opens with a shrinking or waning moon in the morning sky. The moon is last seen at dawn on May 8 as a thin crescent low in the eastern dawn. The moon returns to the western dusk on May 14, appearing near the brilliant planet Venus and the planet Mars. Several days later the crescent moon will appear near the brightest planet Jupiter, below Jupiter on the 15th and above Jupiter on the 16th. The best time of the month to observe the moon's craters and mountains will be within a few days of May 19 when the moon will be about half full (like a letter "D") with the maximum amount of shadows. The moon is about equally full on the evening of May 25 and May 26. In the last two days of May, the moon will have disappeared into the morning sky.

THE BRIGHT PLANETS — Our five nearest planetary neighbors appear as points of light that shine more steadily than the twinkling night stars. But if a planet appears very close to the horizon or if it's windy, even the planet's light may flicker. May evenings feature the very bright planet Jupiter high in the west. In early May there will be a trio of bright planets below Jupiter, which include the brilliant planet Venus, the bright planet Saturn, and the modest planet Mars. Below Venus in early May will be the innermost planet Mercury. By mid May, Mercury and Saturn will become increasingly difficult to spot in the western dusk. As May ends Venus will have crept close to Jupiter.

MAY'S BEST SIGHTS — May will feature your last looks of the winter evening star groups low in the western dusk. Above Jupiter are the bright stars that mark the heads of the Gemini brothers, Pollux and Castor. To the right of Gemini in the northwest is the bright golden star Capella, the bright star that stays in view for three seasons in the early evening sky. (Capella can be see from early fall through the late spring.) High in the north is the Big Dipper, upside down and dumping its soup onto the North Star. The Big Dipper's handle extended outward brings us to the bright golden star Acturus and the white-blue star Spica. Low in the northeast is the sparkling white-blue star Vega.

MAY ASTRONOMY ACTIVITIES — On May 5, 12, and 19, the Frostburg State Planetarium will present "Cosmic Discoverer," with free public showings at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. Also featured will be a beginner's tour of the evening sky using our planetarium projector. These presentations typically last an hour. The Frostburg State Planetarium is just off the front lobby of Tawes Hall. The Cumberland Astronomy Club will meet on Friday, May 17, at 7:30 p.m. at the LaVale Public Library. All interested sky gazers from the tri-state area are welcome.

*Dr. Bob Doyle directs the planetarium at Frostburg State University. Since the mid '70s, Doyle has been writing sky columns for beginners who would like to identify the brightest stars, planets, and sights in their backyards. To ask questions or get a free brochure/map, persons may call the FSU Planetarium at 301-687-4270 and press 4. Doyle also hosts "Skywatch," a brief program on days of the week and sky sights that airs on weekday evenings just before 9 p.m. on WFWM, Frostburg State's radio station that transmits at 91.9 FM in western Garrett County and at 96.3 FM around Oakland.
